From Other Colleges

W. H. Johnson of Worsworth.

The college the home of the secular student, has resigned. This action was prompted by his belief that the secular man has a better chance in the state than himself.

President Effert of Harvard makes vigorous and thoughtful defense of women students against the reported charge that they are "too feminine" for the American boy. He probably represents with other college presidents, that the financing press has not gone further, so far as he concerns many of his students, so for instance, those who painted at John Harvard's statue red and the other college students.

For the first time in several years the exposed status of athletics in Vermont is a healthy one. As result of her return to the athletic field.
