Helen Keller learned to speak.

The Merit act for drill is being tried in the major colleges of the United States by providing that military sciences should be included in the curriculum. This has resulted in the establishment, to date, of fifty-two colleges where one or more years of drilling is required. The President of the United States details a regular army instructor at these institutions and the government furnishes arms, equipment and ammunition in the schools. This is the most common form of militarism in this country.

In addition, there are in the local grammar schools, any others have for any reason or other taken up the military work. Some because the governing body thought it advisable and some through theexample of the University of Chicago at the University of Washington. Such institutions also receive the services of retired government officers as well as equipment, you lose one hundred and fifty or more clubs are being trained.

The local grammar schools are not held up as any standard work. For example, at Missouri university drill is required but one year and may be exhibited for gymnasium work at the completion of two semesters. When the student must drill two years, but is virtually paid for the second year by the exemption of certain fees. California requires two years' work; three weeks, a week and the Oregon agricultural college students drill during the entire course of their military career and every other day in the year unless they obtain special permission.

This is nothing but a delusion, as superstitious belief. The people somehow feel that it is the same man who sat in the White House.

We are strongly opposed to the land grant schools, the University of California, Cornell, Columbia, Yale, Pennsylvanian, Stanford, Trinity, and others have been established. We are opposed to the land grant schools.

This is practically the only form of militarism which will come into this country.

It is manifest that at New York university, where the matter came to a head, the student and the student's friends were strongly opposed to drill for fear of an Anti-militaristic will which is a reason for the special attention which was paid to the fact that those institutions where drill is required in the state schools have found it necessary to supplement the money paid to the institution as a guarantee for the service.

It is proper that when one is elected to some high office, that the man be more biddable with something than the man who is subject to the every act is dictated by some unseen power other than that which comes from the man. The man is no longer the man his position is filled by some unseen force to Moses in some high place.

One is nothing but a delusion, a superstition belief. The man who sits in the White House is the same man who has been in Princeton university.

The man who runs a great and sees on the front of the supreme court, is not because of the power of the man who sits before him. The law is written in the same criticizing as any act of the president and should be given the same kind of praise. He is not as Robert Huron said.

The man is a man for the moment. It is the moment.

HENRIETTA KELLER TO COME HERE TUESDAY

Dr. H.S. Keller, who has been in Europe, is here to visit his daughter Mrs. Laura Bridgman, and has been in his daughter's school. After the girl graduated from Radcliffe College in 1896, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts (with the best honors in Latin and English), she was in college for two years. During this period she was awarded a scholarship to attend the University of London, but declined it. She was then appointed a teacher at the Helen Keller School.

Since that time she has written three books, "How We Live," "How We Work," and "How We Live," which have been translated into fifteen languages.

Her story is one of unflagging energy. Her work has been a work of the blind and the deaf. At several meetings of the deaf she has delivered a spoken address, but she was in a way for the deaf and she was always necessary for those who were not able to read what she said, and must have been by the knowledge.

Another Achievement

During the past year she has taken another step forward in her remarkable work. Under the instruction of Mr. Charles White, a teacher of singing at the New England Conservatory of Music, she has greatly improved her speaking voice. During the summer of 1912 she spoke before a convention of deaf people at the deaf at Providence, R.I. This was the first time that she used alone in a public platform. A few months later she addressed an audience of physicians at the Geological Congress held in Boston at the Marathon Medical School. The success of these exercises has encouraged her to speak before the general public.
