HAWKEYE CHANCES ARE SLIM FOR DRAKE MEET

TEAM WILL LEAVE TODAY AT 3:30—ENTRIES SIMILAR TO GOPHER MEET

Hanson New Man in Hurdles—Capt. Parsons Will Enter Half Mile Again—Drake has Fastest Team For Many Years

Hawkeye chances are up in the air for a victory over the fast Drake track team when they clash in their dual meet next Saturday afternoon at the Drake Stadium. The width of the margin of points over the Iowa squad is easier to judge than any other phase of the meet. This is the opinion of those who have been closely watching the track and field interests of the two universities the past few weeks.

Coach Jack Watson has been doing wonders with the Hawkeye squad recently, but owing to the number of new men on the squad there has been no possibility of developing a team which can compete with a squad of seasoned veterans. Capt. Parsons and Shrader are about the only veterans who have ever made a mark for themselves. However, Mather and Dick will be able to make a good showing in Saturday's meet. Without doubt the sprints will go to the Des Moines team, as will the broad jump and the weights. The fact that the hammer is not to be in the list of events weakens Iowa's chances for points, as Gilliland has been doing some creditable work this spring.

The list of events is practically the same as that of the Minnesota meet—with the exception of Manson who will run in the high hurdles. Parsons will enter the half mile races again next Saturday. It is understood that Stahl, the speedy Drake man, has also adopted the longer sprint, and will be the Iowa Captain's most formidable competitor Saturday. However Parsons will be in much better shape for the Drake meet and will give a good account of himself. Mortimer and Rock will be relied upon in the quarter-mile race, and are likely to get good places in this event.

Drake is reported to have the best track team it has had for ten years. Their meet against Grinnell recently, when they won with a margin of over sixty points, has caused the Hawkeyes much worry.

MONEY BURNS POCKETS

Burning the pockets of the freshmen, a large sum of money accumulated in the treasury is to be used by the class for some purpose in the near future. There will be a meeting of the class next Tuesday evening to decide on the use to which it will be applied.

The freshmen are planning to spring something original, it is believed, and almost anything may be expected of them when the meeting comes.

MOTHERS DAY WILL BE OBSERVED SUNDAY

Custom of Wearing Carnations Then Originated With Philadelphia Women

Day after tomorrow, being the second Sunday in May, will be observed all over the country as Mother's Day. For the last six years the beautiful practice has been followed of wearing a carnation on this day to honor the mothers of the land. While custom has not been fixed on this point, colored carnations are generally worn for mothers living and white in memory of mothers dead.

Many students will no doubt send flowers home to their mothers and in so doing pay the tribute which is too often delayed to a later and sadder time.

Mother's Day originated with Miss Jarvis, a Philadelphia woman. In the year 1908 she wrote a letter to a Philadelphia paper suggesting that a day be set aside in honor of mother, and that on this day everyone wear a white carnation. The article was copied in many other papers. Soon florists all over the country were unable to fill the orders for white carnations. A magazine, The Florist Review, suggested that colored flowers be worn for mothers living, and white for mothers dead. Although this suggestion did not meet with the approval of Miss Jarvis, it was generally adopted last year.

Miss Jarvis chose the second Sunday in May for this observance, the day on which her mother died. In her letter to the newspaper, she said that she had selected the white carnation because its whiteness stood for purity; its form, beauty; its fragrance, love; its wide field of growth, charity; its lasting qualities, faithfulness—all attributes of a true mother.

SHORT STOP GROSS QUILTS BASEBALL

PRESSURE OF LAW WORK AND FEAR OF INELIGIBILITY IN FOOTBALL REASON

Expected Eyre Will Reappear—Nevin in Hanson and Jacobsen Will Try For Shortstop—Rain Stopped Practice.

Fearful that if he continued baseball he would not be eligible for football next year, Sammy Gross, varsity shortstop, turned in his suit yesterday afternoon. He felt that his law work was suffering to such an extent as to endanger his scholastic standing, and consequently gave up the diamond for the gridiron.

His loss will weaken the team considerably, but it is expected, that Ralph Eyre will reappear in uniform soon. Eyre was the regular shortstop last year, and would fill the place vacated by Gross, in case he goes out. In the meantime, Nevin, Hanson and Jacobsen will contest for the position.

Eason worked at first in yesterday's practice, until J. Pluvius called a halt in the festivities. The tall dent is showing up well at the initial sack, and may be kept there if his hitting is satisfactory.

FIVE MEN ELECTED BY ORDER OF COIF

Highest Honor in Senior Class—Result of Successful Scholastic Work

Five men were elected to the Coif, the honorary law society, yesterday. Those elected were Karl Loos, of Iowa City, G. K. Thompson, of Jamaica, C. F. Garfield, of Humbolt, J. W. Gwynn, of Iowa City, and G. W. Anderson, of Waterloo.

Election to this society is one of the highest honors that can be conferred on a student in the college of law, and comes as a result of all around success in student life.

Three of the men have notably distinguished themselves in university activities. Karl Loos was a member of the intercollegiate debating team several years ago. King Thompson is remembered as the editor of the Daily Iowan, and Gwynn captured the prize for the Hawkeye story two years ago.

RAIN STOPS GAME

The liberal arts and dents had barely started play on Iowa field yesterday when rain broke up the game. It looked for a while as though play could be continued but when Kaufman singled cleanly to center in the first it began to rain too hard.

The rain also stopped varsity baseball practice and the Kent men retired to the armory and played basketball instead.

SUMMER BASEBALL

A rule which receives no popular support after years of attempted enforcement, deserves a thorough looking into and overhauling. Such is the condition of the rule prohibiting summer baseball, now on the statute books of practically all of our larger universities.

A law lives only because the public that it governs overwhelmingly favors its enforcement. No human law can prohibit, so we would not quarrel with a rule which falls, but slightly short of prohibition. But what is the condition of the summer baseball rule?

We find that normal student players feel no compunction in signing the eligibility slips, which are required by the athletic associations, affirming that they have never received reward for summer baseball. We venture no estimate on the number of "ineligible" players on the present Michigan baseball team, or past teams, or on the teams, present or past, of other universities of this country, but we know that they are many. Two years ago the Minnesota authorities undertook a rigid examination of their players. Practically the entire team was disqualified. Three years ago the University of Chicago conducted a questionnaire among its baseball alumni. The results were never made public, despite many requests and advance promises. We all know and realize that this "carelessness" is not confined to players. They are openly supported by the student bodies or winked.

These are the present results of the summer baseball rule. The conditions are certainly most dissatisfying, despite the years of effort.—Michigan Daily.
