ESPERANTO IS THEME OF WILSON'S PAPER

SAYS INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE IS NOW NEEDED.

Esperanto is Best Fitted to Serve As Auxiliary Language. Others Discussed.

Prof. Charles Bundy Wilson, head of the German department, read the principal paper on International Languages, at the regular meeting of the Humanist Society, held last evening at the home of Prof. E. D. Starbuck. Professor Wilson discussed the need of an international language, emphasizing the facts that the need is economic, not literary, and that the advocates of such a language have no thought of trying to displace one's native tongue.

An international language is needed in commerce, science, diplomacy, and to promote the brotherhood of man and universal peace. He showed why one of the natural languages, such as English, French, or German, could never become universal. Various attempts to establish an international language were set forth with their strong and weak points. One of the most interesting was the so-called "philosophical language," promulgated by Bishop Wilkins in 1688 and later by Don Sinibaldo. These men made about three thousand figures formed after the pattern of musical notes, and assigned each a certain meaning.

According to the interval in which the head of the note was placed, the some sign was to be taken as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb. Another system of syns expressed the gender, number, and case. This scheme, which bore a slight resemblance to stenographic systems was too elaborate for practical use. Prof. Wilson mentioned the ideographic system of the Chinese, and drew attention to the fact that we have, to a certain extent, an international language in the numerical figures, which are understood by peoples speaking different languages, and we have besides a universal system in such signs as plus and minus and a whole series in common use among mathematicians and astronomers. With this he compared the universal musical notation.

Professor Wilson has made a study of fourteen international languages, and he gave specimens from several. He believes Esperanto is best adapted to serve the purpose of an auxiliary language. He discussed Volapuk, Esperanto, and Ido in detail. An account was given of the recent International Esperanto Congress, held in Washington, D. C., which was attended by large numbers of delegates from twenty-two nations and thirty-five states. Prof. Wilson presented the conclusion of his paper in Esperanto. He is a member of the Esperanto Association of North America, of which Mr. John Barrett, director of the Bureau of American Republics, is the president.

SEVENTEEN STUDENTS COME FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Twelve Countries Are Represented In Cosmopolitan Club.

There are seventeen students at the University of Iowa who come foom foreign lands. This has developed from statistics issued by the registrar during the past week, preliminary to the organization of the Cosmopolitan Club of the university. Prof. L. G. Weld this year has charge of the organization of the unique institution and already is formulating plans for a successful season's work. The club will meet this year regularly every two weeks and discuss ions of various nature will be given. Each evening it is planned to have some member of the club tell of individual institutions of his country. This promises to be highly entertaining and at the same time instructive to a great degree.

With a membership of seventeen foreigners and from five to six residents of this country the Cosmopolitan Club of Iowa finds itself one of the strongest organizations of its kind in the middle west. Considerable talk has been made of nationalizing the Cosmopolitan institutions of the country to a better degree than now, and this plan may develope during the course of the current year.

No less than twelve countries are this year represented at the University of Iowa, including such far-away lands as Japan and India, even to Armenia and Cuba. The list of men follows:

Yervant H. Babasinian, Amyrna, Turkey; Taeka Bosh, Orange City, Ia.; Sudhindra Bose, Dacca, India; Acisclo Guevaro Bravo, Isabela, Porto Rico; Vincente Camporredondo, Vera Cruz, Mexico; Khitish Chandra, Chatterjee, Calcutta, India; Ju Hsiang Chen, Canton, China; Kashi Paty Chose, Calcutta, India; Misoo Hamashima, Tokyo, Japan; Mardiroo Hogopian, Harpoot, Turkey; Roger L. Justriniani, Jaro, Philipine Islands; Kenjaro Hori, Hachiman, Japan; Thaddeus A. Minassian, Sivas, Armenia; Dick, Mugerdick, Turkey; Kenichi Numa, Yamaguchi, Japan; Hiromu Tsuchiya, Osaka, Japan; Arnesto J. Vallardore, Havana, Cuba.

Philosophical Club.

The regular meeting of the Club will be held at the home of the Rev. Mr. Rowlin at 1010 Washington str., at eight o'clock Tuesday evening, October 25. A "William Janus" evening will constitute the program with brief talks by Prof. and Mrs. Starbuck, Prof. Learhon, Prof. King, Prof. Patrick, Rev. Mr. Loring, et. al. R. M. Stewart.

Should Send in Questions.

The literary societies should at once turn in the question which they wish to use in the championship debate, in order that the subject for the debate may be selected as soon as possible.

GREAT ASSOCIATION AT PURDUE---PAYS

PURDUE MAN TELLS OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION THERE

Is Way Out of Debt; and Students Take Much Interest In All Sports.

One of the men who accompanied the Purdue team to Iowa City and witnessed the downfall of the Boilermakers was C. O. Hays, the athletic editor of the Purdue Exponent. During his stay here he talked interestingly of the athletic situation at Purdue.

"Athletic Purdue has had little or no success in the major sport of football in the last few years," said Mr. Hays, "but that has not resulted as one would naturally think in disaster to the financial standing of the Purdue athletic association. Purdue at the present time has one of the best, if not the very best, athletic association in the entire Chicago conference.

"At the present time, after years of defeats in football the association is something like $10,000 to the good. This may seem remarkable, but it is true. This condition is brought about in a simple manner. A coupon book is sold at the beginning of the year to the students, containing 30 coupons. Each coupon is good for an athletic contest. The cost of the coupon is $5.00 to the students and $7.50 to the merchants. Many of the latter buy as many as 10 and give them to their employees.

"This system makes the income of the athletic association stable and large. It makes the attendance at all of the games of all kinds large and ensures university interest in all sports. There is practically as much interest in base ball and basket ball at Purdue as in football. Every student who buys a coupon book becomes a member of the athletic association, and the association as a whole transacts such important business as the granting of the letters to the athletes and the securing of the coaches."

To Study Insane.

A new laboratory of novel type is to be installed in the university in the near future. It is to be called a "paychopathic laboratory," and will be for the purpose of studying patients at the local hospitals who are supposed to be insane.

Dr. C. E. Seashore will have charge of the laboratory. He discussed the matter thoroughly this last week with the members of the state board of education at a committee meeting held in Des Moines this past week.

President Returns.

President and Mrs. McLean have returned from Rockville, Conn., where Madame McLean was buried. On the return trip, they visited a few days with his sister, Mrs. N. P. Lewis at Brooklyn, N. Y.

"GET AMES' GOAT—BA-A-A-A."

NO UPSETS LAST SATURDAY BIG TEAMS DO AS EXPECTED

Minnesota, Illinois, and Indiana in Race for Western Honors.

Football teams throughout the country ran true to form Saturday. Nobody surprised anyone else particularly, and the big elevens are standing today just about where the dopesters expected them to be.

In the west, the Chicago—Northwestern, and Indiana-Wisconsin battles came out about as expected. Minnesota and Illinois, two of the strongest teams in the conference, were idle, resting up for games to come. Iowa furnished the only conference surprise by trimming Purdue with much ease, and the man who said that Purdue would win by two touchdowns may have two more guesses.

Yale brought further joy to the sons of Johnny Harvard and corresponding gloom to her own supporters by playing a scoreless tie with the Vanderbilt team, which journeyed from Tennessee for the contest. If present dope runs true, the Blue has the weakest team in years, and is due for a severe drubbing from the strong Harvard eleven. The Crimson gained another victory Saturday, winning 12 to 0 from Brown, in a har fought contest.

State games showed beyond doubt that there are three strong teams in the running for the honors. Iowa, Drake, and Ames look almost equally strong just now, with Ames having the edge through the beating handed Missouri. Playing on the same field on which Iowa had been defeated 5 to 0 one week before, the Aggies won 6 to 5, and are rightfully held as favorites in the state race.

Drake put up a hard fight against Kansas, and the way in which the Blue and White is rounding into form makes it seem certain that Griffith's team will be able to battle Ames and Iowa on even terms when the time comes. Grinnell is also good this year, but is not generally given a look-in with the larger schools.

Kansas, Nebraska, and Ames are the only Missouri Valley teams left which are given a chance at the championship. One of these should be eliminated when the two first named get together for their annual game, and Ames will have a busy time winning from both Iowa and Drake. Missouri and Iowa have both been beaten, as has Drake, and Washington is not believed strong enough to defeat both Iowa and Missouri, both of which schools lie between it and a chance at the Valley title.

Enters Team.

The pharmacy department has decided to put a football team in the interdepartment gridiron race and have already elected a captain and manager. About twenty of the men have promised to report for first practice which will be held some time this week.

VARSITY REWARDED; WORK OF LIGHT KIND

COACH HAWLEY GIVES MEN LITTLE WORK.

Injuries to Thomas and Trickey Put Them Out of Game For Present Time.

Rest as a reward for work well done was handed out to Hawley's athletes on the Iowa gridiron yesterday. That is, they had an afternoon of comparative rest, without any of the scrimmage which has been the usual Monday afternoon program in the past. Most of the men were out and were sent through signal practice as the best means of loosening up the bruises and sore spots acquired in the Purdue contest.

The signal work done was ragged and more or less lifeless, which may in part be attributed to the hard game played Saturday. That Hawley is not yet satisfied with his line up was shown by further shifts, some due to minor injuries sustained by regulars in the contest with the Boilermakers, and some probably due to weaknesses brought out by that game.

Thomas was not in a suit, and his place was taken by Banton, who played in part of the Purdue game. Clemons' was replaced at left tackle by Ney, and Weeks had Repass' guard position. With this line-up, the varsity went through intermittent signal practice, varied by short exercises in passing the ball. The work-out was too short to give any kind of a line on the men, and the coach had no opinion to express after the practice had ended.

Hyland spent some time in kicking goals from all sorts of angles, and showed considerable improvement. The captain realized that the time may come when that extra point will be needed, and is determined to have no more failures in that line of endeavors.

With the first and last rest of the season facing the team, Hawley has announced his intention of giving the men a busy week of scrimmage practice. In the light of the glowing reports which have come from those who saw the Missouri-Ames game last Saturday, close observance in the Iowa camp are none too optimistic in their views concerning the Hawkeyes chances with the Aggies, and they believe that nothing but hard work and consistent fighting by everyone concerned will give Hyland and his men anything better than an outsider show for the long end of the score.

Survey Made.

In order that the university sewer system may be located easily with the institution's lines as a guide a survey is being made and a map will be compiled by certain members of the freshmen engineering class, which will facilitate matters in case of a break in the pipes.

INTERCOLLEGE FOOTBALL ..

The principal criticism against intercollegiate athletics, and one that is obviously well founded if the facts count for anything, is that they are maintained for the benefit of a select few who are able by their superior prowess to "make" teams, while the many go unbenefitted. The purpose of all exercise should be primarily physical development, and to that end the factors in control should strive.

Realizing the necessity for more general and extended exercise on the part of the student body, the board in control of athletics has seen fit to inauguerate a system of inter-college football to minimize the deficiency. It is anticipated that this experiment will meet with the hearty approval of everyone so interested, and that such approval will be manifested by a general response in the nature of several good squads presenting themselves on the field for practice.

Already five teams have entered the race, but the number of men trying out is far from satisfactory In order to maintain the schedule it should hardly be necessary to state that the number must be speedily augmented, if anything like success is to result. Every college in the university should have a team in the field. And every member of every college who is physically able ought to make it a point to partake in the sport.

Many Patients.

Last Friday was a record breaking day for the University Hospital for on that day they had one hundred and twenty-eight patients enrolled at one time. Regular capacity for the hospital is 100 beds, but this number will soon be increased by the new wing which is to be added.

John Kemp who was badly burned about the hands is now able to be around.

"I believe it would be a good thing," said the deacon to the pastor, "if you wouldn't make your sermons quite so long."

"Why, man, I am commended to preach the milk of the word," said the pastor.

"All right, then," said the deacon, "make it condensed milk."

I think the best stories come from the lips of little girls who are wise beyond their years. A smart little girl was asked in the Sunday school, "What must we first do to be rescued from the jaws of sin and death?"

"We must commit some sin," was the little one's reply.

A little boy in sailor costume sidled up to a little stranger in long curls and said: "Will you marry me when we grow up?"

Little Stranger: "No, I don't think mamma would like it, 'cause I'm a little boy, too."

That was what ailed King Manuel. He was a little boy, too, who was just playing at being a ruler of his people. Now he is an inmate of the Adul Hamid club and will never more be known in kingly circles, unless he resides outside of Portugal. It may be the making of him, however, for some men have to commit sin or follow a career of near-vice, before they ever amount to anything He might become an inventor and originate something of value to the world—like the sweater jack.

Now, please don't let any one persuade you to stay in the house because the fall rains are coming. Drop in and look through our sweater department. It will give you new ideas and make you more cheerful. Come on in.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

PAST AND PRESENT

With the laurel of a years' successful run on Broadway still clinging to his brow, "The Lottery Man," heralded by one enthusiastic critic as "the best comedy in six seasons," comes to the Coldren Wednesday evening.

The hero, they tell us, is a newspaper reporter. That makes two reporter heroes we have had this season—You remember "The Broken Idol." In view of the fact that the reporter enjoys almost as much unpopularity with the general public as does his friend, the policeman, this is passing strange—but there, we mustn't talk shop.

The chief character in the play is Jack Wright, a reporter on a New York paper which is owned by "Foxy" Peyton. Wright and Peyton are great friends, despite the wealth of the latter and the most ordinary means of the other.

The reporter gets a Wall Street tip and goes to his chief for money with which to back his belief, giving Peyton his promise that if his plunge fails, he will reimburse him by bringing in the biggest newspaper "beat" New York has known for years. The tip proves a failure, and in order to make good to his paper, he proposes a lottery with himself as the prize.

The newspaper at once begins publication of coupons which are sold to women in general, the idea being that the holder of the lucky number will draw Jack, the reporter, as her husband. After the scheme has been launched, however Jack falls desperately in love with Helene Heyer, which causes him to pour curses upon himself that he had not met her before he decided to sacrifice himself upon the altar of the lottery scheme.

The lucky number goes to the maidenly companion (Miss Lizzie) of Mrs. "Foxey" Peyton. Meantime all the friends of Jack and Helene knowing their fondness for each other, have been turning heaven and earth to purchase as many coupons as possible. The complications which follow are said to be the most amusing and novel.

The third act is given up to the efforts of the friends of Jack to recover the lucky number from Lizzie, which they finally succeed in doing, thus bringing happiness to the star reporter and his newly found sweetheart.

On Thursday Mildrend Holland will present at the Coldren a modern domestic drama, "The Provider," by Matthew Barry. The scenes are laid in American homes and the story deals with the eternal struggle between love and duty.

In "The Provider" Miss Holland has the role of Margaret Davis, a school teacher whose income goes to support the social ambitions of a butterfly mother and a dissolute father. In this play Miss Margaret will be seen for the first time in this city a sthe American woman of the present day, and her entire company will appear in modern and familiar roles.
