Charles Bundy Wilson
Head of the Department of German Languages and Literature

Charles Bundy Wilson, head of the department of German Language and Literature in the State University of Iowa, was born in New York in 1861 of German-American stock. One branch of the family is settled in New Jersey, another in Wisconsin, and a third in Iowa. He received his M.A. from Cornell on an Examination in German, Greek and French philology. In 1884-85 he was a student in German, and in 1892-93 another trip to Germany was devoted to the investigation of the Hebrew. He has also studied in Paris (1884) and in London (1894), where he taught until he accepted a professorship in the State University of Iowa in 1888. Some of the positions held by Prof. Wilson are as follows: Vice President of the Modern Language Association of America, 1901; President of the Central Division of the Modern Language Association, 1905.

Wilson is but one of several academicians, scholars, authoresses and the queen's favorite...

GEORGE D. BARTH, Grocer

We have always been of the opinion that cleanliness should be the first characteristic of a Grocery Store. Our stock of groceries have come to us and we contribute much at our store in the Grocery Business to our efforts in education and the object we have to be bound with humanitarians and those who labours towards the betterment of the lot of the individuals. We also take an active part in the creation of a good name for the store. The customers of the store are those that know the best. No better advertising can be passed on than the best way to have our grocer's materials.
