CADET INFORMALS VETOED BY DEANS

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE REPORTS UNFAVORABLY.

Begs Probably Accept Views of Committee—Might be Permitted on Certain Conditions.

There will be no maid informal to morrow afternoon. Upon petition from the military department, the heart of Deans had refused the matter to a committee. Yesterday morning the committee formulated a report which is unfavorable to the petition. As a point is taken that the amount of dancing in the University should not be increased. The committee feels considerably disappointed. Their theory was that a certain area amount of dancing is done from week to week, and that the Saturday night play be taken by the smaller parties through the week, and bring diversion on the day when it will interfere least with class work, with the additional advantage of what might almost be called official supervision. But the committee failed to see that way, as they were not convinced that the informals would actually replace the smokier affairs. If they were certain that other duties would be given up for the informal, it is thought that their consent could be obtained quite readily. As there remains the possibility of some sort of restriction being permitted given officially. But as the major signals the dances are discontinued.

MUCH BUSINESS DONE BY RECENTS.

PLANS OF THREE BUILDINGS TO BE REVIEWED.

Great Short Spring Vacation—Plans to Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary—Women's Building.

The meeting of the Regents in Des Moines was occupied with considerations of important business. Three buildings were chosen for immediate revision, contingent upon the approval of the legislature. These are the Law Building, the Physics Hall, and the Extension of the Engineering Quadrangle. A special appropriation was asked for the Women's Building.

It was decided to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the University with fitting ceremonies, at the commencement time. A committee was provided for, to consist of one Regent, one faculty member, and one woman. Arrangements will be made to have the celebration fit in with that of the figure Portia.

A vacation was granted, from March 29 to April 3. This gives four days between quarters.

The committees from the legislature spent the forenoon in going over the calendars, and some of the afternoon in front of the University of Iowa's needs. They were here a part of today, also. There are five members of the committee. Last evening they were entertained at dinner by the President, other guests being the Executive committee members, several Deans, Representative Cram, and Secretary McCroskey.

WORKING THEIR WAY.

Self-support while securing an education is one of the striking features of American college life, and especially in this true instututions of the middle west. Nearly every college catalogue advertises the opportunities and advantages of its particular location for students to "work their way"—until it would seem that those with limited finances were most desired by the college authorities.

Magazine articles by the score have extolled the successful efforts of some boys and women to get an education.
The story of the unadulterated boy by the number. The success of young boys and black, who wound up four years later with a diploma, Pitteo Krups home, and $500, having secured his finances through the Instrumentality of a boarding house landlord and a laundry agency, is a familiar one to everybody.

These published accounts, while true, do not always represent the average experience, and tend to omit things in a less true way, it has caused the impression to prevail that it is so easy to "make your way" that any one may do it, no matter how difficult his work may be. It amounts, however, to the serious problem of making a living in which in part, in addition to preparing a course of study arranged on the basis of requiring the entire time of all intelligent men.

The majority do succeed, but it must be said that some fall, either in their studies or in earning work at suitable time, and in sufficient amount to meet their needs. This should not discourage any one, but only remind him that self-support at college is a serious undertaking and ought not to be attempted without a liberal store of perseverance, ingenuity, and enough money to remain at least one quarter.

Ambitious men and women have become pretty well possessed with the idea that lack of money is not necessarily a hindrance to going to college. Each year brings larger numbers of them who seem to do what others have done.

To aid those finding employment at all the larger institutions there are multifaceted boards, where apprenticeship for help may be made. In some of the eastern universities, this work is done by the Institution itself, through a secretary for student aid. The duty of this official is to investigate the capabilities of applicants and find the sort of work they seem best fitted to do. In the west this is usually done by the university Christian Associations, as it is done here. The General Secretary of the Association is the director of the employment bureau.

For the semester just about to close, the records of the office show that 24 men have been directed to permanent employment that will yield them the equivalent of $500, and 20 others have earned $150.00 in cash by doing odd jobs in vacant hours.

This year a system of reporting the value of work done was inaugurated, and given an exact record. It does not, however, include other employment secured directly as a result of faithful performance of work arranged by the bureau.

The applicants are almost entirely first year men, as after the first year a man is able to take care of himself. No reliable information as to the total number of students earning money while in school is available though a conservative estimate would place it at several hundred.

The policy is to help those most in need first. It is all given, and given freely, regardless of membership in the Association. This splendid work is carried on so quietly that many students hardly know there is a bureau. There is no blustering of trumpets, but a service is done constantly, whose value to students and the University can scarcely be overestimated.

A representative in the legislative delegation of Michigan will introduce a bill this week, which will seek to increase the revenues of the University on a basis of one-half mill, instead of a quarter. The University of Michigan now receives about $45,000 a year, and to double the proposed bill it would secure over $90,000.
