THAT THE HILL "SAYS" THAT THEIR HOUSES MAY NOT BE OF THE "INVOLVED" KIND

-- "A case is to be made," said Mr. Jones, "but it cannot be done anywhere else."

"It is also a violation," said Mr. Smith, "of the law for those not in uniform to use the articles in question."

The purpose of the sale of the Ames tickets will be to encourage students to buy them. The University has been given permission by the state to sell the tickets at a nominal price.

The sale of the Ames tickets will begin on Wednesday, and will continue until the tickets are sold out.

The tickets will be sold for $1.50 each, and will be available at the ticket window at the University Athletic Center.

A VIOLEATION OF A FEDERAL ACT TO BE PENALIZED

Richardson, an executive of the United States Army, was fined $100 for violating the act.

Richardson had purchased a pair of army boots, which he believed to be "second hand." Upon examination, it was discovered that the boots were manufactured in violation of the act.

The fine was imposed by the court, which also ordered Richardson to return the boots to the manufacturer.

The case is one of the many that have been brought to the attention of the military department in recent weeks.

It is expected that similar cases will come before the courts in the near future.

THE LAST HITS

Next week’s attention will be focused on sports, the students and faculty will gather in the natural science auditorium for a brand new program that will feature the work of A. G. Smith, dean of Iowa’s athletics. It is hardly necessary to urge readers of this paper to attend.

This is the second game in a series that stops to think what A. G. Smith stands for in a literary way so that you can tell the folk about him. Then some girl will say “Oh for darling! I love his big blue eyes!”

From New York can be obtained a different picture of where they battle, you will always hear that practice and all fields show from there to here! Even through your town is under and your line is torn asunder, and you throb tender! “I wonder what is in tender!”

There, the lead has quieted. There is a rush only helping! That their strength is slowly worn out — watch ’em when they start to fight.

Catch that kicker! He’s a stinker! The others—very sticky. As one line “We made a barker to attend the dance tonight.”

The greatest game of ’em all college! To state the least all over Iowa, and baseball will please —he will last long on the team, until we sometimes wish our ballasts.

Would forget about their knowing for the up of a pile of dots that would keep us safe at home!}

For when your team has shaken the be- con.

You hands’re slick: none: you’ll make a fool or will you be making as you dance across the flame?

For your head is full of hallucinations! Dance at bully’s fudge at Mr. Smith’s, Spalted at Olive’s. (Or you post semi-football games)

A WORD TO THE WISE ABOUT COAL

“With the coming of zero weather it is practically certain that the whole country will be caught in the clutches of a coal famine more serious than any in its previous history.

The famine already prevails in New York and has spread so far west as Ohio. It is expected to strike Chicago in all its severity within a month.”
