GET BEHIND THE TEAM

The same old problem has turned up again. The crowd at the Nebraska rally in the natural sciences auditorium Thursday was far smaller than that which attended the Cornell rally. Don't they appreciate a chance to get together and pull for the team?

An example of what may happen: student athletic rallies at Ohio State University have been cancelled for the time being, because of the lack of interest shown by the students. The Ohio State Lantern bears these tidings, and they do not look well on print. Neither would such an acute non-membership be pleasing at Iowa.

A suggestion: let all the faculty in the University see to it that all the members of their chapters are present at the mass meetings. There are over six hundred fraternity men here in the University. If they all turn out over half the seats will be filled. Let all the organizations in the school encourage their members to attend the meetings.

It will help unify the school spirit.

The school will be closer headed than ever before. We may even catch up with them.

How would this look as a regular feature in The Daily Iowan?

Family connection and students alike are agreed that there is no injustice in the practice of graffiting their own association with our print young men. But the simple premises of our grandmothers might be substituted for this ruthless waste of money that even more dazzling and lavish displays bring in their train.

THE "What Others Think" column contains a communication several days ago which denounced University organizations for giving so many dances and University students for supporting so many outside of their organizations. Such extravagance in a time of war is bitterly condemned. There are many students who agree with this unnecessary expenditure.

CONGREGATIONALISTS MEET

The Congregational Guild invites all Congregational students to spend Sunday afternoon at the Conference house, 118 N. Clinton Street. A program will be given and important announcements will be made concerning the coming dedication of the new student center.

Prof. C. H. Weltier, who drove from Washington in bring William Scrip Bryan here yesterday told of his campaign:

“During the time by automobile the talk turned to the city of Athens, both of us having visited that city. Mr. Bryan said that while there he picked up some pebbles along the亩 which had been used long since by the orator Demosthenes in overcoming the impediment in his speech. Mr. Bryan declared as evidence of the fact that these were the identical pebbles used by that famed orator; that they were much worn with even that they must themselves be the same ones.

Mr. Bryan has always been an enthusiastic student of Demosthenes, in fact he himself remarked that he admired Demosthenes in one of his most effective arguments used against himself on Saturday in the last presidential campaign.”
