The University to Come from Trenches with Knowledge of "Problems to Be Met."

FRENCH SCULPTURE IS DISCUSSED

"The French may lack Idealism," said Prof. C. H. Giele, the first of a series of lectures on French sculpture Saturday morning in the L. L. building. By a request to address the Nebraska Student Teachers Association, Prof. Weller discussed Gothic sculpture in its relation to the French school. He compared the French sculpture with that of the Italian school of the same period, French, he pointed out, were highly influenced by the Italian art, as was evidenced very traduction which naturally turned them to new path.

"The French may lack Idealism," said Prof. Weller, "but their facility in their country's surroundings, just as the Greeks, are born artistically, affecting art more than other people. For generations their infirmity has been the present and practical, but only outside influence American art. The likeness to French art, America, gives a picture of sympathy of the two nations."

Hold up your heads, girls. Thirty-five per cent of the student subscriptions to the liberty loan on the campus were purchased by women. This sounds larger when we consider that these figures include all colleges, many of which have men students only.

Again, the first woman subscriber when the campaign opened was a woman.

Also, the largest individual subscription, $5,104, was made by a girl.

Besides, 45 per cent of the total number of subscribers came from the ranks of women. This assumes a deeper significance when we realize that men make up much more than 50 per cent of the personnel of the University.

Added to this, 66 per cent of the total number of subscriptions in the liberal arts college was contributed by girls; 46 per cent of the freshmen subscriptions by the female contingent; 20 per cent of the sophomores; and 35 per cent of the seniors.

It was found that the rank of these names as a whole was in the same electrical order—Junior, Freshman, Sophomore, and Senior. This indicates that the closer rank is in proportion to the patriotism displayed by those faculty members.

Not to mention the fact that most of the subscriptions left at the conclusion of the campaign were by girls who did not even wait to be solicited.

Moreover, these figures do not take into account the surprising large number of bonds purchased by girls at their home banks.

Finally, it is remarkable and worthy of great commendation that women, who have always been chided for their ignorance in matters of fl-

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES AT IOWA
COVER EVERY POSSIBLE FIELD

BUTTERFLY, GRIND, PROFESSIONAL WOMEN, LITERARY GENIUS, ATHLETE, SUPAFROST, AND FURIES FORM PERSONNEL OF ONE OF THE FIRST COEDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS OF THE MIDLE WEST.

Under the title of "new woman," "the modern feminian," and a dozen other fantastic epithets are being thrown in the day's bid of educating, business, and politics.

From a member of the United States Congress to director of a nation-known symphony orchestra and on down to a professional woman is a varied different acquaintances. Be there is a variety more noticeable than is the western coeducational university, an institution essentially broad, particularly at the University of Iowa.

Women at Iowa are of every type and fancy, judging from their interest in and support of the various campus activities. The front-page Harrison Fisher all-attracting girl, the sportsman's social butterfly, the artist, the professional woman, the literary genius, the athlete, and the farmer all combine to make the women students at the University.

Iowa, one of the first Midland West coeducational schools for higher education to open with registration open to both men and women, has continued this policy until now forty per cent of the student population is women. In the college of liberal arts they have faculty representation. Women are found in every college except one, athletic science, which is now composed entirely of men although women have taken its courses in past years.

Athletes, a Big Business.

Minnesota, a matter of primary interest to all young people, has been most enthusiastically at the University during the last two years by the building up of a new fully-equipped women's gymnasium. More teachers have been added to the staff and through them have started new games. Since there is no interest in athletics for girls the report centers about inter-class games. Each class has one team,—often two or three,—for the hockey, basketball, and baseball seasons. Preliminaries are played of every year before the big championship games. Perhaps the largest public feature of the department of physical education projects in the May Fete or pageant staged every spring on Iowa Field. The girls give a program of solo, ensemble, and folk dancing with elaborate costumes and setting.

The Iowa Woman's Athletic Association, formally required thirty points in gymnastics for membership but, finding that this restricted the numbers too much, it has changed the ruling to admit all girls particularly interested in athletics. It has fifty-three members not including many who are active in various sports.

Practical work in playground management is also taken up with the classes of the model school, maintained in connection with the University of Iowa and the Department of Education. The playground courses are conducted entirely by University girls.

Self Government is Goal.

The Women's League, an organization which includes all graduate and undergraduate women, deals with the problems of general interest to the girls. During the past year its members have spent most of their time in the working out of an adequate student government system. The plan as it now stands, tentatively approved by the faculty and Women's League council, provides for a division of student residences very similar to that used in other co-educational institutions. This means that girls should by the student body at large would have charge of each section, assuming much of the authority in connection with social rules, the regulation of parties, formals, and social occasions. An executive board would act as the final court of decision in more important matters.

A schedule of credit arrangements that officers of the student government shall receive academic credit according to the work which their position involves. This plan does not include... the lower system, a point which has been given little consideration among the Iowa.

The question of student government has not been put to a decisive vote, since it is felt that the proposed innovations are still strong in the minds of students. This fall the women will be given an opportunity to vote concerning such a government. As nearly as can be determined, the atti- tude of University girls is in favor of its adoption.

A student rally was held by the League soon after the decleration of war. Speeches by Capt. C. C. Mau- ne, the dean of women, professors, and students roused the sentiments of the girls as much that immediate plans and discussions were begun on ways in which women of the Univer- sity might do their bit should occasion arise "somewhere on the field of war." Three classes in preliminary Red Cross work were filled, and the quick response has led to an effort to procure more teachers so that addi- tional courses can be given.

Staff and Circle Help Loans.

Staff and Circle, as honorary seniors societies, consider it themselves in association with underclassmen. Their two members meet with the dean of women on the second floor in order to discuss with him the relations which have arisen con- cerning the interests of University women. The society, elected by the senior class, is a deprived representation of the different honors and organi- zations through which they dedica- tion. Staff and Circle are expected to cultivate among the stu- dent body.

Y. W. C. A. Includes Many.

Y. W. C. A., the one religious or- ganization of University women, has a membership a little above the aver- age; the statistics of this point the last campaign brought the num- ber up to 560. Like other branches of the work, it is an expression of the religious life of the students.

A purely religious work it has the weekly meeting consisting of prayer and an address of some related sub- ject to Bible study, reunion with the Protestant churches through the student pastor and the church societies, and the attendance of national religious conferences.

Besides this, the association has many fields of social endeavor. In the campus division there is the work of feeding homes for University women at the beginning of the year, the organization of a litter in the Y. W. C. A. building, and the employment bureau which attempts to put the stu- dents who are not working, in contact with city people who need help of any kind. In the department called com- munity service is included the Loy- alty club and foreigner's classes. The Loyalty class is an organization of working girls, such as maids, who meet under the direction of some Uni- versity women for social and study evenings. The classes in instruction are mostly teaching of English but a special demand arises, other work is taken up, for instance literature of Shakespeare and drama playing which is now given. A story telling group visits the crippled children at the University hospital for an hour once a week.

Every Social Work House.

Another cabinet member is chair- man of a committee in charge of the work of social service among a big minority of University girls early in the year, a series of Friday evening "user" parties at different houses in the city to further acquaint- ment, and the creation of an all-college routine during the second semester. W. C. Y. A. apprentices have a complete system of information bureau and afternoon teas whereby they socialize through the whole of the first week of college.

During the summer it carries to the social work in the small towns and villages where members originate in their home circles the Eight Weeks clubs. Girls are prepared for the or- ganization of these by instruction re- ceived from the local secretary and by general discussion. Their object is a good time, study of something considerable valuable and service to be immediate company. Last summer set out to make a town discomfort and raised enough money to equip it in a limited manner.

Professional League Pass 24.

For girls who desire it there is the Professional Women's league with a membership of twenty-four wo- men. Of these ten are practicing that professions in the city and the rest are students, one in the college of law, four in medicine, five in dentistry, and one in pharmacy. The soci- ety belongs to the Federated Pro- fessional Women's clubs of the United States; through which it keeps in touch with work of this kind in other cities every two weeks, each profes- sion having charge of a newsletter. The newsletters held here connect the professional women's society with all women and open the way to opportunities of her chosen work. Girls find that the experienced and contact with the older women is a great benefit to them.

On the question of the advantages of society life girls are generally di- Hill of the first 412 belonged in 1 of the 11 societies last year.

Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Phi, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Chi Omega, Delta Gamma, Alpha Tau, Epsilon, Alpha Delta, Eta Sigma, and Alpha Eta Beta have chapters at Iowa.

Library Interests Broad.

Library interests are generally sup- ported by the students' Women's Forum, a group made up of a delegate from each of the four literary societies whose combined membership is 112. In an intercollegiate debate, the first one ever planned by Iowa, women

The spirit of Halloween

There is a tang in the October air.
Dreaded figures skit along the streets uttering low monos. Yellow, warped, sanctified heads glance from the darkened windows, red eyes glimmering hopefully, their jagged teeth laughing balefully, their jagged teeth shaping heads glare from the widemouthed heads glare from the world . The house door opens only to hang again illuminously, and a shudder enters from the southern head of breathless youngrons.

Inside the houses strange forms and faces greet the stranger. Whispers in central caps, with beaded noses and licking eyes, chill the spirit, red-choked, narrow eyes their d Tender hands covered with jewels, left to soft masculine voices what the fates decreed; ghosts of the depart-ted glide about, and from their weazened, little faces screwed

Will be Registered in Applied Science Program After War

"After the war there will be more women in the college of Applied Science" declared Dean W. G. Rayford, in a report yesterday.

They will take up various lines of landscape construction, architecture and surveying careers perhaps which may even take up the general sources in the various departments, because the women in America must supply the engineers' places as well as the merchant, supermarket or carpenter. Consult opportunities are open to-day for the women who are a successful architect, surveyor or landscape designer.

The names of two women appear on the records of this college. Jessie Graham, of Iowa City registered in 1956-66. She specializes in descriptive geometry and drawing sciences. Later she continued her work as an assistant in her brother's office. Frances Augusta Shepherd of Kansas City took courses in field surveying and landscape designing, and is now taking advanced work in architecture.

Down in the shops of the Engineering college, four girls are learning to weld the tools and master the techniques of primary handwork. Prof. R. W. Wilson, instructor of manual arts, is giving individual instruction to those who are training themselves for teachers of manual training. They are learning the use of hand tools and the single concentrated processes of forms and design, not making, wood finishing, wood carving, and the use of wood-working machinery.
