SENIOR ENGINEERS OUT LOOKING OVER INDUSTRIAL WORLD

ENTERTAINED AS THEY SEE WONDERS ON INSPECTION TRIP

First Stop at Keokuk Where They Visit Four Large Concerns—Are Given Four Course Dinner—Will See Game Today at Evanston

Reports from the first part of the inspection trip being made by the senior civil and electrical engineers under the direction of Professors S. H. Sims and J. B. Hill indicate that the men are having a great time and gathering a lot of valuable information.

The arrived in Keokuk Monday morning. They went to the Mississippi River Power Plant. They were directed about by Assistant General Manager Rowland, who showed them everything from top to bottom with detailed explanation. From the generator pit the boys could look up and see the generator and look down and see the turbine. The big locks were operated in order to show the men how they worked. Each man was given a book containing the history and statistics of the plant.

From the plant the men were taken in automobiles to a hotel and given a four course dinner. They were seated at one large table with the officials of the company and some officials of the Keokuk Power company. An outburst of "Who wah wahs" and "Oski-wow-wows" for the hosts at the completion of the "feed" showed how the dinner was appreciated.

Next the substitution of the Keokuk Power company where energy is received at 110,000 volts and distributed to consumers at 110 volts was visited. The street car barns were the next point of interest.

At the one of the two plants in the United States where zinc is refined by the electrolytic process they found 4000 amperes in use in the process.

A sightseeing trip along the river ended at the Elks' club, where refreshments were served. That evening the boys went on to Chicago and have spent a week there and in Milwaukee, Gary, and Pullman. The expedition will end at Evanston this afternoon and the party will reach home Sunday.

REDUCE TUITION FEE

The tuition of the correspondence course which is under the supervision of the extension division, has been considerably reduced. The fee of the two hour course has been reduced from $12 to $8, of the three hour course from $18 to $12, of the four hour course from $24 to $16, and from the five hour course from $30 to $20.

The enrollment fee of $2, which is payable but once, has not been changed.

DILL GETS HUNTING DOG

Prof. Homer Dill has acquired a new hunting dog. That is, the canine has been shipped on approval. "We are expecting great results, but as yet our hopes have not been realized," Professor Dill says. "But if he is as good as he's cracked up to be he will prove a great addition to the department in the way of securing specimens."

The dog responds to almost any name but is properly called Wapello, or "Wap" for short.

TROWBRIDGE TO SPEAK

Dr. A. C. Trowbridge will give an address at a banquet of the first annual older boys' conference at Davenport on Saturday evening. His subject will be "The Game of Life."

HE'S STILL AT LARGE

When the freshmen dents held their meeting to select a stunt to perform for the Iowa-Nebraska game one of their number suggested that during the first half a large (fake) Nebraska hen, attired in Nebraska apparel, come forth and lay an egg, the egg being a football, whereupon an Iowa rooster of gigantic proportions was to strut forth and seize the egg, making off with it.

The young genius, through an admirable magnanimity on the part of the fellow students, was permitted to remain for the rest of the meeting, provided he would say not another word.

Dr. Mark F. Boyd, state epidemiologist, has returned from two trips out in the state to investigate epidemics. The first was to Montour, where there is an epidemic of diptheria, and the second was to Manchester to investigate scarlet fever.

UNIVERSITY BAND OFF TO EVANSTON

MUSICIANS FAIL TO RAISE ENOUGH COIN BUT DECIDE TO MAKE TRIP

The band is at Northwestern, but did not go there entirely on the funds raised this week. Since it had been widely advertised that the musicians would be on the program, members of the band decided to make up the deficit out of their own pockets.

They left at 12:25 o'clock this morning and their program will be carried out as scheduled.

One member of the band, when he saw the shortage in funds, suggested that the amount on hand be invested in wheat and that they take a chance on its paying dividends sufficient to send them to the windy city.

LOYALTY CLUB PLANS ITS WINTER ACTIVITIES

The Loyalty club, an organization of town girls under the leadership of the Y. W. C. A. held its regular meeting at Close hall Tuesday evening. A program committee to plan the meetings until Christmas was appointed. A program committee to plan the meetings until Christmas was appointed. A class in English was formed which will include those members which are foreigners. Mary Moss a freshman in the college of liberal arts, will have charge of this. Other classes will be arranged for as soon as teachers can be found among the University students.

In the November issue of the National College Republican, are found articles by Robert J. Shaw on "What Happened to Me on the La Fayette" and by G. W. Norris on "Splintered Planks." Both of these men were University students.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM RUNS AT AMES TODAY

The cross country team accompanied by Max Wilson, last year's varsity guard, left at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the Cedar Rapids interurban for Ames where they will represent Iowa today in a match with the Aggies.

All the men are in good trim, according to Captain Schell, and will run a good race. Ames has a very strong team this year and nearly all men have had previous experience.

The men who made the trip are: Captain Schell, Jamieson, Hausler, Pillars, Gee, and Marasco.

VIGILANT SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL ESCAPED REPTILE WAS SHIPPED TO ZOOLOGY FAC- ULTY THURSDAY FROM MIS- SOURI

Only Explanation of Disappearance is that Reptile Expert in Transferring Snake to Permanent Cage For- got to Lock the Door

Somewhere in the wilds of the natural science building a snake is wriggling its way toward freedom, or else it has settled on the first lap of a hibernation.

Nobody knows where the snake is. It came to a member of the zoology faculty Thursday from Missouri. When it arrived, it was securely packed in a small box. It proved to be a small snake,—oh, a very tiny snake.

Somehow, in transferring the very tiny snake to a permanent cage, the expert on reptiles left the door unlatched or failed to turn the key or left a window up, or something of that kind.

And the snake—being from Missouri, you know—crawled out to investigate things.

Since then its whereabouts is unknown.

Vigilant search for the fugitive yesterday proved unavailing. Janitors scoured the premises—figuratively only—and zoology students went a-beating the bush all through the building. They returned empty-handed.

Owners of the snake hope for its return today. They think it may get hungry and homesick and come back of its own accord, or perhaps some co-ed may meet it in one of the numerous pathways that thread the natural science jungles and effect a capture.

At present their fears are only for the safety of the snake. But if many years pass without discovery of the thing it might grow large enough to eat a couple of bookworms in the library for lunch some day.

PICTURES REVEALED ALASKAN RESOURCES

SHOWN BY PROFESSOR WYLIE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON IN SLIDES

The lecture on "The Natural History of Alaska" by Professor R. B. Wylie given in the old science building Wednesday afternoon revealed the wonderful resources of Alaska unknown to most persons and waiting to be developed. The slides which he used with his lecture showed immense forests of hemlocks and birch trees which cover the steep mountain sides and whose diameters at the trunk often are as great as six feet.

Professor Wylie stated that only a small amount of lumber has been shipped out of Alaska because of the inadequate means of transportation. There has been some movements for forest reserves but the residents are opposed to them because they think that they would retard the development of the country.

REPORTS OF GAME BEGIN AT 2:15 IN N. S. AUDITORIUM

The reports of the Iowa-Northwestern game will be received at the natural science auditorium beginning at 2:15. An admission of fifteen cents will be charged.

Dean Raymond visited at Oxford Thursday night.

YES IT IS AND NO IT ISN'T

"Why—er—no, there's nothing this morning, I believe. Say, it looks like Wilson, don't it? I hoped he would be so overwhelmingly defeated that no one in the world would think that the American people considered him as their representative. Why, no European king would dare to use such secrecy and intrigue as has been the order of the white house the last four years. I once wanted to see how a University man would get along as president, but now I've seen enough."

"No, not today. I see the Tribune is out for Wilson this morning, so he must be pretty sure. I never could understand why some fellows go so perfectly crazy over Republicanism. I have no politics. I always scratch my ticket. Presidents don't make conditions, and things will go on the same whether Wilson or Hughes is elected."

And they are both honest professors, too.

FOLLOW UP MOVE TO BEGIN MONDAY

CHAIRMAN FRITZ AND ASSIST- TANTS TO GO AFTER UN- IVERSITY MEN

The follow-up membership campaign of the Y. M. C. A. will open next Monday morning. Ralph Fritz is the chairman of the committee which will endeavor to see all University men not visited in the earlier canvass. The present membership is 558.

"We are expecting this campaign to raise our membership to 800, a number which will place us on an average with the majority of state universities," Guy V. Aldrich, secretary of the association said Friday morning.

CO-EDS TO HOLD "PEP" MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

Energetic co-eds are backing the team by creating an atmosphere of "pep" and loyalty.

Wednesday night at 7:15 the girls who expect to attend the Ames game will meet in the liberal arts drawing room to decide upon what methods they can best use in demonstrating their affection for their alma mater.

"We need more 'pep' among the girls in this institution, and we co-workers of the team are trying to create it," said one enthusiastic booster for the cause.

Wesley Guild, a Methodist student organization, met at the home of Reverend L. F. Townsend last Thursday evening. F. A. Walker led the meeting consisting of a discussion on "Dark Peoples and Their Customs."

WILL SING AT BAND CONCERT

VAN DOREN SAYS FIRST CON- CERT WILL BE BEST EVER

The first band concert of the year will be given on Tuesday, November 21, in the natural science auditorium, according to announcement made yesterday by O. E. Van Doren, director of the band. One of the features of the program will be the singing of Miss Bertha Anne Cooper, soprano soloist, of the University music faculty.

"The concert is going to be the best ever," Mr. Van Doren asserts. "The men have been working hard and could, if necessary put on a very creditable concert right tonight."

RESOLUTIONS FOR DEAN WILCOX AND PROFESSOR SMITH

LIBERAL ARTS FACULTY PRAISES WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY EDUCATORS

Dean William Craig Wilcox and Pro- fessor Arthur George Smith Hon- ored by Members of the Faculty of the College of Liberal Arts

Resolutions expressing appreciation of the work accomplished at the University by Dean William Craig Wilcox and Professor Arthur George Smith, deceased members of the faculty of the college of liberal arts who have died recently, have been adopted by the faculty of the college.

The greatest regard for each of these educators in a professional way and as men of true personal worth is expressed.

Commenting upon the death of Dean Wilcox, the college faculty expressed itself in the following resolution:

"By the death of William Craig Wilcox, the faculty of the college of liberal arts has sustained a profound loss. For twenty-two years Mr. Wilcox has been a member of this body; for seven years he has been its dean; and in both capacities he has left a deep and beneficent impression on this college. As an executive, strong, just, sympathetic; as a committee member, indefatigable and wise; as a friend, unflinching, he will live in the consciousness of the liberal arts faculty as a body, and in the heart of each of its members.

"It is with a sense of this loss which it has sustained that the faculty of the college of liberal arts resolves:

"First, that it express its recognition of the long and efficient service which Dean Wilcox has rendered the University of Iowa, both as professor of history and as dean of the college of liberal arts; and its high appreciation of his character as a man, colleague, and friend.

"Second, that it spread upon its minutes and send to his bereaved family this expression of its loss."

The death of Professor Smith called forth the following appreciation of the deceased head of the department of mathematics and astronomy:

"After a long illness, borne with an unflinching courage of which few are capable, Professor Arthur George Smith, head of the department of mathematics, has passed from our midst. Graduating in 1891, he gave the two following years to preparation for a service in this University which was to absorb his entire active life and thought. For the past twenty-three years no man has served the University more whole hearted devotion. He was an active leader of the students in college and ever since has been an able and inspiring teacher. He was an investigator of great promise, and only his unremitting devotion to such duties as the care of the athletic interests of the University prevented him from leaving behind him an enduring monument of scholarship. His varied interests, his wide knowledge, his energy, his firm and acute judgment, his fine and sensitive nature, above all his splendid integrity, were among the qualities which made of Professor Smith a great personality who influenced and inspired every one who had the good fortune to work with him either as a student or as a colleague.

"We the members of the Faculty of Liberal Arts, feel that in the death of Professor Smith we have met individually and as a college a loss that is irreparable and which leaves in us all a depth of sorrow which can be but faintly expressed in words."

LUTECE—WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

In ancient times during the Roman invasion, there dwelt on what is the present site of the City of Paris, a little community known as Lutetia, or, as the French have it, Lutece. It is a pretty name and an unusual one, and seemed altogether and entirely appropriate when several years ago three distinguished French musicians, erstwhile Parisians, forgathered and decided to band themselves together permanently as a trio, because they had so long known one another and enjoyed so extremely playing with one another. It was then, as the Trio de Lutece, that these three compatriots made their first bow to New York on February 22, 1914. They were, George Barrere, the great master flautist of the day, whose distinguished art, brilliant musicianship and educational achievement as the founder of the famous Barrere Ensemble of wind instruments, had placed him on the roster of the musically acclaimed; Carlos Salezdo, the first great virtuoso of the harp ever heard in this country, whose harp like Barrere's "Magic Flute" has been a revelation, and won for him the position of solo harpist at the Metropolitan Opera; and Paul Kefer, for five years solo cellist with the New York Symphony Orchestra. With such a personnel, success seemed certain and it was expected that the trio would be well received, but it was not anticipated that in musically surfeited New York it would have to give a second concert to accommodate those who could not gain admittance to the Belasco Theatre (one of the largest in the city), for its first concert. Nor, indeed, was its astonishing success of three public concerts in as many weeks in London a foregone conclusion, as London is proverbially cold to American musical enterprises. During the past season the Trio de Lutece has made extended tours throughout the Middle West, and from all the cities visited come the same equivocal indorsements previously extended by New York and London.

FASHIONS IN SHOES FOR FALL

Fashion says "look young." No, years have nothing to do with it. The mode has won a decisive victory over the calendar. Eyes look from under wide hats over collars that are wider still. The most demure expression becomes coquettish under these conditions. Full-skirted coats swing from a well-defined waist line to the knee or lower. Below them comes an inch or two of dress skirt, and then smart high boots—kid, or Russia calf, or patent leather. The fall fashions can be summed up in a sentence: "The widest liberty but the most exacting demand for smartness of line." The shoe, as in the last two seasons, fills a most responsible place in the ensemble of the wardrobe.

COUSINS SHOES made in New York FOR WOMEN are designed to complete the season's smartest costumes. These and other styles from the best makers are ready.

TOO BAD! IT WASN'T FOR EITHER CANDIDATE

As distant strains of music were heard, an air of tense excitement prevailed in the crowd. Some students turned pale and others meditatively felt in their treasure pockets.

The strains became louder and more insistent. Strong men leaned against the building and wept like children. Women fainted.

Questioning glances seemed to say, "Which one got it?" Even the florid policeman braced against a telephone pole.

Then the band came noisily around the corner. Behind it were marchers bearing a huge K. P. banner.

"WHAT MEN LIVE BY"

(There will appear in this Column from Day to Day, Quotations from Modern Writers and Speakers, Letters from Alumni and Friends of the University, and Statistics Relative to men and Institutions.)

"Consider again how constantly the Master was compelled to stand out against the customs of his people. The drag of ordinary standards is always down, whenever a man tries to live his best in life. In a democracy we are tempted to think that 'The voice of the people is the voice of God.' Is that true? Which would win by a popular vote: Wagner or ragtime? Shakespeare or vaudeville? George Elliot or sensational fiction? The finest ideals of character or the mediocre? The world is not yet saved, and it always pulls down on the best in us. Any man who is going to achieve worthy character must have the power and courage to stand out against debasing, vulgar standards. Think of the truth of this in regard to social customs, especially where young men and women are concerned; in regard to the character of fiction often popular; in regard to flippancy and irreverence about religion."

—Fosdick.
