Governor Marshall of Indiana monthly addressed a bill passed by the legislature increasing the tax levy in the interest of the three state schools. He had been horrified to learn that there were resident students in these institutions whose education was costing the state of Indiana $10,000 a year.

A plan has been started at Cornell N. Y., to find "backers" on the problem for the institution.

The annual charge to students for all four of the University of Nebraska has been fixed to amount to about $1,000.
