Girls Entertain Hundreds
Women's Gymnasium Opened to Guests and Stories of Scenes New Stage

Five hundred women were entertained at the women's new gymnastics on Friday and Saturday by the department of physical education, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Bates, Alice Stimson, and Mary Hopp. The program was a dance-recital given in costume by Fifty girls of the physical training classes, and as a result other members of the enthusiasm was over put on the

The writer's waste their effort, for, while The Daily Iowa is willing to withdraw the names of writers from publication, when that favor is asked, no better will be published than the writer's effort to the tenet. The best possible evidences of belief in the sentences expressed, and of good faith, is the signature of the writer.

Putting It Over
There is some discussion as to whether the Combine was made when the Iowa team tried a forward pass, which was changed to an attempt not run, when within a few feet of the Amos goal Saturday and making consistent gains through the line. The plan failed, the touchdowns were lost, and the management of the team is criticized.

But if the management had worked, it would have been batted as a daring pass of headwork, worthy of football immortality in the records of Iowa.

All of which goes to show how close failure is to success. The final test of any enterprise is, "Did he put the ball over?"—The Iowa City Citizen.

The University of Kansas this year has a freshman who is eight-foot-four and 225 pounds. His freshman, Mrs. Amy D. Work, says she believes that study keeps the mind active, and tend to spend the rest of her life teaching at various American colleges and universities.

Dr. Scott Hoering, who was expelled from the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania last year because of criticisms of the corporation of that state, has been appointed dean of the college of literature and arts at Tulia University.

The attendance of the University of Toronto has decreased nearly 1,200 since the war commenced. The University of Oregon is seen to be a woman's head of fraternity pieces. Difficulty is being experienced in finding girls to play the more drum and the cornet.

The Boosters' club at the University of Indiana has broached a plan which has originated out with the control of athletics in the hands of the students. One section will be placed at the head of a board of students in each of the athletic sports and these boards will be directly responsible for the funds of the several athletic tastes of the university.
