GOOD ARGUMENTS FOR A WOMAN'S BUILDING

Secretary H. L. Heimann Advocates Structure

Outlines Convincing Reasons for It's Stand—Need—Concentrated Iowa Spirit

"I am heartily in favor of a woman's building," said Secretary Harry Heimann of the Y. M. C. A. to an Iowa reporter yesterday. "It is essential to the growth of the University of Iowa. For several years the denominational schools of the state have been fighting the State University on the grounds that it has not the proper religious and moral influence over its students. This has been easily proven a mistake but the attitude of the Iowa girl toward the University takes comparatively little precedent in looking after the welfare of its girls. In these denominational schools are found many girls of the kind we should like to have and it is probable that such a building would be here now if there were proper headquarters provided for them.

"Firstly, then, we need a Iowa woman's building from the standpoint of the Greater University, and of University extension.

"The girls who are in the University now are very anxious to have such a building and from the standpoint of the membership of this university, for their welfare, their comfort and their pleasure, a woman's building is desirable."

"But the greatest point in favor of a building of such character is the moral influence that it would have in the lives of the girls. It is not won nor right that girls from the best families in the state should come here and have to depend on themselves to find suitable homes. A home for girls should be furnished here just as the classrooms are furnished. It is more possible to provide a place to sleep than a place to recline.

"The building should be placed under the management of a Dean of Women. It should not be compulsory that the girls live there but the building should be made so attractive as benevolent and pleasant that every girl would want to be there.

"The thing which is necessary is an appreciation such as a woman's building is the concentrated Iowa spirit with students, faculty, alumni and patrons all working toward the same end. We should think of our women as a unit and not as separate individuals."

BOLT0N ON TO WASHINGTON

TO ATTEND A NATIONAL MEETING OF STATE SUPERINTENDENTS THERE

"Will Do Much Work"

After the recent Illinois conference, Dr. Bolton, located at the school of Education, will spend several days inspecting the administration and operation of township high schools in Illinois and Indiana. From there he will go to Washington, D.C. upon a special invitation of the commission of education to be present at the national meeting of state superintendents and discuss the question, "Of Having Time and Energy in School Work."

The remainder of his week will be spent at the bureau of education, where he will seek out everything that may light upon the great task which he and his colleagues have before them. From Washington, he will likely proceed to Ohio, New York and Massachusetts for further research and investigation on school systems and legislation.

"The educators of Iowa are much pleased with the efforts of State Superintendents Riggs which received the appointment of the commission and with the selection of Dr. Bolton as its chairman, says the Des Moines Daily Capital."

Princeton like the University of Iowa is agitating and the Daily Princetonian gives some excellent arguments for such an organization, many of which apply to the University. A part of the editorial is in part as follows: "The club as its name implies would exist for all members of the University, faculty and students alike, and in its rooms, its library and lounges, they would be thrown together as would the upperclassmen and underclassmen; and as greater homogeneity would be created in the undergraduate body so would it be created in the whole University, until the name of Princeton would carry with it the idea of absolute unity. Thus a greater intimacy would grow up between the undergraduates and faculty members and the principle of fellowship would be hardened into an absolute and concrete fact. In this way the University Club would act along lines parallel with the collegiate system and exert influence in developing it. And if this way the organization of a great world college was to be put up on a great educational system and help develop Princeton into the greatest institution of learning in the country, have we not another argument in favor of the University Club.

The high school of Avoca is in excellent condition, and while the University is not represented in the faculty, there is a cordial feeling towards the institution. The superintendent, M. L. Cronkite, is capable, and energetic, and in the future as it is in the past, well prepared students may be expected from Avoca.

The University is well represented in the professional and business life of Polkawatamic county’s eastern capital. Among the physicians, Dr. Geo. A. Spaulding, ‘86, holds a prominent place. Dr. Spaulding has a fine office in a very desirable part of the city, has comfortable private interests, and with his little family, a wife and three children, is ready to vote life a success.
