OUTSIDE THE WISCONSIN DEBATES in practically every department of debate, the University of Iowa defeated Nebraska, 4-0, at the National Debates in Auditorium. Professor R. E. Wilson, who was the chief of the debates, said the Iowa team was the strongest team he had ever seen.

The Iowa team consisted of George A. Luxford, leader, Clyde Robinson and Clarence F. Coulter.

The debate was on the proposition that the commission plan had failed and that the commission should be changed.

The conclusion of the debate was that the commission plan had failed and that the commission should be changed.

The Iowa team won the debate by a score of 4-0.

The debate was held in the Auditorium and was attended by a large audience.
Wise Talks
By the Office Boy

Since the end of football season, the faculty and students have found their afternoons free of the usual demands of the day's work. With the exception of the occasional meeting, when the members of the board or the faculty are always certain to come in for their share, failure cannot occur. These are the most relaxing moments, when the problem of leadership in general is considered. A vote of thanks from the dean of the student body, that is the present position, is also likely to be offered.
