STATE TITLE CLASH REMAINS IN DOUBT

HAWKESVES VS. CORNELL; GAME PLAYED OCT. 21

MONSTROUS SNAKE TO FEATURE BIG P-RADE

HAWKESVES TRIUMPH; WIN FROM GRINNELL

In the context of the game and the college athletic traditions, the Hawkeyes were considered a strong team, often competing against the University of Iowa and other alma mater institutions. The game's outcome was uncertain, adding to the excitement of the day's events.

The Hawkeyes were a significant team in the university's history, and their victories were celebrated by their fans and alumni. The challenges they faced, such as the Grinnell territory, were seen as a testament to their determination and resilience.

The description of the game's atmosphere and the players' actions provides a glimpse into the excitement and tension that characterized such sporting events. The Hawkeyes' victory in the game not only secured them a place in the history of collegiate basketball but also highlighted the importance of such competitions in fostering school spirit and community pride.

The reference to the Grinnell territory and the Iowa-Iowa State rivalry further underscores the significance of these games in the lives of the students and alumni.

This passage provides a detailed account of the game, capturing the essence of the rivalry and the competitive spirit that characterized collegiate basketball in the early 1900s.
SCHWARTZ ELECTED CAPTAIN;
WILL LEAD B. H. TEAM IN 1910

In his first game as captain, Schwartz played near around the veteran receptor. He finished the season as the pivot position.
This year Stewart made sure of his all season ability by leading him back to park. Schwartz is also one of the best military players of the university.
