Iowa and Wisconsin open the Big Eight basketball season on the local floor tonight, the game being scheduled in both at 7:30. Neither team has played any major games this year and the contest will give the first look on the probable chances of either to win the title.

Coach Stewart yesterday announced the lineup which follows for the opener, the position, that the Iowa guard is still uncertain. The Big Eight, Rieger, Gardner or Barlow, Beaman,也将 be in at times. "Beverly" and "Badger" Sugar Bowl will probably pin at least one guard at the jewel position.

The Wisconsin team is composed largely of veterans and is out for the championship of the west. The Badgers are always strong in this league, and this year they have a high hope. On the other hand, it is hard to say that the Hawkeyes are in their best form, but the solitary veteran on the squad and one of the most skilled and experienced of the Iowa men has been forced to the sidelines.

The game will be a good one for both schools, and the outcome of the game will depend a great deal on the relative form of the two teams. The Iowa guard has shown no exceptional form in individual work, but not yet pulling together as a unit. The Hecoy team is a good one for one game, but has already strongly results. Director E. S. Scholfield yesterday said: "Iowa is a good team for a gymnastic team, and other universities and colleges of the middle west have them, there is no reason why Iowa should not be one of the two which were admitted into the conference."

The two teams have been kept from many practice matches, but will have a chance to keep up the contest before the game. The faces of the two teams will be exposed to the audience.

Nebraska Club Meeting

The Nebraskan club will meet tonight at the physics lecture room on Monday, January 4, at 9:15 p.m. Professor P. J. Nebraska City

The new Hawkeye gymnasium will be dedicated Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. The dedication will be followed by a game of basketball.

Hawkeyes Staged Four-Man Soccer Tie

The Hawkeyes staged a four-man soccer tie last week against the Northwestern team. The game was played on the lawns of the junior prom committee and was attended by the students and faculty of the university.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

At the Colored

Rowland and Clifford will bring in this season the tailor-made garment for "Don't Lie to Your Wife." This piece has a long run at the Wilshire opera house in Chicago, and if the word of the Chicago stage agrees in to be taken, every city in this city should witness this play. The story of the play deals with the business of the clothing, the man, who decided to fully with the congenial results while their wives are out. Such clothes as are shown in this play, are happening every day about us, and if there are any husbands in this city, who believe they can go out with cheerful girls, and have the accompanying social results, without the knowledge of their wives, they should witness the complications that the author has invented in this play. Every incident is gathered up by Mr. Guad, who was commissioned by the editor of the Chicago Herald, and this affects modern day happenings throughout the town. Rowland and Clifford have supplied Mr. Lewis with the right idea, as well as the nature stage mounting which featured the Chicago run.
