RAILROADS MAY BE PROHIBITED FROM CARRYING LIQUOR

WHITMORE OF OTTUMWA WILL INTRODUCE BILL WITH SUCH A PROVISION

Bill To Be Modelled After West Virginia Law—Dry Adherents Say That Webb-Kenyon Law Will Make Iowa Arid

Des Moines, Jan. 10—Members of the dry faction in the legislature believe that the United States supreme court decision on the Webb-Kenyon law will have the effect of making Iowa an arid desert, in the interior portions at least.

They are making preparations for legislation which will take advantage of all the points brought out in this decision that will tend to strengthen the law against the importation of liquor. Senator Chester Whitmore of Wapello county, who was one of the leaders in the Mulct law repeal two years ago, is in fact preparing an amendment to the prohibitory law which will prohibit common carriers bringing liquor into the state and repeal that portion of the present law which permits the importation of liquor for personal consumption.

Whitmore says that he expects to introduce this bill within the next ten days. He is also authority for the statement that it will follow closely the provisions of the West Virginia law which was sustained by the Supreme court along with the Webb-Kenyon law. The Wapello county legislator points out that the elimination of the railroads and express companies as a means of transportation for liquor will make the state dry as the proverbial bone.

If Senator Whitmore works all of the provisions of the West Virginia law into his amendment and it is passed by the legislature it will be impossible to bring more than a half gallon of liquor across the state line by any means without having printed or painted on the receptacle its contents. Violation of this statute under the West Virginia law carries a penalty of confiscation of the liquor and prosecution.

HOUSE IS ADJOURNED

Impossible for Speaker to Have Committees Appointed Before Next Tuesday

Des Moines, Jan. 10.—A joint committee from the two houses yesterday afternoon canvassed the vote on governor and lieutenant governor and following the close of the canvass each house adjourned until Thursday. The work of organization was completed yesterday in both branches. Following the inauguration the usual recess will be taken until Tuesday of next week. Speaker Pitt found it impossible to have his committee appointments ready before that time.

CLEVELAND TO SIGN "LEFTY" DEARDORFF

TELEGRAM FROM PLAIN DEALER MAKES THIS SEEM LIKELY

Has F. W. Deardorff, Iowa's star pitcher of last year, been signed up with the Cleveland Naps?

A telegram received at the office of the Daily Iowan last night from the Cleveland Plain Dealer, reads as follows:

"Sports Editor, Daily Iowan:—Please mail at once photo of pitcher Deardorff in uniform, also giving his record, etc."

Inquiry at the Xi Psi Phi house failed to bring results. Fraternity brothers of the pitcher could neither verify nor deny the story.

DENTS GET DEMONSTRATIONS

Dr. Edward T. Tinker of Minneapolis is in Iowa City this week giving a series of demonstrations before the senior dental class. The demonstration consists of the method of crown and bridge work devised by Dr. Tinker himself.

Mrs. W. A. Jessup, Mrs. E. Horn, Mrs. C. H. Moore, Mrs. E. Faris, Mrs. A. K. Krehbell, and Mrs. A. Camerer were hostesses at a Triangle club tea held yesterday afternoon in the club rooms.

L. A. Murphy, a freshman in liberal arts, was operated on Tuesday afternoon in the University hospital for a growth on the inside of his lower lip, which was the result of a wound received in football practice last fall.

June Cummins, who is attending school at Coe college, will be the guest of Elma Forbes at the Alpha Chi Omega house Saturday and Sunday of this week-end. She will be a guest at the Theta Xi party on Saturday evening.

Dr. A. E. Jennings, Jr., instructor in chemistry, was confined to his home Saturday and Monday with the grippe. He was back at work Tuesday.

Miss Edna Coombs, sophomore, has returned to the University following an attack of appendicitis during the holidays.

Sadie Whitney and Florence Davenport will entertain their friends at an informal dinner tonight at their home, 501 South Dubuque street.

O. E. Klingaman, of the extension division, will give an address before the Commercial club of Perry Thursday evening.

Lucile Waldron talked to the freshman commission Tuesday afternoon on dramatics.

Joe Beck, who attends Iowa Wesleyan college, spent the week end with Warren Huebner.

BOARD TO APPROVE SOLICITING OF ALL FUNDS BY STUDENTS

RESOLUTIONS PASSED REQUIRE APPROVAL OF ALL CAMPAIGNS

Account of All Funds Collected to be Audited by Board—Tag Sales, Relief Funds, Etc., to be Included

"Hereafter, no student or student organization of the University of Iowa shall, for any purpose, solicit money or subscriptions for funds among the student body, faculty, alumni, or townspeople without first obtaining the consent of the executive committee of the Board on Extra-Curricular Activities.

"All solicitations or subscriptions which have the approval of the executive committee of the Board on Extra-Curricular Activities must be made on uniform blanks which shall be secured from the chairman of the Board of Extra-Curricular Activities, and a final and complete report must be filed promptly with the Chairman of the Board of Audit."

The foregoing resolution, which has been introduced before the board of extra-curricular activities and which will probably be passed substantially as it is, means that there will be no more tag days or other money-raising campaigns at Iowa without proper system, regulation, and approval.

It is designed, according to Prof. F. G. Higbee, to protect the students. Many causes might be worthy of support, but it might not be advisable to seek that support through a campaign among the students.

Of the many campaigns which have been carried on for money-raising, the most recent are the campaign to send the band to Chicago, and the campaign for funds for relief in European war prisons. A report on neither has been published yet.

In the tag sale for the band $422.90 was reported raised by sale of tags, from business men, and from the Democratic committee for work in the parade.

The report of the campaign which has been submitted to Captain Morton C. Mumma does not show how much each solicitor collected. There was no method of checking up the receipts of every man who sold tickets. The system was generally unsatisfactory, Captain Mumma declares.

Guy V. Aldrich of the Y. M. C. A., who had charge of the prison relief campaign, said yesterday that his report had not been made yet because several subscriptions have not been paid. The second notice has been sent to delinquent subscribers in an effort to raise the $500 that is due. When all the money has been collected or efforts to make collections given up, a detailed report will be forthcoming.

Under the new regulations only causes approved by the University authorities may be presented for subscriptions, and all collections will be made according to a system that will permit careful auditing afterward to determine how every cent was collected and where it went.

PLAN DENTAL COURSE

A list of the liberal arts subjects to be taken by the dentists next year who will commence the four year course in dentistry, has been submitted by Dean Breene to President Jessup. No definite action with regard to these subjects has as yet been taken.

PRE-MEDICS WILL GIVE DANCE SOON

ORGANIZE AND ELECT OFFICERS—SCANLON IS PRESIDENT

The sophomore and junior pre-medics will give a dance on the last Friday of this semester which will come on January 2. Tentative arrangements have already been outlined for this function. A meeting was held last night at Close hall at which plans were made for the affair.

This will be the first dance given by pre-medics since the one the present senior class gave when they were sophomore pre-medics.

The officers of the pre-medics, elected at the last meeting; are: "Red" Scanlon, president; W. J. Shaw, secretary and treasurer.

The pre-medics are "peppy" this year, about fifty being members of the sophomore class. One of their boasts is that they have sent a representative to all of the out of town football games this year.

ALUMNI MEETING IN SEATTLE

The Iowa Alumni of the state of Washington will hold a reunion in Seattle on January 20. The committee in charge has written to the president, requesting him to send slides and literature, representing the progress of the University.

Dr. Walter S. Cardell, of Lone Tree, of the dental class of 1916, has sold his practice in that town to C. E. Walters, a fellow graduate who has been practicing at Clarion. Cardell ceases practicing because of ill health.

Don Luscombe of Iowa City will leave for Carroll this week where he will be employed in a clothing store. He will have charge of the advertising and buying.

Julia A. Robinson, secretary of the state library commission, was in the city yesterday discussing plans for the state library school at the University next summer.

Dr. C. H. Weller will deliver a lecture next Saturday on "Velasquez and Murillo." Both of these painters represent the Spanish school.

Carlotta Carter of West Union has returned to the University after a week's absence on account of illness at her home.

The crippled kids who are no longer under hospital treatment have been promoted to the convalescent hospital at 403 Jefferson street.

Clayton Johnson, a liberal arts student, was operated on at the University hospital Tuesday, January 8, for appendicitis.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, will give a formal dance February 2.

CADETS OFFICERED FIRST ARMIES FOR ENGLAND--BEITH

SACRIFICE MANY OF THEM IN FIRST MONTHS OF WAR

Few Officers Have College Training—Political Influence in Making of Promotions—Close Contact of Men in Army Influence for Good

It was England's 25,000 former cadets such as are trained at Iowa that officered a large part of her first new armies, according to a statement by Ian Hay (Captain Beith) in an interview yesterday. Just as in England, in case of war our armies would be built around former cadets as a frame work.

Shortly before the war the English government assumed control of the cadets and offered one pound to each school for each cadet who satisfactorily completed the year's work, passing them and making payment by the company only. Retired army officers were assigned as instructors and periodical government inspection by the war department took place. For each cadet who finally entered the army as an officer a bonus of five pounds was paid the school. The equipment and training furnished these cadets was similar to that given at Iowa.

Sacrifice Cadets

At first commissions were not given out fast enough to these younger men and they formed battalions of their own, numbers which were unfortunately sent to the front instead of being held to officer the new contingents. This wasteful use of these cadets, according to Captain Beith, was one of the big crimes of these first months. He said it is what might happen in this country in case of war unless action in times of peace was taken to prevent it.

As a result of this wasteful use of cadets in the firing line, England soon found herself short of material for officers. Although until this time experience only had been considered in choosing officers, now opportunity for political bargaining was given. Inferior officers resulted. A system of three months training under probation followed for all candidates for commissions.

Lack College Training

"But very few of the English regular army officers have a college education" was his reply to the query as to the relative merits of the English and American college men as army officers. They go directly from high school to one of two officers training schools from where, after one years concentrated study of military subjects, they are given their commissions in the regular service. Those who elect a university course before entering the army find themselves three year's behind their own class in an army where seniority decides promotion, for which reason but few choose university training.

Influence Of Politics

Only after all men with experience had been used up was political influence felt in the making of promotions, according to Captain Beith. When it was felt, poor officers resulted. The government took care of the situation then by requiring all officers to come up from the ranks. (Continued on Page Four)

RESEARCH vs. TEACHING

The Daily Illini recently caused something of a commotion when it charged that Illinois professors were slighting, teaching and favoring research work at the expense of 6,000 students. In an editorial the Illini said:

"The University of Illinois is in the midst of a period of frenzied research in practically every branch of learning.

"The research, all right in its place, goes on at the expense of good teaching.

"Some professors are so gripped by the research and the publication spirit that they feel it beneath them to go into a classroom and instruct a class of mere undergraduates. They, authorities in their field, had better be giving their time to intensive study and extensive publication.

"No matter whether any one reads their stuff; no matter if they are failing to actually teach 6,000 students, they must get a long list of publications to their credit, for well they know their success is to be measured not by the quality of their teaching but by a yard stick applied to the list of their articles appearing in to reprint.

"The research octopus has us in its clutches; yes, and we know who uses the yard stick."

The position of the Illini is, evidently, that the duty of the university to enrich young minds from the stores of knowledge that ages have accumulated is still the first duty, while the research into narrow, forgotten or hidden pathways for new knowledge is of secondary importance.

To accomplish this first duty, the University needs teachers, and The Illini believes that ability in research, achievement in publishing, does not necessarily carry with it ability to teach.

Whether we agree with The Illini's view or not, it is worth considering. Many students will never undertake research work because they will prefer comfortable association with good old books and red-blooded human beings to a search after the square root of the ion of a fifth century Sanscrit verb; they will want to stir the feelings of people rather than supply them with information scientifically cold and exact. For these, teachers of life are needed.

If experts in research can be teachers of life as well, there will be no complaint. But whenever research reaches the point that it sidetracks regular instruction there will be just such a protest as The Illini makes.

(Conditions at Illinois differ widely from conditions at Iowa. Research has not monopolized attention here to the extent that members of the staff of instruction regard the giving of instruction to undergraduates as a thorn in the side of their dignity. The Iowan hopes that the day will not arrive when it shall have to voice the undergraduates' plaintive cry for more attention.

"THE AGGIES"

"Just so long as we submit to 'Aggies' as a name we will be regarded as a bunch of easy Posey county farmers," writes L. R. Ender in the opinion column of the Iowa State Student. We have often heard outsiders speak of the nation-wide reputation which Iowa was making for itself in building up the great agricultural school at Ames, and we have been filled with conscious pride, never thinking that our loyalty we were perhaps over-estimating the value of such a reputation. Probably the speakers, unaware as we were unaware, of the reproach which, in the estimation of students at Ames attaches to the appellation agricultural.

Here in the University a very large proportion of our student body boast that they come from farm homes. We take real pride in the fact that our institution is sometimes referred to as the state university of the greatest agricultural state in the union.

The Iowan looks upon the farmer as one of nature's noblemen. His is an occupation which leads him out of the cramped and sordid quarters of the narrow city street, on to the broad highway. His kingdom is the freedom of the great out-of-doors and his task is the culture of living things. He is an intimate of Mother Earth in all her changing moods and caprices. From those first glorious days of spring when the whole world feels the call of the open until the last of autumn's months when he has harvested and housed the bountiful gifts of Ceres, he studies Nature's every move.

We regard the farmer as the pioneer of our great state, and to him we accord the credit for having brought us our fame as leader in agricultural lines. We know that there are many who are striving for this position and we prize it accordingly. The destiny of Iowa's resources lies in the hands of her farmers.

The man who in this day speaks of the untutored, backwoods farmer as a class, like the famous lady from Boston who felt she had not seen Chicago because there were no In-sight, has been sadly misinformed.

We cannot but wonder where the great crowd of Iowa State College students, sons and daughters of Iowa farmers, are while this statement passes unchallenged in their official organ. Their heritage is too valuable to allow it to be belittled in this shallow manner by a fellow student.

WHAT MEN LIVE BY

There Will Appear in This Column from Day to Day, Quotations from Modern Writers and Speakers, Letters from Alumni and Friends of the University, and Statistics Relative to Men and Institutions:

Professor W. P. Lombard, of the University of Michigan, found that five cigars smoked on each of two four-day periods with a similar non-tobacco period between averaged to lower the working power of the muscles 41 per cent and often more. These results were obtained by careful experiments with the ergograph and have been recorded on a previous page with those reported by Dr. F. C. Walsh.—adv.

TWO FRESHIES—ONE MOVIE ONE MUSICAL—ONE MORAL

Once upon a time two freshmen attended a musical given by a university organization. All through the program they fidgeted and fretted—internally. When it was over and they were going homeward they said to each other that on the morrow they would attend something different.

When the evening of the next day arrived they met as arranged and sallied forth in the search of diversion. The flaring posters of a movie attracted them. "Here" said they, "Here is where we will go—this is just the place that we have been looking for."

So they entered and seated themselves upon a front seat. Soon the "man above" threw the bright light on his screen and the show began. Charlie Chaplin dodged bricks—sometimes successfully and sometimes unsuccessfully.

Annette Kellerman did the jack-knife neatly from a 300 foot cliff; Douglas Fairbanks leaped from a three-story building into a treetop, smiling as usual, an unknown girl jumped wildly from a speeding passenger train into the seat of an automobile which was going at least ninety-five alongside, and a little girl with a big revolver captured three highwaymen in the act of throwing a railroad switch. Yea many such marvels were shown forth upon that screen.

When the show was over the freshmen arose with beaming countenances. "We will never attend musicals or lectures again," they said, "It is here that we will come—my wasn't that fine."

THREE GOSPEL TEAMS OUT DURING HOLIDAYS

The University Y. M. C. A. sent out three gospel teams during the Christmas holidays. One team, composed of Alfred Brown, leader, Fred V. Johnson, Robert Rockhill and Allan Herrick, went to Osceola.

A team led by Ralph Fritz went to Kalona. The other members on this team were Merle Kirkpatrick, Paul Chenoweth, Francis Brown, and Alwin Farrior. A team that went to Oxford was made up of Ray Wycoff, leader, Roscoe Eyerly, Tom Gardner, Tracy Allen, and Jacob Anderson.

The engagements began on Dec. 27 and lasted until New Year's day.

O Iowa, still, like thy sons of old
And thy daughters of years gone by,
We lay at thy feet our trophies gained
And in humbleness let them lie
As a token of love, as a pledge of trust
Of a faith which thy name reveres,
That our heaped up offerings may yet add
To thy glory through passing years.

Like the men of old have held thee
dear
We would strive with a vision far,
Till the beacon light of the passing age
Be the gleam of thy crowning star.
O never a heart will thy name deny
Though scattered afar from thy fold,
Still the altar fires in our hearts
burn bright
With the love of our own Old Gold.

THE "prof" is going right—full blast in the subject—dispensing knowledge at a sixty clip—facts you've got to get.

You're writing like mad—never missing a thought—getting all the meat. Then of a sudden—too much pressure snaps your pencil point—or your lead's worn down beyond writing—or your steel pen gasps its last scratch! The lecture won't wait! By the time you're again fixed for writing—you've lost the thread of the talk. But a Conklin—well, it's always on the job—always ready to write, without a falter, scratch or blot. And because there is a Conklin point specially made for every style of handwriting a Conklin writes smoothly, without tiring its user—with no attention but filling.

A matter of seconds fills a Conklin—just a slight pressure on the "Crescent-Filler" and she's filled—ready for a day's writing. Writing that's permanent—that will never smudge or blur.

The Conklin was the first self-filling pen—it has over 1,500,000 enthusiastic users.

Conklins are sold by stationers, jewelers, druggists and department stores at $2.50, $3.00, $4.00, $5.00 and up. Every Conklin dealer can fit your hand to a T.

Of those already appointed who were unsatisfactory the men themselves took care of by refusing to follow them. Many of these poorer officers came from the same class or social rank as the men themselves, and the latter would not tolerate having one of their number as a superior officer. "It isn't uncommon to see men following an eighteen year old officer of a higher social rank in preference to an older man from their own class. They simply will not look up to one of their own class," Captain Beith said.

The result of this attitude has been the placing of the commissions in most instances in the hands of men from the higher social classes, many of whom are only eighteen or nineteen years of age. Captain Beith believes that there would be less likelihood of trouble of that kind in this country because of the lack of any "caste" system.

Close Bond in Army

"One of the blessings of the war is the close relationship into which the officers and men are thrown," says Captain Beith. It is the bond of friendship formed in this war that he believes will put an end to England's industrial difficulties. "The mutual respect and understanding formed in the trenches will bring the different classes together and make possible agreements never before dreamed of and with them will come England's industrial peace."

Regarding his impressions of the military situation here, Captain Beith said:

"The keenness and vitality of interest of the American citizen in the whole proposition of military training is the thing that impresses me most.

CHICAGO NEXT STOP

From here Captain Beith went to Chicago, where he will take charge of the Allies bazaar, which he has taken to New York and other eastern cities. The English includes captured German guns, bayonets, belts, knapsacks, helmets, and in fact every thing of interest to be found on the modern battlefield.

UNIVERSITY HIT BY INCREASE IN PRICE OF PAPER STOCKS

COST OF PRINTING UNIVERSITY CATALOGUE DOUBLES IN A YEAR

Supplies For Secretaries Office Increase One-Fourth—Paper Towels And Drinking Cups Swell Total

The cost of the University catalogue has doubled in the last year, according to statistics gathered in Secretary Bates' office. For the year 1915-1916, the figures on paper were $552.86, while for the year 1916-1917 the cost reached $1216.44. At present it is almost impossible to get any kind of contract on print paper. Although the biggest increase is in the print paper department, other kinds of paper show a noticeable advance. Bond and ledger paper, which are used extensively in the department of the secretary, show an advance of from 20 per cent to 25 per cent.

The University uses 150,000 paper towels a month, and when one stops to realize that they have doubled in price since last year, the high cost of cleanliness becomes a matter to be reckoned with. What has been said of the towel situation applies just as acutely to the drinking cup problem. Drinking cups have jumped from 70 cents a thousand last year to $1.25 a thousand this year, and since there are about 100,000 used every month, the increased cost is considerable.

ONE MORE WAY TO TAKE THE JOY OUT OF LIFE

Life would be almost unbearable for Harold J. Keen, freshman in liberal arts, if it wasn't for his unconquerable good nature and willingness to see a joke on himself.

About eight weeks ago Mr. Keen was confined in the University hospital. He stayed there a week, and was suspected of having frontal sinus trouble. Dr. Allen resolved to verify his suspicions before operating, so Mr. Keen was laid face downward on the operating table and the X-ray applied to the back of his head and a picture taken by means of the instrument. In this way it was discovered that Harold wasn't suffering from frontal sinus trouble, so he went his way from the hospital, glad to be out in the fresh air and the good old world.

But he didn't stay glad very long. An X-ray phenomenon happened. Where the instrument had been applied to the back of his head the hair commenced falling out and in a few weeks he was possessed of a bald spot that measured five inches long by four inches wide, covering nearly the entire back portion of his head. And it was located so that by no possible contortion could he cover it with his hat.

Now he often hears the people walking behind him say: "Just look at that man! He's getting bald! Isn't that terrible!"

For eight weeks this has been the tragedy of his life at Iowa, but now things promise to end happily, for the vanished hair has commenced to grow in again.
