It will be time to come.
The Meeting Tomorrow Night Should Be Representative—Good Speeches Expected.

A time that has been coming for years will be met tomorrow evening. The debating session has reached its last in the quarter, shall we or shall we not? And whether we shall or shall not is a matter that gives a great many of us to decide. Probably no issue that ever came up to the school has caused as much difficulty for the student body as the management of debate. Having outgrown the old arrangement, the problem is to make a new one that would be fair to all concerns.

The Debating League has a special reason for meeting, and nothing has it ever achieved entitled it to quite as much credit as this final effort voluntary effort to merge itself into a larger body, for the good of the greatest number of students.
The new league as proposed has been quite well received by the general discussion. It will be open to any student, whether a member of a local school or some far-off college, that can carry on. No one can pretend that our debating is not representative of another day. That will be the introduction of a new era. And above all, there will be such regulation of debate that what was formerly admissible by being spoken or permitted to the floor was replaced by a number of debates or controversial eras. It is not yet generally known, but true not the less than thirteen debaters, first orators in each class, will be held next Wednesday. We can't wait too much longer without there's an one trying. Our energies need to be directed to a reasonable task. All these things will be considered tomorrow night, and we want you to be here.

The questions are to be settled satisfactorily, a good attendance is wanted. Every man and woman with the University has a vote in this matter, and we ought not to permit a new minority to legislate for us. If anyone has objections, now is the time to speak, or ever hold his peace.

The meeting is to be held in the assembly hall, at 7 o'clock. The speakers are the President, and Professors Wilson, Rod and Ryle. The best will win.

You are needed. Come out and help.
