INTEREST IN TAKEN
There is a popular belief throughout the state that the liberal arts student at Iowa does not receive the attention from the faculty that is given to the student in the smaller colleges. Those that harbor this belief base it up on numbers. They say that the proportion of students to professors is so much larger in the state universities than in the smaller colleges that it is practically impossible for the professor to know the students individually or to give them any degree of personal attention.

But the true figures prove that this popular idea is so often repeated for the purpose of inducing students to enter the smaller colleges has no foundation. Official statistics show that the ratio in the smaller colleges is one professor to 15.7 students, while at Iowa, the ratio is one professor or assistant professor to every 14.3 students.
Moreover, the ratio in the university does not consider the number of smaller students as those in the large colleges. It is to the student in work such figures prove the popular idea concerning the amount of attention the student can receive in the liberal arts college.

The student can receive and do receive attention in Iowa as well as he would if he were at a smaller college. The student can receive and do receive attention in Iowa as well as he would if he were at a smaller college.

A CHANCE FOR YOU
Friday and Saturday, two thousand students will have Iowa City to spend the Christmas vacation at home. It is true that approximately there will be two thousand students scattered over the whole state. You will be one of them.
Are you going to boost for the university? Are you going to let the people in your home know that the university is a good place to be? It rests with you whether you or the critics are going to make the opinions of your home community about the school.

Iowa has suffered much from the just criticism. Some of it is the same that is given to all great institutions of learning. Some of it is in the result of jealousy of smaller state schools. This latter kind can be greatly overcome by effective work on the part of students here.

When you go home make an effort to see your high school teachers and, tell your parents, see the people of the town who have adverse opinions regarding your university, and tell them next year what the increase of students from your county. Try it this vacation.

PUBLIC SPEAKING PROGRAM HELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON
Very interesting lecture by Miss Harrison's Class was Declared Successful

Yesterday afternoon at 4:45 in the natural science auditorium, six of Miss Norma Harrison's class in science presentation gave a program of the year; and it was such a decided success that others will be given during the year the intervals of about a month. The class was composed of the excellent advisory system usually attendant upon such amateur occasions.

The public was not invited to this program, but if the demands are as general as they were then, it may be that everyone will be given the opportunity to come. At present the plan is to have only these taking part in the departmental program. Professor Perry's classes will probably give the next program.

The program yesterday was as follows:

Toussaint—Uchronias—Carl Brookner
Strong Heart—Elise Smiley
At the Sign of the Left Heart
Fannie Bradley
Sketch on Byron's Life—George Ogle
Sketch on Joe Harris—Joe Ans.

Clifford Farr, assistant in the department of botany, is spending the week in Chicago doing research work.

Iowa men will meet "aggies"

DATE HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED FOR LOWDAYS' GAME IN FEBRUARY

Sperors For First Time Since 1900 Arrangements Were Completed Yesterday For Two Dates.

Ames basketball team will be on Iowa field this year for the first time since nineteen-tens. Arrangements were made yesterday by Manager Keil for two games with the "Aggie" aggregation, one to be played at Ames on the 10th of Feb-uary, and the other at the 17th or 18th of the same month as may be agreed upon later by the managers.

Iowa was unable to get games with Ames last season on account of the latter having tied the schedules in the Missouri Valley conference.

To meet the increased attendance at the basketball games four hundred more seats have been provided at the arena, including the large side of the armory by the time of the next game after the holding of the big circus, which tickets are responsible to a certain extent for the increased interest in basketball. At the Leander-Clark game on last Monday evening there were more than five hundred people present which is an exceedingly large crowd for a minor game so early in the season. The space on the running track will be reserved for ladies and their escorts in the future which means that the co-eds will be well taken care of.

At a meeting of the athletic board Forest A. (Sling) Louder was again re-elected president of the rooters' club at the University. Mr. Louder holds an important position on the coaching staff.

The biggest question ever brought before the student body at the university of Nebraska was settled last Friday night, when the freshman decided by a vote of 1,918 to 813 for his deciding vote. More than $125,000 is spent annually by students at Toronto for books alone.

All except four of the states are represented among the students of Wisconsin university.
