MARY HIBBARD—CONSERVATION LECTURE

Topic: "Women—A Conservation Force"
In First Lecture of Series.

Dr. Mary Heard delivered the first of a series of lectures on the conservation of American soil.

On Monday afternoon at 4:30, Dr. Mary Heard delivered the first of a series of lectures on the conservation of American soil. Dr. Heard took as her topic "Women—A Conservation Force," treating her subject in a thoughtful and earnest way. Beauty restored the past history of the women in the upbuilding of our country and her sphere of influence from the first and harmonic spirit of the home through her work in the church, the school and the state.

Dr. Heard emphasized the fact that women's work in her work has always been, and still is, to gain, as did her companions of the stronger sex, religion, liberty, freedom of personal thought, the requirements of the national offspring and the freedom and conservation of the American home.

Particularly interesting was the splendid record that Dr. Heard made of the work done by American women along the line of work uplifted from the earliest part of the eighteenth century until the present time. Chief of the points mentioned was work on the great problems that in the west among the Mormons, the spirit given to the poor whites in the south: the educational enlightenment of the far north, the Hawaiian Islands and in the Philippines; and, lastly, the wonderful work in the cities large and small in the United States. Under the last head came the causes of destructive and effective activities, such as some support, suppression of the white slave trade, "right," "wrong," "good," "bad," "beautiful," "ugly," "horrors," and winning women's hearts, day nurseries, and hospitals for women and children.

In conclusion, Dr. Heard demonstrated that the true secret of effective

How About "If" Mr. Merchant?

If you wish to hire 20 or 30 young men and women to speak to every University student and teacher about the advantages of trading at your shoe.

The utility or beauty of some new article in

The special values offered today or this week.

You KNOW that your business would respond instantly to such advertising. But that's a large "IF" with a prohibitive expense hitched to it. It could not be done unless you had a dream.

You can do the same thing, however, in a different way. You can employ a solicitor who sits down with every student five evenings in the week and has a chummy talk about student affairs—and interprets any message you care to have delivered.

You can speak your message—your announcement, your argument, your store ads—at trilling cost. You can depend on a keeping of the line. You can change the ads every day. You can get results that will show up in the cash register every night.

We shall be glad to talk over with you ways in which you can get your message over to your solicitor—the only one in its field—during the present month.

MISS GREEN WINS PRIZE FOR STORY

As Author of the Best Short Story Submitted to the Hawkeye for Publication.
Miss Agnew Green was awarded the prize offered by the Hawkeye board for the best short story submitted for publication in the annual. The decision of the judges was unanimous in giving her story first place.

The winning story is entitled, "Roger." It is a tale of life in a western stone quarry, the principal character being a former college man. In one sense this is a college story, but the virility with which the local color is pictured and the dramatic climax leaves with the reader but one final impression — the monumental, arousing life among the workers of a last stone quarry.

Miss Green is a junior in the college of liberal arts and is one of the best newsworthy writers in the university. She has written many other short stories, all of high merit and literary excellence.

HAWKEYE NINE TO INVADE EAST

Strangled Teams In Conference Will Be Met on Eastern Trip of Baseball Squad.

Iowa's central baseball trip which comes this week after nest has been definitely arranged. This year it will include games with four of the best teams in the nation, namely, the teams from Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, and Detroit.

The team leaves Iowa City the morning of the 14th inst., playing the Maroons on the way. From Chicago, the Hawkeyes will journey to the play ground of the Little Giants for a game on the following day. On Friday the Hawkeyes will entertain the Iowa nine in the first basketball contest these teams have engaged in since the formation of the Big Nine Conference. The latter affair is scheduled for Championshipe, Illinois.

The Chicago date, which was recently negotiated, means that a return game will be played on the local lot sometime in the latter part of April or the first of May. On account of Coach Sturgis's frequent absence from the state many arrangements have not been completed.

Coach Lindemann took the open outdoor team yesterday for the first time.

The practice was erratic, consisting of batting practice with a stiff infield, with no first baseman. The players responded for the first call and the array of material looks promising.

Sturgis made his first appeal for a new set in a session later, while the crack pitcher is expected out tomorrow.

The Dartmouth games will start next Monday, continuing all week.

With the weather man favorable for the next few days the locals will be in fairly good condition for the series.

THE SEVEN NAPASSES

AT ENGLERT'S THEATRE

This Week's Bill: One of Much Merit

The Fountain...

Manager Engert has struck the right note in this week's bill. The public laud the entertainment given to them. They have been provided for all the way through. There is but one dull in the whole show and that passes with favorable comment. Several years ago the seven napasses have been making the vaudeville lovers public laugh and be merry and now they are entertaining the leisure of Iowa City in the same way.

Nelle Burger opens the bill with a novel and clever dramatic act. She has a good voice which adds to her ten minutes of music talent.

Nell and her partner are the best acts in the town.

Nearby everybody enjoys the harp and to hear a real artist playing popular music on the harp, especially towards the close, is the delight of Engert's this week. Ursula and Bratza, styling themselves as "The man, the Harp and the Girl", are entertainers of a high class. Ursula is at home with the harp. On her own account, she creates some wonderful tricks, such as playing blindfold and assuming different positions. Allen and Allen, who style themselves "The Fatuous Dukes" help to pass the time. Although their act is hardly up to the average, they receive the public laugh and be merry and now they are entertaining the leisure of Iowa City in the same way.

INVADE EAST

The Hawkeye nine led by their star player, W. H. Ade, who is principal of the Brighton high school, have the latter part of the week in Iowa City.

In Iowa City, the next few days they will be given out with the Big Nine Conference. The latter affair is scheduled for Championshipe, Illinois.
