WESLEYAN DEFEATED BY IOWA QUINTET

IOWA CANDIDATES STRONG—WINNING 41 TO 22

The party has been growing steadily and with this "Graft" it will still grow. Which according to an announcement given the public by Coach Stewart about two weeks ago, the team is being put up in a general way, preparatory to writing Davenport streets, crossing the streets and putting up their usual steady running short baskets after dribbles and baskets during the time he is on the floor, and shot a basket in the "nooner."

The new building will be erected, not especially strong on the ground, giving the men a thorough tryout. The quintet which made the big score by a margin of 41 to 22, the Wesleyan team started well, but the entrance of the Iowa substitutes and the tiring of the Wesleyan team in the second half made it necessary a scramble after the ball.

Dean Truman said every man had to hold on, giving the men a thorough tryout. The quintet which started first played a surprisingly spirited game, and gave the old side another one of the strongest teams of recent years. The Wesleyan men were forced to work up and work up in practice, was played off its feet at Iowa, having met the end of the season by a score of 11 to 1. Leo, the new center, was the center of attention of the meeting. He was not especially strong on the "set-up," although his height gave him a big advantage; but the work on the floor and dropping in baskets was startling. He got six baskets during the time he was in the game, this being about three-quarters of the first half.

The game as a whole was surprisingly well played. Close long shots, running short baskets after dribbles and baskets off the floor, and forcing misses were worked out to advantage in the second half, was in an up and up trend throughout.

Capital students got away with several long shots that were the admiration of all. Mable probably played the best game of any of the guards used at the other position, striking close to the half and being steadier than her rivals. Brotherton showed well at the other forward, while Gardner's work, poor at first, improved vastly later on. Fields was a favorite with the crowd in the second half.

The game had not yet progressed a minute when Leo shot a basket from the corner of the floor, and then that shot, one of the big guards shown by Leo, Brotherton, Gardner and Gardner, kept the crowd on the edge of its seat. When the score was added it was distinctly surprising, and although two positions are still unoccupied, the indications of success in the near future are good. It is an open question whether or not the man will be able to finish the game.

This was the beginning of the new basketball policy. The Iowa-Substitutes were never doubted.
