Hawkeye Works Mainly to Get Men in Blue

SITUATION of the railroad depot here is the key to the whole story of the United States hockey team's victory over Japan in the final game of the world championship.

After the penultimate match, carried out in the same setting, the United States team is likely to be in a position to win the championship. The team is expected to be in the final against Japan, who lost to the United States in the semi-final.

The United States team is currently leading in the tournament, having won both of their previous matches. Japan, on the other hand, has lost both of their matches, including a 5-0 defeat to the United States in their first meeting.

The United States team is expected to face Japan in the final, which will be played on Saturday. The team is likely to be in a strong position to win, given their recent form and the fact that they have not faced Japan in the tournament before.

To Aldous For More Roses...

A real young man had been talking on the "electric girl in the world," the losing battle, the unsung hero's blood slowly. Finally she decided to start something, as the next time she called she promised to the girl in her (and she said, "I'll give you a kiss for that Rose." A crimson gust spread over the conference, but the intersection was made after some hesitation on the part. "They grabbed his hat and hurled to the room. My, where are you going?" she asked him.

To Aldous for more Rose. He called back from the door.

Nov. 12: The first meeting of the new bible group was held at Close hall Monday evening at 4:45. The chief purpose of the class is to study modern religious problems, treating them without prejudice. It proved to be very popular from the start, and Monday night there were fifteen students present to join. After a little discussion it was decided to take up the Good Idea first, and Professor Barbour discussed the ancient ideas of God and Man, conception and that of Christ. The class met regular on Wednesday evenings at 4:45, at Close hall, and every one is welcome.

The Red Mill

Victor Herbert and Henry M. Bliesz's newest comic opera, "The Red Mill," will be the attraction at the Coliseum, Monday, Oct. 20. With a new cast and under new management on Broadway, New York City, at the Kritzer theater, and three months each in Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia, "The Red Mill" stands as one of the most popular musical hits of the past three seasons and one that will prove popular for many seasons to come, possessing all the elements of an enduring success both in story and music. "The Red Mill" marks the thirtieth complete musical play by Victor Herbert, every one of which has scored an undeniable success and has proved the veneration for most of the distinguished musical stars of the present day. Henry Herbert, the author of the book and lyrics, has already come to the fore as the American Gilbert, each of his writings having, like Herbert's, proved immensely successful. Starting with "Cavalcade," his first and only dramatic writing, he rapidly followed with "The Yankee Cowboy," "Illusions," "The Pretty Donna," and "The Red Mill." In "The Red Mill," Mr. Herbert succeeded in an unusually interesting story dealing with the adventures of a wealthy pair of Americans who are "doing" Europe for the first time, but who write a song in one of the small villages of Holland where their money runs out, and the most unusual complications follow which lead them toarious bits of luxury. The music of Mr. Herbert is of the wholesomest kind and suites not only music lovers alone but the masses to whom song is one of the greatest delights.

The company of forty people has been carefully selected and embraces a cast of rare individuality, headed by James Cawley and Wm. Mason, who interpret the two Americans, Chris Kildar and Sid Carmen.
