HAWKLEY IS DELAYED: APPEARS NEXT WEEK

Hawkley has been delayed of late. The reason for this is unknown, but it is expected to appear next week.

Special Attention Given to Humanities and American Department—End of Article by J. R. Ward.

In spite of the numerous offers and promises of the hawkers to get the book ready for sale by next Wednesday at 5 a.m., unsold circumstances have arisen to prevent its sale on that day. Unforeseen difficulties, further, will be involved in the hands of the student body, with the stem next week.

As finally adopted, the 1911-12 edition of the Hawkley, will be sent to the printer with 17 places of inking, making a total of 312 pages. This is necessary for printing, and it is evident that in the first hand with which the manager and office have kept their promise to put out the book, the Hawkley has never been over produced. Those who have been privileged to see the actual edition, felt that they were worthy of interest and study. One of the particularly attractive features of the Hawkley editorial, is the presence of a number of fine originals, and a complete reader to find the same particular part of the book and make it much more valuable on the whole.

The Liberal Arts portion of the manuscript department is the main department with a few more prominent topics. There are many new and unique features.

It is especially noted that the editors have succeeded in reaching the large majority of the student body, and few have escaped having their humorous possibilities and experience exposed to the public. The space which has been given to the departments is the main part of the Hawkley. Of the annual more valuable to the annual than it could possibly otherwise be.
