INTERNATIONAL POLICY CLUBS APPLY REASON

Outcome of War Today Is Disaster—Commerce, Trade and Cooperation Is Relationship of Nations

Twenty million men are today sacrificing their love, hate, hope and love in the greater war which is sweeping Europe. It is within reason that a body of men met here a few hours of their time in some manner that, more than once time with which a current of everything that is precious in human life will be as more. This is the site of the International Polity Clubs which will be held before the Iowa City High School John Men, of the division of International and Education of the Catholic Foundation.

The year 1911 will probably determine whether war will continue or whether the general change in thought will bring about a reformed type of world and the armistice which the peace at the Armistice of whom is bound to be won, will be able to bring about a future which will bring about a future which can do every good that might be possible. Therefore the outcome of War is peaceful. Mexico, Austria, Germany and the charge of the power.

"The derivative idea the survival of the Fittest cannot apply to human society. We now believe that the army destroys the uses to which the world, so that, at the conclusion of international controversies, there will be no demand for large or the economic class is to have and the degree of curiosity.

Dr. Metz explained that there are different classes of millionaires, those who believe in armament for protection, those who believe in the armament for the public, those who do not believe in the armament for the public.

The support of war is the basis of human, honor, national and international law.

The advance in commercialism during the last few years brought a complete change in the relationships of nations. With the wonderful growth in the commercialism of the world, nations have been affected by the sacrifice of their commercial interests in the production, and the present world is its and its attendant results, such effects, are, in an answer to the question of benefits of cooperation and its results.

A POINT IN ARGUMENT.

We strive for efficiency, time, accurateness and legislation in our everyday life, for the splendor of society, for more enjoyment; for better health, we struggle against infant mortality, cancer, tuberculosis, and other plagues. But what about war? We submit to it, we face it, we believe in it. We have killed in six months ten times the number of persons that the diphtheria serum has cured and the injury that the war has killed the street, and in the world, the establishments of homes, the pride of the nations. This is one of the substantial arguments against war that is offered by Dr. Men, who is here in conference with the Iowa peace and war society.

Norris, Cincinnati's star guard, has been selected again to head the market and black basketball five for next year. Norris almost madeXillibury all-Iowa team and was chosen by a few critics.

Charles E. Breelick, Harvard's famous gridiron star of the past three seasons and through whom Amos received a goodly amount of advertis­ing during the winter, has accepted a position on the football team at Johns Hopkins university for next fall. He will not sign a contract until June as he does not wish to irjure his amateur standing.

The University of California baseball team will sail for Japan May 14, where they will play a series of games with the university teams of the Orient.

Considerable interest is being aroused concerning the invitation extended to Michigan to enter the Irish cup this spring. The invitation was extended by the most authorities, but the effort will have on the other entrants is problenmatical. According to conference rules a large number of the schools, Iowa included, will be unable to enter because of the fact that Michigan is outside the circle, and there is a ban over the Ann Arbor school.

The elimination tournaments in the state high school basketball bas­ kettl boots will begin today and last until tomorrow evening, when the finals will be played. The teams and regionals in the four districts will meet in the state tournament, which will decide the state titles, at Iowa City, March 13 and 14.

The final trials of the university wrestling team will be held this ev­

ing. Five fast boots in each of the five classes is promised. The two main boots of the evening will be between Gran and Henderson and Bard and Croshy. The Iowa gymnastic team will also give exhibition gymnastic feats during the course of the evening. Schroeder will referee.

"There was a time when a man was reasonable enough to go in and get a little money from some of his friends and then get another little money from some of the same friends and a little more from other friends, and that was the end of it."
