DEAN HAMMOND TO NEW YORK

A trip to New York to attend a meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers on the valuation of public utilities will take Dean Hammond of the college of applied science from the university for about a week. He will start Saturday night.

The committee has been working on a report for this subject for three or four years, according to the dean, and hopes to complete the report at last.

The play should play to big business for it is always popular and the presentation this year was distinctly satisfactory.

It was just twenty years ago that "In Old Kentucky" was first seen. Many thousands of Shakespearean have seen it since then and many thousands of dollars have been made by it for its owners and its author, Charles S. Dana.

Many persons prominent in theatrical life have been associated with it, including Julia Arthur (Mrs. H. E. Clorey), the original Barbara Helene, Laura January, the original Colonel Frederick; Frank Lucas, and Marion Hittson, his wife, who was the first Madame to swing across chasm and save her lover's life, and George Holden, father of Robert Holden.

The comments on Minnesota are excerpted from final examinations next June.

Coach Merle Kent says that the game with Purdue will be exciting but easy. He saw the Ballroomers beat Wabash last Saturday and was impressed by their steady consistent playing. He said that they didn't make the smartest plays, but played "steady sort of game."

"They have a well balanced team and lots of pep."

"They have a good defense and we are behind our defense," continued Coach Kent.

"They have a good defense and we are behind our defense, and we have a good defense and we will have to play hard, fast football to beat them."

Dear Friend:

I was glad to get your letter. Personally I think that betting is wrong and do not believe in it. The idea is of getting something for nothing which isn't right.

In the matter of backing up your school college by money, a man seems to me to be a pretty poor sort of loyalty. You will often hear, in connection with two rival theaters or issue, that "money talks", but I think that the way it talks is in a sort of a passive way, to follow up the strife of appealing. If your town loses, the regret is often a financial and not school view. I myself, hate to find that I am betting on it. I think money is in the poorest case, it is not the best that is going on. In college you do not find the strongest and best men betting. A fellow that has been betting and stops because he believes it is wrong, for fear of losing the sort of popularity he had among a few, the game is over (which is more than popular) oil a larger part of the college. SPEAKERS TALK ENTHUSIASTICALLY AT NAMI MEETING

An informative, covering every present fact in the national science auditorium to attend the mass meeting in preparation for the Purdue game. Prof. E. L. Lauer of the German department presided genially, and the band and roll band members were on hand to do their part in warming up the Iowa spirit for the opening of the conference season.

The speakers were enthusiastic over prospects in general, and it was noticeable that all looked forward with far more concern for the Minnesota game, which is a week distant than to the Purdue game immediately at hand. The following paragraphs give a purpose of their remarks.

Professor Goodrich
"The conference, known as the Big Nine, is now divided by common consent into what is known as the Big Four and the Little Five, in which latter division Iowa is located. This is as much our fault as it is the fault of others. We have in the past been satisfied with state championships and we measure the success of our athletes against that standard. What we must do is to bolster ourselves mentally and actually until the Big Four becomes a Big Five by virtue of the fact that Iowa forces have gone in to the Little Five with a determination to make it a Big Five or a Little Five?"

Prof. E. L. Mudge, who leave today for Purdue has a position in the German department and presided genially, and the band and yell led the Big Nine Is now tacitly divided by the opening of the conference season. If we set the map before us, it is certain thatwe will be the one to do the growing.

"If we are defeated. Do you at all able to get out for the team?

It is the fault of others. We have count."

L. Trede
