FALL TOURNAMENT WILL START SOON

ELEVEN TENNIS COURTS NOW IN SHAPE FOR ANKET WILDLANDS

The year in tennis has already spread. Concurrent with registration, followers of the sport began to get the joints worked loose on the courts, and Dr. C. V. Der Zee announced yesterday that a full tournament will be held in the next two weeks.

Three new courts on the grounds to the northeast of the gymnasium were completed this season, and there are now eleven screened courts in all on which scholarships can be earned by the regulars in their skill. Since last June students in the junior school and faculty members have been busy pruning the courts.

Last spring no tournament was held because of lack of material but this year promises to put Iowa in the lead for the state collegiate championship. Coach Van Der Zee said yesterday that he wished all eligible men to get into the tournament. He intends to pick out the best nine men and endeavor to get them in shape for spring work.

"If I believe that we will have a better year for tennis," he said yesterday, "there are many likely candidates and if the weather permits we will try to get the men in shape." (Novice, who was a good man two years ago, will not be back but there are a number of good men from last year's Freshmen.)

Lucia Thomas has entered the University of Chicago this fall. Allens Beachfield, freshman Liberal arts last year, will not return to the university this fall. She will enroll next term. It is rumored.

The Y. M. C. A. again this year is going to hold a court-out. There are many likely candidates for the new season and no change. Old students can dispose of their used books and new students can secure finer looks at greatly reduced prices.

SELENIUM BRIDGE NOW ON MARKET

INVENTION OF DR. P. C. BROWN IS CITED TO MEASURE FLUCTUATIONS OF LIGHT

The selenium bridge invented by Dr. P. C. Brown, assistant professor of physics, to measure the fluctuations of light, is now being manufactured and sold for use in laboratories and commercial plants.

The essential part of the new apparatus in a ring in which single-ray crystal is used to bridge the gap in an electric circuit. Scientists have long sought for something by which to transfer the fluctuations of light into fluctuations of current, which can be easily recorded and measured.

Essentially the same principle was used in a somewhat more limited and delicate way by Dr. Brown in his development. A year ago, the young scientist arranged for an Iowa college a method of record automatically the amount of cloudiness and of the intensity of light in the atmosphere, which can be easily recorded and measured.

The new apparatus now on the market takes the place of a selenium rectifier, the essential part of the new instrument. It is reasonably priced and is now being manufactured in quantity.

In the Waist Section Monday—Dainty Autumn Waists that are Noticeably Different

Among the new arrivals are pretty blouses in dark colorings, suitable to wear with suits. Dainty, serviceable crepe-de-chine and georgette crepes in flesh color and white. A host of clever styles entirely different from any heretofore shown. Beautifully fashioned waists, the kind that any college girl will be proud to wear, are shown in pleasant variety, $2.50, $4.50, $6.50 to $10.00.

New Fall Skirts of Cloth and Silk

We feature the new fall skirts this week and among them are many smart tailored and trimmed models of soft satin silk, wool, poplin, serge, elopage, and fancy plaids.

The young woman looking for something distinctive and stylish will find it among these models—many perfect styles. The styles are based on Paris decrees, but modified and dignified for the best dressed American young woman, $5.50 to $15.00.

A Successful Department

For 15 years The Big Store has been headquarters for the good, stylish and moderately priced apparel for the girl who goes to college, current or school. Garments needed for college—dinner, cot- tings and class wear are shown here in a pleasing variety.

TEACHERS OBTAIN HIGH SALARIES

THE UNIVERSITY COMMITTEE ON RECOMMENDATIONS PLACED 202 IN GOOD POSITIONS

Many Iowa school teachers placed by the university committee on recommendation of teachers, will receive up to $115 a month, and the smallest amount any will get is $85. Twenty-four superintendents who have been placed, will receive from $75 to $150 annually, the average being over $125. Twenty-two university trained teachers have been placed in the grades at salaries ranging from $100 to $175.

In six months the university has placed 217 candidates in new positions, a record for an Iowa college. The total number placed last year was 172.

Kenneth Whitman, L. A. '18, has taken a position on a newspaper in Oregon and does not expect to return to school this year.

Robert Shaw Now on Firing Line

University Graduate of Last June Comes Six Months With Allies

Is Directing Motor Ambulance in Front Line of French and British Trenches Where Fighting Is Thickest—To Study Conditions at the Front

Six months of service for the allies on the western battle fronts in France is at present occupying the attention of Robert J. Shaw, of Haytiwilla, a graduate of the university last June, who is now in the college of liberal arts, who sailed eastward from New York City about August first on a ship of the American Ambulance Service.

Mr. Shaw entered the American Ambulance Service where he is called upon to drive a motor ambulance for the transportation of the wounded. His work takes him into the very front line of the French and British trenches where the fighting is the thickest and where he must pick up the bodies of the wounded soldiers until the hour of daylight.

It is reported that all the wounded must be brought to the ambulance within five minutes after they are received there and it is expected that Mr. Shaw will be in France until January 31, 1916. There have been over 200 visitors to the ambulance service where he is now.

While driving the ambulance he is at all times on the watch for any danger to himself. Mr. Shaw says that the danger is extreme, but, as he said before leaving, he is going "to study conditions at the front."

"I saw some leading heroes of animation and other situations of war on the local post just leaving," Bob says from the ship in New York. "It seems a mockery that there are so many here going over the roads of driving ambulances and to be doctors and the same ship is taking away enough ammunition to keep them busy for months.

After meeting his R. A. degree for June Shaw studied law in the summer school of the university of Chicago. While attending school here for four or five years he has been leader in university life, particularly in the nature of former activities.

Shaw was president of the Illinois Literary Society, was president of the R. U. S. P. Forensic League, and also president of the Northern Oratorical League. He was twice a member of the debating team that appeared against the university of Illinois.

On August 15, 1914, the manager of the Ford automobile company, decided to add the ambulance for the duration of the war, and with this as a motive the transportation department of the American Ambulance service has grown until today there are over 200 cars in the service all driven by university men. Up to January 31, 1916, there had been 100,000 wounded transported in the ambulances at an average cost of 50 francs for each patient.

Twenty-three colleges and universities are represented in the service. Harvard leads the list with fifty-five men in the field, Yale has seventeen, Princeton sixteen, Columbia nine, and others in smaller numbers.

Shaw is the first man from the state of Iowa to enlist in this service.
