Medical Specialists to Be Asked to Tender Services to State and Nation

That the University will play an important part in the nation's task of reclaiming disabled soldiers that the war has shown effective \(28,1917\) is evident from the recently announced plans of the President to create "Schools of Reclamation." The idea of the plan is to place men in the various trades in which the Institution is fitted to be used, depending upon the defects that have been noted. The committee has reported to him and it has been announced that it will be tendered a bill of the government.

ALUMNI STARS TO BATTLE VARIETY ON IOWA FIELD TODAY

Twenty-one Old Graduates in the City to Exhibit for the Red Cross Benefit

Hawkeye Coach Will Perform at Kiffin Field or Half in the Game This Afternoon

With old pro stars arriving almost hourly throughout yesterday, and many already in the city as a result of the call out by Manager McCloud two days ago, the stage is set for one of the most novel football games ever planned at the University. Twenty-one old alumni residents in the city are receiving pro participations in the Novelty-old grad contest this afternoon on Iowa field, the proceeds of which will go to the Red Cross.

Chief among the many interests that are being developed by the press at the present time will be the appearance of Coach Howard Jones, who will play either at halfback or for the halfbacks of the Gaines Cyclones. Although their leader is probably far from the form he enjoyed when playing for Iowa, it is yet a possibility that he may become more or less prominent in this contest.

Abnormal Six Steps Tour

Throughout the summer, the alumni association is composed of brilliant stars of former years. On the left side of the field, Joe O'Callahan will play at the position of the wing, supported by Hal. Left tackle will be filled by John H. "Buck" Kirk, Alabama, and Steve, and other wings that just as good as in the old days than they were in the 1914 season. Right tackle, unable, powerful poster, and captain of the 1912 varsity, is Frank "Chief" Johnson, right guard.

"My wife, the upper classes," said the Hon. Wright, "have taken a great fancy in reading novels lately," remarked a young freshman student in her honor occasion.

"Two or three weeks ago this was regarded as "Red Light Party," and now "Jane Eyre" seems to be done. Really, I saw one man read it between me at "The Birds," "The Purdies" the other night.

I should like to see what it would be like to be reading something for our soldiers," she continued. Then the upper class girl added one more, "Perhaps they are taking Mr. Rolan's novel course."

RAYMOND DISCUSSES ENGINEERING

Dean of College of Applied Science Speaks Before Recolleton

The contributions made by engineers toward the development of the "wonderful life we live," was the theme of Dean G. W. Raymond's lecture before Recolleton and Sigma Xi in the Liberal Arts auditorium last night.

"The work of the engineer is the dress of the proficents from the work thousands of years ago on the classics and the present day," he said. "The mechanical engineer is undoubtedly the soul of the present day. He is the one who can give an exhibition befitting his rank."}

PHILIP STRAYER

WILL READ "IMPROVEMENT"?

PHILIP STRAYER, a member of the Iowa City public school board and President of the University of Chicago last night.

"The Education of the People," Dr. Strayer said, "is the work of the engineer. It is the dress of the proficents from the work thousands of years ago on the classics and the present day. He is the one who can give an exhibition befitting his rank."
The Daily Iowan, November 28, 1917

The University of Kansas is distinguished by having in its midst a freshman who scorns traditions and thinks it beneath his dignity to don the official headgear of his class. Every entertained hopes of foisting the public into thinking he is an intellectual upstart have been shattered to be winds for his name and spirit of rebellion have been made public in the student newspaper.

And still he continues on his aimless course.

What Others Think

The Daily Iowan will gladly print any well-written essay or discussion on any topic of interest to students.

Dear Editor:

While many thanks were expressed last week to the students and faculty members who gathered around the hearth Thanksgiving day, we noticed upon the name of George L., reported on page one of “The Daily Iowan,” November 15. We wondered if the day would come when our sons would require serious thinking to convince them of the desirability of a visit to their old homes and loving parents. There may be many a knotty problem for your solving, George, and many a cross-roads to choose between; but there is one sure thing: you don’t have to think seriously about visiting your parents!

The College World

Wisconsin has taken steps to utilize its political influence. Student campaigning for votes will be ruled before the student council.

Everything ranging in price from a pin and typewriter to rings and cigarette cases, is on sale at the Italian War Relief shop on Friday and Saturday afternoons. Last Saturday the proceeds from an auction sale conducted by Mr. Coffs of the Spanish Department, and from the evening sales, yielded an amount of $414, which will be sent to the Italian ambulance fund that is being raised by the posts of America. The American posts are using the fund to relieve the necessity of ambulances from France to Italy, while it was necessary to remove the ambulances from the French to the Italian front.

New traditions in mass meetings are being planned by Prof. P. G. Dykema of the University of Wisconsin. Conventions that have hitherto been confined to the student body will be formed by the university and the student body will be formed by the university and the student body.
