Hoot! Mon! Did Ye See It?

How the Little Minister Won His Bride.

Dynamic Club Wins Unqualified Praise With Its Presentation of the Beacon Scott Play.

The little minister held forth to a large congregation, but everything was carried off with a swell. The quaintness and everlast- ing attractiveness of those elders was joy from beginning to end, while the performance... and added by the French musical, Mlle Allie, and Miss Mervyn, who presented the play off Broadway last week. The star parts carried by Miss Ruth Bell and Mr. Will Hess, were in the manner of a master stroke and delight of the audience. Mr. Hess made his interpretations of the boy- using minister very convincing and Miss Bell's charming stage presence was never shown to better advantage. Those boys, girls, and elderly folk, were truly heraldic. The special scenery added a little bit of extra effect of the play. And the same amount of excitement and progress was evident in every detail of the production. That is, the realism of the work that had been approved after the performance, and the performance was so convincing that the eyes of faithful spectators were not taken in. The play did not... right before you sleep.

The QUINTANGULAR DEBATE.

The Decision Elsewhere—Notables Like Iowa. Get It in the Central Region.

Five Universities debated the railway question last Friday night. Northwestern and Wisconsin won both the affirmative and affirmative sides of the question. Northwestern lost to Minnesota and Iowa to Wyoming. Each team was prepared to answer the question, which each visiting team defended the day after. At the end of four years the "central" will have been complete.

The affirmative side was generally considered the harder side, and, so... the lost to won are especially forlorn. James Denier of the Iowa to press sport, and Professor J. C. Wilson acted as judges in the North-Western debate at Lincoln, Wis. J. Byum presiding.
