Shore Graphic and Physical Arts are not in the Same Class as Music

"I am positively using the idea of expressing and will be to create the same art, in the course of fine arts, and in other ways.

To show that music and music and fine arts are in the same class, it is important to show the fine art expression only. Expressions, as for instance, like language, may not, just may not, be used for the expression of an idea.

Christmas Suggestions at The Freshman Party

By the reader's art the spirit of the Christmas season is an angle that when by the decorations of the house, the group voice, and each listener felt nearly the peace which only Dickens can awaken.

And for the day off was no exception, and with this added light the trifle the interpretation, the form was enhanced. Mr. Spooner had as his task the difficult work of interpreting characters, which are so well-known as to need no further interpretation. He succeeded so admirably that he destroyed no conception already held by his listeners, but only enhanced their appreciation of the author’s masterful ability.

“Dickens,” said Mr. Spooner, “is a great confessor” because the play is true. He teaches us how to live ourselves and how to act toward each other. He fills us with a great attention, and the effect bestowed upon great novelist because his philosophy only Dickens can awaken.

Lovers of Dickens heard a rare bit of THE CHRISTMAS MERRY. For Information, Ask Mr. Spooner. The presentation of “David Copperfield,” by Frank Spooner. Trades turned back into the life of the author himself, from the interest he received in the story. From the interest, a picture of the author himself, a picture of himself ever was a problem. Dickens, also, was there, teaching and bullying in his characteristic way, and as active in other people’s affairs, as he is in his own. His life into the present was given, where, about the first week of February, the fortuitous meeting of friends was followed by a picnic among friends, except for work, like a pocket nutmeg

TRAVELING EXPERIENCES TODAY

IN INTERVIEW HERE

CHARGED WITH PROTECTING ARTEMISIAN CONVALESCENTS IN TURKEY ARE TERRIBLE

Ralph H. Hill, Cornell college graduate, who lectured last night at the Y. M. C. A. mid-week meeting, and who is an interview yesterday afternoon of his difficulties in getting out of Turkey. Mr. Hill and his wife were in Turkey, where the war broke out. They were working in the mission school and left only when war made necessary the closing of the school.

Encounter Difficulties.

They found it difficult to get out of the country and managed to do so after many more thrilling experiences. They left Athens for Aleppo on a military train which arrived almost over the calm before it was too late as they would not be able to catch the last train. They managed to get there and the other Americans coming from the interior of Turkey. At Aleppo they were arrested by the Austrian police and charged with dumping in the interior of the military forces stamped with the Armenian campaign. After being searched, they were released and they went back to Alexandria to meet the United States warship U.S.S. Mobile. The Mobile was in the harbor and H. H. H. on the boat and the license number compiled it in time to catch the boat. They sailed on Wednesday. They travelled on the Del Mar in Sydney and were transshipped to the Transvaal. The "Turks," said Mr. Hill, "are absolutely ignorant of what they are fighting for. When they heard to train the soldiers it is necessary to clear them which is right hand and which the left hand. Conditions are awful and the suffering cannot be imagined."

MAINE CUPRAIT, SENTINEL DEER

Monday afternoon, Assistant Professor Dil11 received a deer from T. A. James, curator of the Maine state game, at Augusta. It is an unusually fine specimen, and has what is scientifically called, a top paulad head, meaning that they are not set on each of the horns. Mr. James is the same man who sent the fine moose specimen to Prof. Adams a short time ago. The specimen is well preserved, and will be mounted later.

CHICAGO BEGINS WORK

Coed Page and Captain George are in Japan—Wearing Parents' Baseball.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—Basketball President of the University of Chicago has been started under the direction of Assistant Coach, Buehler, although Press and Taggart George are not returned yet from the baseball tip in Japan. Thurs. remat will be available this year—Captains George, all-conference guard, Bill or, forward, and Travillion, forward.

The best possible modulation in the series, under whose position he was drawn on the football team two weeks. Behr, guard, Marcus, center, Valloans, guard, and Bumford, center, keep the same positions. Travillion and George are almost sure of holding down their last year's positions. The team will probably line George and Huse at guard, Fishel at center, Behr or Bumford, the other forwards as necessary.

The annual Christmas tip through this and Michigan has been abandoned, due to the absence of Press and George. Several practices have been arranged with local provbal and church teams.

With a record of 13 victories and 1 defeat behind them the basketball team will arrive home from Japan Dec. 16. Of the defeats were at the hands of the Coast team in the prelim.
