Girls Enthusiastic Over Contest in Forensic Circles—To Have Good Audiences

A 10-year-debate—in fact, two of them! The next forensic event scheduled is a double-head ed and strangely enough this unusual combination is set down for the start of March. "Dancing the Whirlie" were the statements of an inter- society debater yesterday. "I can't stand the idea of their preliminary scrap on that special date. The Zetaetians will be the victors in the "Meanwhile, the Zeta-Phi battle will be fought in the arena; the "Living-Mortals in the lecture room of the Hall of Labor Arts."

An enthusiastic Husarian was evoked to an 18-year-old girl yesterday. "Girls, have you heard the news? Then that is the first 10-year-debate in the history of the University! The boys are not allowed to take the girls, but the girls are to take the boys. And we are going to see who can get the biggest crowd. With the debates going on the girls working together, we'll be able to have the other crowd who will have only the Erodolphians to work for. But then there are two girls in the College of Law. They might invite the whole college to attend the other debate. So, get a hustle on, girls; and choose your partners for the 10-year-debate and show the boys so that they will know how to do things next year."

"I do not know the answer myself. But if the debate interferes with the students' interests, the debaters of the 10-year-ninth will face the most disastrous audience ever assembled to hear a local debate," said a University professor yesterday.

PROFESSOR B. F. SHAMBROGH

Those who are familiar with the history of the State Historical Society of Iowa are inclined to wonder at the rapid advance made by this society in the last seven years. For years after its establishment by the legislature the society was poorly housed in upper rooms about town, poorly lighted, poorly arranged, and presented an appearance of suspended animation on election to state the highest standard by students, scholars and public men all over the country.

The moving spirit of this rapid growth has been Professor Benjamin F. Shambaugh, head of the Department of Political Science of the State University of Iowa and the present superintendent and editor of the State Historical Society.

Benjamin F. Shambaugh is a native of Iowa, being born near Elsberry, Clinton county, Iowa, on January 29, 1851. His parents were pioneers, having come to Iowa in 1854. In September, 1868, he entered the collegiate department of the University of Iowa. He was very active in school life, being a leading member of the Zetagathian Society, one of the editors of the Vidette-Reporter, and later editor-in-chief of the S. U. I. C.G.

He received his baccalaureate degree from the University in 1867 and his master degree in 1869. After the completion of his University courses he entered the University of Pennsylvania, where he held a Wharton School Fellowship for two years. In 1893 he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from that institution. After receiving his degree he went abroad and studied in Halle and Berlin during the remainder of the year.

In June, 1895, he was elected by the Board of Regents Instructor in Political Science in the University of Iowa. The following January he entered upon his work. Six months later he was advanced to the assistant professorship, and, in June, 1897, promoted to the Chair of Government and Administration. Three years later, at the time of the establishment of the School of Political Science, he was made Professor and head of the Department of Political Science.

NOTED VIOLIST TO APPEAR MONDAY

Favorable Comment on the Great Skovgaard

He has a Priceless Stradivarius—Considered an Excellent Company

Following is the comment of the Chicago Record-Herald on Skovgaard, the noted violinist, who appears here Monday night:

"Skovgaard, a priceless Stradivarius and a concert company of excellent musicianship, scored a notable triumph at the Chicago Auditorium last night. It was a performance remarkable further for the number of the program. Once in a while there are concerts that the average person can enjoy, and this was one of them, but at the same time it appealed with especial beauty to those whose musical education enabled them to comprehend the beauty of the harmony and delicacy of the tone shading as admirably brought out by the great violinist and his able assistants."

It was an enthusiastic audience that greeted the noted Danish Violinist. A man of commanding presence, gentle temperament, confident of his own power and the resources of his unsurpassed instrument, Skovgaard carries his audience through the various moods and fancies of his playing without the least difficulty.

"That full-flowed, resonant tone, rich and pure, which the old 'Strad' gave forth during the entire performance will linger with the delighted lovers of the violin for many years."—Della'Sevada was an excellent number. In Lois Davidson the concert received added strength. Her work last evening was that of an artist of high merit, both as an accompanist and as a soloist. Melba's, Eleanor Olson, and not found wanting in the least. "The vocal numbers were given by Eleanor Olson, the Norwegian prima donna. She was a favorite of her first appearance in the arts from Samson and Delilah, Saint-Saens, which she sang with a palette and a masterly most artistic. She was especially good in Godard's Berceuse from Jec- cyn, with violin obligato by Skovgaard."

Outlines Are Published

The department of education and the department of psychology have just completed a set of outlines of the work for the State Board of Educational Examiners. Under the new certification law, the work in psychology and education given in the university are taken as the standard for the graduate. Many inquiries from individuals and from colleges come to the university and to the State Superintendence concerning the scope and plan of these courses. According to the State Board of Educational Examiners requested the heads of these departments to prepare outlines of their work with full references. These have just been completed and will be published soon by the State Superintendent. Professor Britton has outlined his courses on principles of education, childhood and adolescence, methodology, and psychology. Professor Durcus has outlined his work with the greater power and some other noted Danish teacher on general psychology. These are certain to be of great value to students pursuing the subjects and will help to set a standard for work in these subjects throughout the state.
