Having the games scheduled for this week, there is not much optimism from the Hawkeyes in the next two games. The teams are scheduled to play on the Minnesota floor and put themselves in the front in the Big Nine conference championship race.

The Grinnell game Tuesday will interest in Iowa for the striking it will give to the relative strength of the Corn and Iowa teams. The clash will decide the title in the basketball conference.

Grinnell After Iowa

Reports from Grinnell indicate that the Red and Black team is definitely to employ in the home games this week. Both games this week will have names of the Iowa league to look forward to their considerable interest in these games.

"All college men, whether their dormitories lie in Iowa, Amos, Grinnell, Dakota, or other colleges of the same, have been on the same track in the race, with the more successful gaining the honors.

"The Cornell University basketball season, which began with the Big Ten Conference, will now open the Big Twelve Conference. The season will continue until May 1, with the final game to be played in the Big Twelve Conference.

"The Big Twelve Conference is composed of the following schools: Cornell University, Iowa State University, University of Minnesota, University of Wisconsin, University of Illinois, University of Missouri, University of Oklahoma, University of Kansas, University of Nebraska, and University of Colorado.

"The Big Twelve Conference is considered to be one of the strongest basketball conferences in the country, with each school having a first-class basketball program.

"The Big Twelve Conference will hold its first game of the season on January 1, with the game to be played in the University of Iowa's gymnasium.

CONCERNING MILITARY TRAINING

In a recent address before the students and alumni of the University of Illinois, President James E. V. Tolmie expressed his views on the importance of military training and its role in preparing students for leadership positions in society.

"Military training," he said, "is not only valuable as a form of education, but also as a means of developing character and leadership qualities. It is an important part of our national defense system, and we must continue to support and promote the principles of military training in our educational institutions."

The president also spoke about the unique opportunities that military training offers, such as the chance to travel and experience different cultures, as well as the potential for personal growth and development.

"Military training provides a platform for students to develop skills that are essential in today's globalized world," he continued. "It is a way of preparing them for the challenges they will face in the future, both in their personal and professional lives."

The president concluded his address by encouraging students to take advantage of the opportunities that military training offers, and to be proud of their service to their country.

THE LOOKOUT

SHAKESPEARE OUTRAGED

To eat, or not to eat, that is the question.

Whether to better attend the class
And take my chances with the dust
Or eat the class this morning
Just once, and be done with it.

Shakespeare would be greatly outraged by the current educational system, where students are forced to choose between attending class and surviving on meager meals. It is a travesty that educators must prioritize feeding their students over providing them with a quality education.

In many cases, the food offered in school cafeterias is unhealthy and unappetizing, making it difficult for students to eat properly. This is especially true for students who have dietary restrictions or preferences.

The solution is not to blame the students for not eating, but to address the root cause of the problem. Schools must work to offer healthier, more nutritious options to their students, and to ensure that all students are able to eat properly.
