THE INVASION OF MINNESOTA

WHAT THE BALL TEAM THINKS OF THE TRIP.

Next Two Games Ought to Be Ours.
—Batting Must Be Improved.

The base ball team returned Monday night from the Minnesota trip, which turned out rather disastrous both in games and from a financial viewpoint. Owing to bad weather only two games out of the four scheduled were played and owing to a remarkable hitting slump, both of these were lost. However, Coach Storey expects Iowa to win the next two games at Ames this coming Friday, and Nebraska here next Tuesday. The team is right up on its toes and anxious to make up for those three lost games.

In view of the sharp hitting the team did against Rock Island, the batting slump taken lately has been quite remarkable. All of the Rock Island pitchers were compelled to get right down and work to keep the hits scattered and the Varsity succeeded in slapping them out even then. Coach Storey attributes this falling off in hitting to over anxiety and a little overconfidence. In the series with the leaguers every man was hitting very carefully. In the college games since then the hitters have walked up to the plate with the supreme confidence of tearing a board off the back fence and as a result have been swinging at most anything.

Ames has a good fast team and a clever south paw pitcher. Nebraska always plays ball. If Iowa can win these two she will have no trouble with the rest of her schedule. All the men came back from the Minnesota trip in fine shape and were able to meet the customary greeting of "What's the matter with you fellows?" in extremely good nature.

CORNELL MEET SATURDAY.

Freshmen will Meet the Methodists in Dual Meet on Iowa Field.

With the home meet over, the Varsity men have settled back in the monotony of faithful training for the state meet. The freshmen, however, are training to get into prime condition at a much earlier date, as the dual meet with Cornell college takes place next Saturday.

Considering the showing of the freshmen in the home meet, there seems little doubt that the first year men will make a good showing against the visitors. The meet will give the followers of athletics on track and field a chance to get a line on Iowa's prospects for future years, next year especially. It is expected that the freshmen will surpass their records of Saturday against Cornell as they should be at the fighting point in condition.

Among the many festivities of commencement week will be a reunion of the class of 1905. It will take the form of a picnic breakfast, on the morning of June 11. The class will assemble on the steps of Liberal Arts hall at 6:30 a. m.

Mrs. Starbuck's musical evenings will be postponed until Wednesday, May 22.

THE EGAN PRIZE.

Arrangements Have Been Made By Donor to Make it Permanent.

When Mr. Egan awarded his prize of $20 to the successful orator this year he expressed himself so well pleased with the contest that he intended to make the prize permanent. In pursuance of his promise he wrote to Professor Gordon recently, and the letter is given in full below.

My Dear Professor Gordon.—I beg to inform you that I have taken the necessary steps to insure the perpetuity of the "Egan Prize" from year to year. This will, you understand, as per my statement, when I was last with you, will include in addition to the $20 prize money, whatever additional amount shall be necessary to hold the final contest, in order that no admission will be charged. I have been away from my office most of the time since I saw you and hence the delay in the arrangements and notification.

I beg to remain yours for the advancement and well being of the work.

GEORGE W. EGAN.

SONS OF IOWA RETURN TO THE FOLD

MANY OF THE MEDICAL ALUMNI ARE HERE.

Clinics are Crowded.—Guests Speak at Assembly.—Partial List of Visitors.

The big meeting of medical alumni opened on schedule time yesterday morning, when Dean Guthrie, at nine o'clock, gave the university's guests the assurance of a hearty welcome.

The response was made by Dr. Dorr, of the Iowa Medical Journal, as Dr. Saunders, the alumni president had not yet arrived. Immediately after the opening ceremonies came the university assembly, which was attended by the medical men. Dr. Aikin, of Nebraska, Dr. Creighton, and Dr. Furst, of Kansas, were the assembly speakers. After assembly papers were read in the medical building by Drs. Rockwood, Albert and McClintock After dinner, Dr. Guthrie, Dr. Aikin, and Dr. Biering gave clinics which were all crowded, and which took up the most of the afternoon.

The evening meeting was held in the auditorium of Liberal Arts. Dean Guthrie formally presented the portrait of the late John C. Shrader, and President MacLean accepted it for the university. The principal feature of the evening, was the address by Dr. Ravenal on the "Modern View of Tuberculosis, and the Role of Sanatoria." The technical nature of the subject and the limits of our space prevent a detailed account of this address, but it was of the most compelling interest; not only on account of what was said, but because of the great authority of the speaker.

Considerably over a hundred alumni are in attendance, probably more will register today. A fairly complete list of visitors, made from the registers late yesterday afternoon is appended.

SESSION OF FORENSIC COUNCIL

NO PERMANENT COACH FOR NEXT YEAR.

Lecture Course to Be Given Next Year.—Amendments to N. O. L. Constitution Discussed.

By the action of the board of regents at their recent meeting there will be no permanent coach in debating for the coming year. This is in conformity with the rule laid down to meet the continued financial stringency that no addition be made to the instructional staff of the college of Liberal Arts.

At a meeting of the Forensic Council yesterday afternoon it was decided to secure a temporary coach for the next year who could assist in the work during the time, October 15 to December 13, when the final teams are in preparation.

A committee consisting of Professor E. A. Wilcox as chairman, and Messrs. Ritz and Field was appointed, the members of which together with Professor Gordon, are to devise ways and means for promoting this matter. Already two men who are eminently fitted for the place are under consideration and such an appointment will undoubtedly be made.

A large number of other matters were disposed of at this meeting, the most important of which are the following:

It was decided to give a popular lecture and concert course during the next academic year of five numbers, the character of which will be announced in the near future. This lecture course will take the place of the one offered in recent years under the auspices of Mr. W. I. Atkinson, and will be for the benefit of the league.

A number of amendments were adapted for recommendation to the league at its annual meeting in Madison, on Friday next. Also Mr. H. H. Hoar was recommended for the position of treasurer of the league, which holds its annual meeting in this city next year.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. George W. Egan, an alumnus of the university, for his kindness in providing a permanent prize for the sophomore oratorical contest.

TENTS ARE SET UP BY BATTALION.

Cadets Very Proficient in First Principles of Camp Life.—Good Crowd Looks On.

Before a good sized crowd last evening, the university battalion set up the tents that they will use on their practice march this week. The tents were deftly put up and then with men stationed at different points about the tents, some holding the ropes, the canvas was let down simultaneously, all of them striking the ground at the same moment.

This exercise of the cadets was like clock work, and if it is a sample of their performances of routine duties, the university battalion will make the regular army and the national guard look to their honors.

All the cadets are in a state of excitement over the near approach of the practice march. Every one is hankering for a taste of the real army life and it is the purpose of Colonel Weeks to let them have it.

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

The announcement that we are to have a debating coach for only a part of next fall comes as an unpleasant surprise, after all that has been said and done this fall. There is not a student who took part in the movement to consolidate debating who did not think that a permanent coach would be elected; that was one of the advantages for which the new league was formed. After being allowed to believe that such a coach would be provided, the students are now told that there are no funds available for his support.

The temporary coach is a far different thing from the regular coach who was virtually promised in the negotiations last fall. His usefulness will be narrowly limited by the shortness of his stay; he will hardly have time to get acquainted and can do practically nothing toward building future teams; his time will all be taken up with the immediate work of getting the contest teams ready. It was certainly no such official that the Zets and Irvings had in mind when they conceded what the university asked last fall.

Student management of debate has always been in favor here. The idea of faculty interference has always been resented. Yet to secure a broader representation in forensics, and certain other advantages that were represented to the old league, the societies composing it yielded the principle they had always stood up for. One of the express grounds upon which they consented to abandon the old system was that the university furnish a debating coach; they were allowed to think that this would be done, and changed their position unalterably on the strength of the implied promise. Now it is said that finances prevent carrying out the plan. There is a startling difference between the pessimism of the present and the optimistic representations of last fall.

Good faith and square dealing are just as desirable to the university and its students as between man and man. The dignity of the academic robe cannot sanctify the breaking of a promise. It is not the purpose of this article to insinuate that any member of the faculty or the senate has deliberately made misrepresentations. But it is evident that some one must have been very careless with promises.

If it is desired to retain the good will of the student body for the new league, it is up to the administration to deliver the goods.

Professor Smith's Lecture.

The closing number of the Physics public lecture course was given last evening by Professor A. G. Smith, his subject being "The Weather." In opening, the elements of weather were given as temperature, humidity, winds, cloudiness, precipitation and barometric pressure. The chief controls of weather changes were enumerated: 1. Variation in heat received during the day and night; 2. Variation in heat received in different seasons of the year. 3. The passage of cyclonic and anti-cyclonic areas, with their smaller storm areas. 4. The passage of irregular belts of pressure and temperature. The cyclone, in the correct use of the word, is an area of low barometric pressure traveling across the country at the rate of many hundred miles a day. It is characterized by winds blowing in toward its center, the whole motion being against the hands of a watch. They make us experience more or less violent disturbances in precipitation, temperature and wind, although it is to be noted that the cyclone of the meteorologist is not the violent storm which ought to go by the name of tornado.

General weather phenomena of the United States were taken up by the lecturer, cold waves in particular being discussed. The northwest part of the country has a cold wave on an average once every five days. They originate mostly in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and slide down the Mississippi valley in accordance with the natural tendency of things to slide down hill. Were the Rocky Mountains stretched east and west across our northern boundary we would have a climate like that of Italy, and a cold wave would be a rarity instead of being the regular thing.

The lecture was illustrated with lantern slides.

Our dark Oakford cravey at $15 is the biggest value ever offered in the state. Cut with the wide shoulders, big sweep of skirt, hangs straight, weighs only about three pounds and keeps you dry and warm. That's because the air goes through but the wet doesn't. Our $17.50 cravey is a little better cloth, a little finer, more hand work in the fronts and shoulders, but no better style. Our $20 coats are the pick of the market. Twenty dollars is easy money for a fine rain coat and we have them going, all right. I think a genuine Priestly cravenette is the bestbuy for a spring topper because you know we're likely to have some webfoot weather in April and your cravey is equally good for early fall and late spring. And the dandy coat for evenings. Mugsy.

Minnesota's team work was better than expected, only one error being made. In the field the consistent work of Captain Caldwell and Dretchko added strength to the Gophers. The Iowans are a fast aggregation, but failed to bunch their hits off Dretchko. In the ninth Kent brightened the Hawkeye's prospects by leading off with a two-bagger; but fast fielding on Minnesotas part kept him from scoring. Yesterday's game showed that Minnesota has found a strong competitor for base ball honors.
