Three Causes for Delinquency Given by B. T. Baldwin

Head of Child Welfare Section Discusses Juvenile Problem at State Conference.

GIVES RESULTS OF TUSTS IN EAST

Has Tested 1,500 Delinquents in Industrial Schools of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

MARYLAND, Jan. 17.-Special equipment, hard labor, and mental deficiency were pointed out by B. T. Baldwin in an address before the State Charities and Correction convention at Baltimore as factors in Maryland delinquency. Professor Baldwin is head of Maryland's new child welfare research bureau at the University of Maryland.

During the past three years the University of Maryland and social worker has conducted a series of research tests on 1,500 delinquents in all the Maryland industrial schools. It was found that the boys and girls in Baltimore drew the interesting facts which he presented in his address yesterday.

The public welfare worker at the Maryland institutions for under-age delinquents are men who are custodial and a number of delinquents, aged from six to eighteen, make up the jobs of the leading administrators of these institutions. They set a record during the year in the number of boys and girls who have been improved in the institutions during the past year. The annual report shows that 1,500 delinquents were made to work on different jobs and that the number of boys and girls who were admitted to the institutions during the past year was 1,000. The number of boys and girls who were discharged from the institutions during the past year was 1,000.

FRENCH MOST POPULAR STUDY AT CAMP NORTH

Practical Courses Aligned to Fit Men to Find Way About in France

French is proving to be by far the most popular study at the Dales Mountain camp. In addition, the head of the University has observed that the French courses have always been a favorite with the students. The French courses are offered in both the morning and afternoon, and they are taught by experienced French instructors. The courses are tailored to cater to the needs of students of various levels, from beginners to advanced learners. The classes are held in well-equipped classrooms, and the instructors are known for their expertise and teaching methods. The French courses include grammar, vocabulary, reading, writing, and conversation, allowing students to develop a comprehensive understanding of the language. Students who complete the French courses will receive credits towards their degree programs, enhancing their employability and future prospects. The French courses are open to all students, regardless of their majors, making them a popular choice for a wide range of students.
