BUILDING AUTO TESTING PLANT

SPECIAL SHOP TO RECEIVE HOWA
OWNED CARS FOR POWER
TESTS

Through the conservation of an automatic testing plant the University of Iowa is preparing to make the service of its expert mechanical engineering available to Iowa citizens in a directly practical way. The testing machinery, first year was housed in the regular shops but it was not easily accessible there. Now it will be placed in a brick building to be used particularly for testing automobiles. When the plant is complete it will be possible for any automobile owner in the state to drive his car into the testing room and learn the actual horsepower that his machine will develop and the way it can be made to develop the most power with the least fuel. The car will be tested as to its power under actual conditions of driving. Even the wind pressure is to be applied to the fore part by a new device. Tests of the power of the engine back on the chassis and off will be made when desired, and the owner will be informed whether too much power is being lost in its delivery from engine to road surface. The position on the road of engine and tires, improvement of mufflers and other information will be given. The tests that are taken on this testing plant will be carried on by the engineers; in determining the quality of the various makes and the degree of reduction that will give the best result.
