THE WISCONSIN SCHOLARSHIP

Contributions of the Charities of the University of Wisconsin and Its Graduates

By Dr. C. C. Van Houten

The Wisconsin and Iowa will meet on the gridiron next fall. In such an affair as this it is not possible to omit a mention of the other schools.

The Wisconsin and Iowa will be the only two schools in which the game will be played.

WISKE TALKS BY THE OFFICE BOY

Say, fellows I'm back on the job. They had another kid working in my place for a short spell but his vocabulary wasn't rich enough for a college town, so I was hired over and again you can lay bets I have a line of slang in my chap book that will make the Sophists up and notice things. You watch my spell on Spring bugs if you want the straighten lurch ☆ions, because I've been dipping on clothing tables and packing in tight quarters since East Coast & States. That's why I'm back here, and let me give you a quiet tip—Iowa city hereafter is good enough for me. Have you seen the new Spring stock?

ISAC ALTHAUS LOOS

Professor Isaac A. Loos, director of the School of Political and Social Science, was born at Upper Borm, Penn., December 6, 1856. He received his early education in the public schools of Upper Borm and from 1873 to 1875 attended Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Penn. In 1875 he was graduated from Oberlin University, Wadsworth, Ohio, with the degree of B. A., and from the same school received his M. A. degree in 1877.

From 1877 to 1880 Professor Loos pursued graduate studies at Yale University. In 1880 he was married and for one year did graduate work in College d'e France, Paris. The ensuing year, he was engaged in similar work at Leipzig University.

Returning to this country in 1884, Professor Loos was given the position of Professor of History and Political Science at Western College, Toledo, Ohio. In 1890 he came to the University of Iowa, and on the founding of the School of Political and Social Science in 1903 was made its director.

Professor Loos is a member of the American Economic Association, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the American Sociological Society. He is also an associate editor of the Economic Bulletin published by the American Economic Association and is the author of various works on political science, chief among which is his book of "Studies in the Politics of Aristotle and Socrates."
The Cravat Idea

The Cravat Idea is not modern; some of the styles are changing with every season, and others with every degree. Our good old incisors clear back in the time of Queen Elizabeth adopted a decoration for the neck in the form of the well known starched ruff, which is an extreme effect, outside anything since it's time. The ladies do not wear cravats generally, but they recognize the importance of giving their throats the best appearance possible by wearing bands and shirt collars.
