BAOCALAAULREATE SERMON TODAY

At four o’clock in the Armory.

Eloquent Methodist Bishop will deliver methodist consecration to form on Clinton street.

At 3:40 o’clock this afternoon, the procession will be formed to march down to the Armory, where the Bishop will already take place beginning at four o’clock. Caps and gowns are to be worn by the procession as they make their way down the line to be formed at the corner of Clinton and Jefferson streets.

The University Orchestra will open the exercises with Haendel’s “Elegy.” After the singing of a hymn, Rev. Benedict will make the invocation. Rev. Clark will read the scripture, and will be followed by an anthem by the Verger Chorus. The baccalaureate sermon will then be delivered by the Reverend William Fraser McDowell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. McDowell was at one time chancellor of the University of Denver, he is reputed to be one of the most eloquent clergymen in America today.

The President of the University will deliver a baccalaureate message to the candidates for degrees, and Rev. Leach will then dismiss the people with the benediction.

Professor Gilbert Resigns.

Will Go to the University of Illinois here until August.

Professor Barry Gilbert will teach contracts and equity in the college of law of the University of Illinois next year. He has already resigned here, and accepted the position at Champaign. A very satisfactory arrangement was made to him by the Illinois people, and his work here will be somewhat lessening. A petition was circulated among the law students, asking of the Board of Regents that enough of an increase might be made in the professor’s salary.

Denio and Mullin both pitched fine ball, Mullin having one bad inning against George Washington University, at Washington, D. C., is about to organize a college of the Political Sciences, and has offered Professor Shambaugh the chair of Political Science.

and made some exceptional stops around the third sack. Murphy, the third-sacker for the Phi Delta, needs special mention. Both for his base-running and batting. In five times at bat, Murphy was hit by pitcher twice, passed once and fanned out twice: he also stole seven bases during the game. Heath made a sensational catch at second, making a double unassisted.

The much-conversed matter of the script has been adjusted by the purchase of a pullaway, a huge leather shield infused with air like an overgrown basketball. It is twenty feet in circumference, and stands a little more than six feet high. This will be the bone of contention in the annual contests in which spectators and freshmen try to find out which are the better men. No better price than $200 could be secured. The contest next fall will be watched with much interest.

Wise Talks by the Office Boy

My boss is no doubt one of the best natured men he ever knew. He says: it’s just as easy to do business with a smile on your face as a frown. When I first came to work here there was a lot of man in the store every day to tell him a funny story, and every time he sat down the folks in the story seemed because we moved our counters so often. Well, sir, you’d thought the old man wouldn’t kick, too, but he did. He just walked behind the underwear counter and removed his back against the edge. He told me not as a customer terrifies. I think he does the funniest things. Yesterday he went and marked the new Count shirt—the very newest patterns—at $5.99 per. I told him every one else in town was getting $2.98 for them, but he said, Mugger, we will not lose any money on those shirts, and our customers will make some. That’s just like him. We’ve got a lot of nice life underwear that every man sells for $1.50 and $1.75, but he insists on selling it for a dollar. It’s the same with our $1.00 hats. The hat men were telling him to raise the in real and should get $1.50 and $3.00 for our hats, but he says no. They are cheaper than they are better than they were last season. He’s the same with school uniforms. Full of suits marked 3.06, reduced to 2.00. That’s the way he did well, and he sells the more than a quarter. Come in and get acquainted.
