"The Store of Personal Service"
Is The American College a Failure?

Such is the challenge of a recent writer in one of our magazines. What's the answer? How is it in your case? Let pass the lesser questions of times and things. Has the American college been delinquent in this period of national crisis? No! a thousand times, No.

Whence came the first American volunteers to aid stricken France? Whence came the ambulance drivers on the bloody fields of Verdun? Whence came the sturdiest enlisted men for for our own army? Whence came the men in our officers' training camps? Have college-bred men and women played the part of cravens? No, nor shall they play the coward's part. Look at our college men in every field of service.

But stop! How about you once more? You who sit here safe at home while others fight? Have you done your share? Have you? "What can I do?" say you. This you can do. At the moment this is all your country demands of you. You can save a little for her. You can work a little for her. You can shed a little sweat for her, while others sweat blood.

"What does that mean?" Buy a Liberty Bond. That's what it means. Not even must you spend, but only save. You are invited to make the safest investment in the world and to receive a fair increase on your investment. How little a thing to do. Will you not do it today?

Don't forget this: that you need not pay cash unless you wish. You can pay as little as $1 a week.

Pharmacists Make Many Compounds

Drug Situation During the War Being Solved in the Laboratory

"We are making everything in the pharmacy laboratory for use in the hospital that thus and facilities will permit," Dean W. J. Trapp of the college of pharmacy, in speaking of the drug situation, says. Enormous amounts of drug and pharmaceutical preparations are manufactured by the students under faculty supervision. For example, from 120 to 150 gallons of thymol liniment, an antiseptic mouth wash, are made each year; 701 gallons of green soup; from 110 to 200 pounds of normal salt tablets; 90 to 150 pounds of cold cream; 150 to 200 pounds of developer for the x-ray department; 25 pounds of size used at the hospital; and many other compounds are prepared by these students for use in the University hospital annually.
