"Raymond claims that nothing can be accomplished without a system and he has thoroughly demonstrated to the public of Iowa City the truth of his statement. He has a large class of business men and a large class among the younger men.

Big Game of Year Will Be Played Tomorrow

Hawkeys and Scarlet and Black Meet in Deeding Game at Grinnell

To best Grinnell on the home floor of the Scarlet and Black team. This is a still proposition that the Hawkeye quintette must meet tonight at Grinnell in an effort to win the state intercol legiate championship of the state. Throughout the year Grinnell has been unbeatable on their home floor, and this is up against the feintest chance of the year to pull out a victory. Besides the disadvantage of the strong ring, Iowa will have to play the Amateur Athletic Union teams instead of the Collegiate. This is a disadvantage to the Iowa men whose style of play is particularly adapted to the latter kind of game.

It is certain that the game will be no such runaway as the last contest at Grinnell. The Iowa squad has improved vastly in form and there is some hope that the championship will yet come to Iowa. However the Grinnell team is in the top-notch form of the season and will play the game of their lives on Friday having every incentive and every advantage to win.

If the games with Nebraska afforded a basis of comparison the advantage would be with Grinnell. However, they can not be counted upon however as the Cornshocks were not in condition to play that season. Either Iowa or Grinnell, especially in the latter game, and little can be drawn from their shewing.

If the Grinnell game will not be as strange to the Hawkeyes as to the Nebraska's because of the game of a few weeks ago.

The varsity practice since the Nebraska game has been the hardest of the year and Coach Grubb is making every possible effort to put the team in shape to win the real intercollegiate game of the season. Norton and Burkeheim are fighting hard for the forward place. The power of the man who gets it will be playing in great form. The other members of the team are all in excellent shape and there is not much break in the luck on the benches, the Hawkeyes will make a fight tonight for the championship of Iowa.
Charles Bundy Wilson, head of the department of German Language and Literature in the State University of Iowa, was born in New York in 1861 of German-American stock. His maternal grandmother, however, was a member of the distinguished Van Buren family of Holland from which President Martin Van Buren came. On competitive examination Mr. Wilson received a scholarship of the value of five hundred dollars in Cornell University for four years. On graduation with B.A. he was one of eight members of his class to be elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and was later appointed fellow in modern languages. He received M.A. from Cornell in German, Gothic, and French philology. In 1884-85 he was a student in Leipzig and in 1887 in Berlin, and a later trip to Germany was devoted to the investigation of dialects. He was called from Europe to a position on the German staff of his alma mater where he taught until he accepted a professorship in the State University in Iowa in 1889.

Some of the positions held by Professor Wilson are as follows: vice-president of the Modern Language Association of America, 1901; president of the Central Division of the Modern Language Association, 1909; one of four members of editorial committee of Modern Language Association since 1905; secretary of the Central Division of the Modern Language Association since 1905; president of the Iowa Branch of the American Folk-Lore Society. He has also been elected to membership in the American Dialect Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and Atlantic Union and Viking Society of London. He has published several German textbook, the most successful being college editions of Lessing's Minna von Barnhelm and Freytag's Die Journalismus. He is a contributor to periodicals in America, Germany, England, and Italy, and has a large circle of acquaintances among European scholars.

Professor Wilson has taken special interest in Roumania and numbers among his correspondents Clement Sylva Queen of Roumania, and Haine Vacaresco, a distinguished Roumanian author and the Queen's favorite court lady. He has received from the Roumanian court an expression of gratitude and a large circle of acquaintances among European scholars.
