The three games are all vital to the future of the Delta Sigma Rho fraternity, as they are expected to be a deciding factor in the future growth and success of the organization.

To explain the decline of the fraternity as a national honor society is a complex issue, but it is believed that the factors contributing to this decline are a combination of internal and external issues.

Theיקר to the decline is the lack of interest and involvement from the members. Many of the members have lost interest in the fraternity, which has led to a decrease in the number of active members. Additionally, the fraternity's leadership and governance have also contributed to the decline.

The External factors that have contributed to the decline are the changing landscape of college fraternities and the increasing pressure from other social groups. The fraternity's traditional values and practices are no longer seen as relevant by many students, which has led to a decrease in interest.

To reverse this trend, the fraternity must address both internal and external issues. The fraternity must work to engage more members and increase their involvement, while also adapting to the changing landscape of college fraternities.

The fraternity's leaders are committed to reversing the trend and restoring the fraternity's glory. They are working to revitalize the fraternity and bring it back to its former strength.

In conclusion, the decline of the Delta Sigma Rho fraternity is a complex issue, but it is one that can be reversed with the right effort and commitment. The fraternity's leaders are committed to reversing the trend and restoring the fraternity to its former glory. They are working to engage more members and increase their involvement, while also adapting to the changing landscape of college fraternities.
A young fellow was talking his girl the other night that he did anything in the world to make her happy. "If you mean it, George, for goodness sake, go home and let me go to bed." It's a blooming shame to keep a nice girl from getting her "beauty sleep." If a chap wants to be a sleeping beauty himself, he should wear Faultless night robes or pajamas. They're not only beauties, but they're good stuff. You can buy real good nighties at 50c and 75c and when you pay $1.00 to $1.50, you get the sweetest for your money. Pajamas cost a little more, but they're a regular sort of clothes. We have some nice OXford ones as low as $1.50 a suit, and for $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00, you get some cutters. Then we've got the sure enough nill ones. This is the sure time to get into a nice pair of pajamas when the nights are warming up and there is temptation to sit around in your clothes. Don't forget pajamas are a lot cheaper than cold breakers and so awfully comfortable.

“BUCK” HARTER

Minnesota's representative in the great contest for oratorial honors in the middle west is an all-round man. He holds enough working positions to keep several men busy. He is managing editor of the Minnesota Daily, Manager of the Dramatic Club, and member of the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet. An unprejudiced observer might conclude that Mr. Hart is not devoting much time to his studies; but to crown his record, he is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

PROFESSOR POTTER WRITES LATIN BOOK

A Book For Beginners in Gotten Out by Faculty Member

Professor Potter's new Latin book for beginners is just out from the Sanborn Company's press, and promises an attractive appearance. The advance sheets and the Introduction to Caesar, which is bound back with the beginners' book and separately, have met with a very flattering reception by teachers in many schools where they have been used.

Professor Potter has spent much time and care in the preparation of this book and has embodied in it many of the results of his own successful experience, and it seems likely to win much favor even in a field already overcrowded with beginners' Latin books. It is attractive in conception, arrangement and typography and is thoroughly worthy of wide adoption.
