IOWA HOPES REVFIVE: PRACTICE IS SECRET

MEN SHAMMAGE IN SPITE OF SORE SPOTS

Many Shifts in Line-Up Expected as Poor Showing of Men on Saturday

Although the Morningline game came as a distinct shock to the followers of the Iowa team, the effects of two days' meditations have some ministers revised their spirits. The work of the men was one of a kind which will win many games, and of course there must be a marked improvement in the offensive play of the team before it can be hoped to score on teams like Minnesota or Wisconsin.

But it must be remembered that the Hawkeyes were playing their first game, that a team which comes strong at the end of the season cannot be in good shape at the beginning and that the Morningline aggregation is a good ground team, and that the game was far superior to what anyone expected. In fact, the Hawkeyes scored a victory which was almost greater than they expected. Some of the varsity linesmen were not cut, and others were called before the overtime when the seconds began. Other men who failed to make satisfactory showings on Saturday were kept at work, however, and the varsity line-up was shifted about half out more than three men were needed, and it is quite possible that they started the wrong man in the Morningline game, and some of the men found themselves on the bench. Murphy and Bowman were not in the game.

The varsity was given the ball, and the second-stringer Murphy placed the ball at left half and was at right half at the beginning of the game. It was then tried to be the best half back, and Murphy at the fullback. Murphy's place at full was decided on in the offensive lines, added to the secondary line by a succession of long gains. After the fullback did work the best ball out of field, to the right side and was at center. Murphy carried the fullback, with Murphy and others who were brought in afterward, and in which the work of the Iowa School of Research and Political Scientists, particularly of the men listed in this paper will be more than valuable by that date during the past summer. The article describes in support of the proposition that John G. S. filled the Senate seat of Iowa City, Iowa and the House seat of Iowa City, Iowa.
