THE SIX-YEAR CENTENNIAL OF THE COLLEGE

After the first movement incorporated in 1843, looking toward the establishment of a law school as part of the State University of Iowa, appointed by the recommendation of the judges of the State, there were three individuals who had proved themselves, judges Wright and Cole of that county, in November, 1845, as having agreed to the following in order to constitute a law class for instruction in preparation for the practice of law. The class met once a week in the evenings for three weeks a year, and continued in that way in order that professors might be consulted on the subject and gain power of the course of study, which had terminated in April, 1845, and on December 4th the first class was graduated. At this time William H. Hudnall, who had recently removed to Des Moines is connected with the publication of the Daily Iowa Reporter (a continuation of the first Iowa Herald by Judge Dillon), became the secretary of the association and a regular instructor in the Law School, being the only instructor or who gave continuous attention to the work of the students, as Judges Wright and Cole were absent from Des Moines from time to time, attending temporarily of the Supreme Court at different places in the state.Hammond's instruction was no doubt given during the day time and from day to the hour of the school, was graduated, was graduated in June, belonging to absent members. By 1855 the University had far decided that the question of establishing a law department, and the legislature had made an appropriation for that purpose, and it was then arranged that the Iowa Law School should become the Law Department of the State University at Des Moines, and that it should function as the head of the Department, with the title of Chancellor, and Judges Wright and Cole were appointed for a period of three years, only of the time. It was also provided in this connection that those who had been graduated from the Iowa College at Des Moines should be recognized as graduates of the University. Following this removal of the Law School to Iowa City and development of the University as the Law Department, there was no law school in Des Moines until this time.

The College of Law of the State University of Iowa has therefore had a continuous existence since November, 1845, and its organization that may continue to be celebrated in connection with the University as a whole. The arrangement already made for the third annual law alumni dinner in February of the Homemaking of all university clubs, and the third annual law alumni dinner in February of the semi-centennial.

When the College of Law was organized in 1845, this Law School is the fifth of that year, organized as the State University of Iowa and Nebraska, and the same time that it may properly continue to be celebrated in connection with the Homecoming in spirit and form as a part of the organization of our annual law alumni dinner in February of the Homemaking of all university clubs, and the third annual law alumni dinner in February of the semi-centennial.

A Great College Classic Saturday

"Officials who will conduct the state high school track, field, and baseball meets in Des Moines today and Saturday are still confused about the weather. Following yesterday's driving rain and cold which threatened to delay the start of the track meet, the officials are still uncertain about today's weather. However, the officials have decided to hold the meet as scheduled. Today's weather is expected to be warmer and drier than yesterday's.

"The meet will start at 2:00 P.M. and will continue until darkness. The athletes will compete in various events, including the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard dash, the 880-yard run, the 1-mile run, the 440-yard run, the 440-yard hurdles, the high jump, the broad jump, the pole vault, the high jump, the broad jump, the shot put, the hammer throw, the discus throw, the javelin throw, the long jump, the triple jump, the 440-yard relay, the 880-yard relay, the 1-mile relay, the 4-mile relay, the 4-mile cross-country, and the 4-mile cross-country relay.

"The athletes will be divided into two groups, Group A and Group B. Group A will compete from 2:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M., and Group B will compete from 4:00 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. The weather is expected to be good for both groups, with no rain or storms forecasted.

"The competition will be fierce, and the athletes will give their best efforts to win their respective events. The officials will work hard to ensure fair play and proper conduct. The athletes will be cheered on by their teammates and friends, and the crowd will be enthusiastic and supportive.

"The meet will be held at the track and field complex located on the campus of the University of Iowa. The facilities are top-notch, with state-of-the-art track and field equipment.

"The meet will be broadcast live on local radio and television stations. Fans will be able to watch the meet from the comfort of their homes and enjoy the excitement of the competition.

"The meet is sponsored by the University of Iowa Athletic Department and is open to the public. Admission is free, and parking is available nearby.

"The meet is a great opportunity for the athletes to showcase their talents and compete at a high level. It is also an excellent opportunity for the fans to support their local athletes and see some great track and field action.

"Good luck to all the athletes, and enjoy the meet!
