ALL EYES FOCUSED ON IOWA GRIDIRON

State Honors at Stake in To-morrow's Game.

IOWA SPIRIT AROUSED AS NEVER BEFORE

Two Teams Evenly Matched, Despite Predictions of Pro-Ames Critics--- Al Fisher to Lead Yells.

With the championship hanging in the balance, Hawkeyes and Aggies clash tomorrow afternoon on Iowa field in their annual battle for football honors of the state. On the Iowa gridiron for two hours tomorrow afternoon will be focused the attention of every follower of college athletics in Iowa, and of many beyond the borders.

Already alumni have begun to pour into town. For the first time, the demand for seats for the game has reached a point which has attracted the attention of scalpers; and most of the good seats remaining are collected in their hands. Today and tomorrow forenoon will see an unprecedented rush of visitors on every train.

Probably Iowa enthusiasm has never before reached such a pitch.

Already record breaking mass meetings have been held, on Monday and Wednesday, and the one tonight is almost certain to be the biggest and noisiest ever held in the state. It developed yesterday that the engineers have long been making plans to bring back Al Fischer, Iowa's greatest yell leader, from Buffalo, New York, to lead the cheering Saturday. This was to have been kept a secret, but the city newspapers, discovering it, gave it away.

During the past week, alumni who formerly starred on Iowa football teams, have been coming back to help the coaches put the final touches on the old gold team before its all-important battle. Hastings, Kent, Kirk Collins, and others have returned to Iowa field to add extra polish to Hawley's mighty machine. The entire strength of the Iowa student body and alumni is with the team in its fight with the traditional foe, as it has never been before. For more than a week, the Iowa slogan, "Get Ames," has been blazoned forth in letters of fire from the top of Engineering hall.

At Ames, equal enthusiasm reigns. A week ago, every Aggie was convinced that the coming game would be a mere frolic for the husky farmer team. But during the past week this sure, self-satisfied attitude has changed somewhat, and a note of alarm has crept in. Iowa's showing against Purdue startled the Ames followers, but they still believe in their team and in its ability to defeat the Iowans.

At other points in the state, reports indicate that Ames is given a wide margin. Disregarding the fact that year after year, Iowa has come back and won when the odds favored Ames, that Hawley's system is the one of steady development, and that Iowa is the logical holder of third place in the western conference, outside critics persist in giving the Aggies much the better chance for the game. No one here objects to that now, but Saturday is another day.

Meanwhile, as the critics talk and the dopespers argue, behind the locked gates of two gridirons, the coaches are putting on the last touches. Up at Ames, Clyde Williams, in his day the greatest of Iowa quarterbacks, is preparing for a mighty defeat of his alma mater. The last two battles have gone against him, if he fails now, it may be years before another chance comes.

On the other hand, Hawley of Dartmouth is making every effort to send the Aggies home defeated again, and Iowa students in general, and particularly those with a critical eye, are confident of his ability to turn the trick. To any one takes the time to follow his work, it must be evident that here is one of the west's great coaches. Hawley's teams do not start brilliantly. As in the big eastern schools, first results count little with him. He builds for the critical games of the season; and although the souls of discontent may find little to praise in the early play of his teams, they are forced to admit his ability when championship clashes come. To Iowa students who have not seen the teams since the Cornell game, the change next Saturday will be almost incomprehensible. To the few who watched the Minnesota and Wisconsin games, it will at least be understood; while the scant half dozen who saw the Hawkeyes crush Purdue a week ago will recognize the final working out of a definite, certain plan.

What the final result will be, no one may even prophesy. Outsiders think they know the answer, and that is Ames; but they are with the great army of the misinformed. The weight and line-up of the two teams show them to be as evenly matched as it is possible to be. A fluke, a lucky play, may throw the game one way or the other; but this is improbable. The team which has the most fighting ability is the team which will carry away the game; and the greatest and best fighting bunch of men that ever wore the old gold will defend the Iowa goal tomorrow.

STEINER ILL AT CHICAGO; WILL NOT SPEAK AT VESPERS

Rev. A. M. Judy, of Davenport to Speak Sunday

Professor Forest C. Ensign, president of the State Conference of Charities and Correction, is in receipt of a message from Dr. Edward A. Steiner stating that his son is critically ill in a Chicago hospital. Professor Steiner is at his son's bedside and the doctors give no hope that he will be able to leave in time to fulfill the Sunday engagement for the vespers service. This will be a disappointment to the many friends of Dr. Steiner is at his son's bedside and ward to this occasion.

The members of the executive committee are, however, greatly pleased over that fact that on short notice they have been able to secure Rev. A. M. Judy of Davenport for the vespers service. Dr. Judy was for some years a very popular pastor in Davenport and a most acceptable lecturer in this and adjoining states. As a preacher, he was always able to draw to his services large audiences, not only of the educated and cultured, but of the common people, for all through his addresses ran strongly the spirit of

POINT WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN CROSS COUNTRY RACES

Summer Leads With Thirty-five Points in Three Races

After going over the results of the three competitive cross country runs and figuring up the total points made by each runner, Professor S. H. Bush yesterday announced the winners of the cups offered for the winners of the first five places, the inter-department cup, and the other emblems offered.

Summer, the freshman runner who led in all three races, earned the first place cup with a total of thirty-five points. Smith was second with thirty, and Seydel, Steinberg, Gadbury and Scanlon followed.

The liberal arts runners easily won the inter-department cup, no medic, no dent, and no law school runners entering. The Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity scored twenty-eight points in the first run, but after that no fraternity men competed for the cup offered by Professor Bush.

The list of men and points made follows:

Summer	35
Smith	30
Seydel	24
Steinberg	22
Gadbury	22
Scanlon	17
Yarco	15
Brunner	14
Preston	9
Shrader	9
Wohlfeld	8

WRESTLERS ORGANIZE FOR COMING SEASON

O'CONNOR AND BALLARD ARE THE ONLY VETERANS

Over Fifty Members in Club This Year—O'Connor Elected President

Wrestling in the university is again at fever heat, many men are working out for the big matches which are to come off later. Over fifty men have declared themselves as members of the wrestling club and are using every effort to bring into shape some very good wrestlers. O'Connor, last year's heavyweight wrestler, was elected as president. He and Ballard are the only members left from last year's recruits. Ballard was a lightweight wrestler last year but is considerable heavier this year and will enter the middleweight class. With these two men to start with Iowa will be in good shape by the time of the intercollegiate matches.

In looking over the prospects Physical Director Schroeder said, "There is a wealth of material this year and there is no reason why Iowa will not have some very capable wrestlers."

Physical Director Schroeder has already made arrangements to meet Nebraska at Nebraska for a return match to take place some time in February. Nebraska defeated Iowa last year in all three classes and for that reason alone Iowa wishes to come back doubly strong. A match is also being arranged between Ames and Iowa to take place here. The time of the last match is not yet known, but if it does take place, it will be after the Nebraska match.

November Alumnus Out

The November number of the Iowa Alumnus is just off the press. This issue contains many articles of special interest, including a rare cut of the Old Capitol building and the campus surrounding as it appeared in Civil War times. The article by Theodore Wanerus of "The University and the Civil War," contains some interesting facts about the university of sixty years ago. "Impressions of Lakeside Laboratories," by Frederick J. Lazell brings out many things relating to the student life at the institution at Okoboji. There are several other articles of special moment to alumni and students as well, including the address on "University Politics," given by President John G. Bowman, at assembly.

Mass Meeting Tonight

The greatest mass meeting in the history of the school will be held tonight in the natural science auditorium at 7:15. Coach Hawley will speak as well as a large number of alumni. The university yell masters and the band will be on hand and the new songs will be practiced.
