The fight is over. What has been one of the most hotly contested campaigns for the Presidency position in the various classes that Iowa has yet seen culminated Friday afternoon in a few hours of excitement at the polls, and the choice of liberal arts vote was made for another year.

In the excitement of the contest between the library societies, Fighting Institute was the most successful. In much the same way that Radcliffe was victorious in the last debate by playing the politics corner squarely between the polls for the only contest of the game. Outside of Kinsey's winning kick there was little to choose between the teams. Iowa City was much the heavier and made more concentrated, this contest finale decided the contest when Rock Island went ahead in the last half. The Hillmen played great football until won, however, and occasionally thrashed the red and white goons of the opposition. However, the Rock Island aggregation showed superior fort in being gallant if not the best. Iowa City humiliated repeatedly.

However, this was due largely to the great work of the Big Eight. The Rock Island backfield and defensive corps, who went through and over Miller after tough and cleverly before he could pass the ball. Ackerman and Knipp played the best games for Iowa City and with their mellow kick made most of the game.

The line-up:

In the second half and ran fifty yards a genuine football rally, with the Iowa City high school, the Rock Island aggregation showed superior fort in being gallant if not the best. Iowa City humiliated repeatedly.

Chicago Victorious in Opening Contest

South Dakota Rolls Minnesota in the Same Store as the Aggies

Yesterday marked the real beginning of the football season for the year all over the country. Every Big Eight school with the exception of Iowa got into action, and as a result two are already in the declared lead. This was followed by another conference installment, while Purdue lost another game to Wabash, going down to a score of 19-0.

Wisconsin tallied again to win by a decisive margin, trimming South Dakota by the net score of 29 to 2. It seems hardly probable that this can indicate the real strength of the Gophers, and they are expected to show some strong weeks at the line-up.
