THE MARCH AND MATTERS MILITARY

CADETS WILL NOT STARVE WHILE ON MARCH.

Two Cooks Will Cater to Tastes of Situation—Much Ammunition on Hand.

The march of the iteration is not so very many weeks off, occurring, May 24 and 25, and with it comes the question, what are we going to eat? The march of uniformed men to many the thought of a diet of haversack and current bread, but the idea of fare for the cadets on these days will be for more auspicious. There will be no simple supply of everything wholesome, and there will be two equal cooks, who will cater to the tastes of the literary petitioners of the blue and the gray. Some of the cadets have made their known their that each man cool his own food, but it was thought that the majority would want off for these few days, has passed, while the majority would not care to entertain the dishes that they originated. The department has a large quantity of ammunition on hand. There are 1,500 rounds of blank cartridges and 3,000 of ball cartridges, all of which are from the front line area. The ball cartridges are very carefully packed to avoid explosion, each box 1,200 cartridges which are packed in handcarriers containing sixty each. These handcarriers have a very small pocket to attached to it, so that if thrown over the shoulder or behind the back of the one who is engaged in large shooting. This is a time-waste and a very near conviction.

Colonel Weeks is waiting to hear from DAY Misses in regard to the men which he has asked from the state authorities. He wishes to obtain some time in season so that they may be set up and the cadets get acquainted with the pitching of the men in camp life before the march takes place.

Life-Saving Chains in Place—Will Serve at Warning and as Life-Saving Apparatus.

The tragedy at the old Terrill dam last year has led to the taking of precautions by the University. From the Burlington street bridge just above the dam, there have been suspended about one hundred street steel chains, four feet between each two. The chains hang about eighteen inches above the surface of the water, thus avoiding being frozen in the stream in winter weather.

This provides for the safety of swimmers or canoeists. The person or persons in distress can grasp a chain and pull themselves from chains to chain to the shore. At night, the chains will warn boaters that they are near the dam, as the chains will either boost or catch in it and are tenacious to them the need of prompt action.

To arouse interest in folklore.

Professors Wilson and Fisk asked to read papers at meeting in Davenport in port of May.

The American Folk-Lore society is striving hard to arouse the interest of the country in folklore—the folk-lore of our ancestors across the water. Mr. Edward K. Putnam of Davenport has been requested to further the interests of folklore in Iowa, and he is busy in preparing a program for a meeting to be held in Davenport about the middle of May.

The Dean of the University will be represented as Professor Charles Bundy Wilson has been asked to read a paper on German folklore and Professor Fisk will probably present a paper on Scandinavian folklore.

THE WAITING HABIT

Most men cherish the notion that sooner or later they are going to" be important." They have the longer desire to "coed" and they intend to get lucky—after waiting. The waiting habit is all that stands between a lot of splendid business men. Frustration is a common ailment of the world to-day. Ambition, a splendid thing, is often thwarted by the idea of waiting. Most men are prosperous because they have something besides waiting. For years, they have been建造 or organizing something. They have worked, fought and jockeyed. It is with the idea of one fashioned thing that the waiting habit is all that stands between a lot of splendid business men. It is necessary to find a solution that will prevent frustration and instead of merely wishing for it, civilization would no longer be possible with that much waiting and a physically suppressed man despised, through lack of knowledge, to obteness and its consequences. Ambition can be realized without working until a moderate purpose to achieve. You may desire so eagerly to better yourself; but the mere desire will profit you nothing. There must be action. Getting down to business, what have you done to realize your ambition? Have you matched the barrier before you? Have you matched the rocks of difficulty? Have you acquired the power of knowledge, without which you to so help others? You are, as an individual, a success only if you are, as a human being, a success. You have the right to expect your own success, just as you have the right to expect the success of others. You will do this if you" choose the right road. In the race of life, it is not the man with the right stuff who wins, but the man who has the right stuff. Your winning is to be the result of your long and patient effort.
