LUNCHEON NOW SERVED TO PUPILS
Students in Observational School
Get Warm Food at Noon

The pupils of the elementary school are made glad each day by the addition of an old-fashioned lunch box, hot to the cold lunches they bring from home. These lunch boxes are under the direction of Miss Gusten of the home economics. Two girls of the school class have the serving to do each day.

Because of the cold weather many changes have been made in the use of the lunch boxes. Next year, the boxes will be turned from the school as well as those who come from Coralville and require new supplies to keep their lunches fresh. A hot cup of chocolate, a bowl of vegetable or some other kind of soup adds a great deal to the cold lunch. The children have a bit of company in the serving room and are gone until lunch time, which is an advantage in the benefit of warm food at noon.

An electric stove has been installed in the elementary school kitchen and every noon about forty places are served as a normal charge is made to cover expenses. Tickets are sold in four discount quantities varying from a quarter to a dollar and these are punched as they are used.

HAWKESLY HAS ABLE FEATURE EDITORS

This Important Section Promises To Be Real And Original

The last special department in the War Hawks has now taken a hold in the department. The feature editors are under the direction of Mr. Hickerson, head of the book "We help," a meeting of the feature staff frequently held at the gymnasium in the fall. This year, the Hawks have added two new feature editors and made some changes in the sections. A special freshmen section will be run this year and another in suitable color scheme will be added.

"A large number of original teams will be added to the staff," Mr. Hickerson said. "These will be prepared largely by Doris Davitt, a senior and feature editor. Besides Miss Davitt, Mr. Von Bausch, Dr. Wassam, W. A. Arrington, Mrs. Mary Rin, Roy Magee, Ruth Jones and D. M. Halverson, who will be in charge of the features of this year, will treatment the matter philosophically and be very necessary that all copy be turned over to club members at the home club at 3:30 p.m.

CALLS SLOAN'S FAVORABLE RECOMMENDATION

Crofted Men May Be Sent to Coast Artillery, It Declares.

The following letter was received at President Sloan's office from Thomas M. Spalding, alias of the Coast Artillery corps, concerning the establishment of a training school for officers in the Coast Artillery corps.

"There has been established at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and will be maintained throughout the year, a training camp from which graduates will be sent as officers to the Coast Artillery. The course is of three months duration, commencing early in the fall and ending about the middle of December.

"The Coast Artillery is charged with the responsibility of the United States and insular possessions in time of war or peace, and with the services in Europe of the railroad artillery, the signal batteries, the Great lakes, and those of the heavy motor drawn artillery and the heavy mountain wzren batteries.

"For officers of this service men of great ability, schooled in both good education, including liberal education and the technical colleges, Electrical and mechanical engineers are especially desired, that with some years of experience may be placed in the Signal Corps, the ordnance department, according to the qualifications of each officer. The appointment of officers is not a necessity. Excellent opportunities will be given the senior of this class, after a short examination, and the opportunity for many of those who are to take the examination, and trained in the army and served in the army, will be brought to your attention, and the request that you give the approval of the enlistment.

"A man who desires to enter coast artillery, and is not registered for draft, should apply for enlistment at the nearest recruiting station, existing that he will receive assignment to the coast artillery. A registered man should write to the chief chief of coast artillery, Washington, D. C., giving his name and address as to his education, and this office, if satisfied that he meets the qualifications, will be notified his application. The secretary is especially interested in this connection in the enlistment in the army and the application for the coast artillery service. Arranged upon that basis the question will be to bring to your attention, and the request that you give the approval of the enlistment.

"BROWN GETS CAPTAINSHIP IN ORDINANCE DIVISION

Prof. P. C. Brown of the physical department, professor of chemistry in the ordnance department, according to the appointment of the Secretary of War to his position as his assistant. His notable scientific work has attracted attention from all parts of the country and his kindness and ability will indicate with willingness he will be appointed by the government when he arrives.

"It is not known when he will be called to leave the army, but it is probable that he will leave on short notice. He will probably serve in Washington.

ON LEAVING LECTURES EARLY

"Failing the courtesy of the audience," said the head of one of the departments in the liberal arts college, "should suspend from the institution all those who get up and leave before it is over. No greater discourtesy to a speaker can be shown."

Early departures from lectures must be more than occasional to become the subject of a radical statement. If we look at the situation squarely we must admit that sudden absences of listeners are either quite prevalent or else becoming more frequent. There is the efficient way out for a hasty exit. A gentleman or lady who has kept their way out of almost every University lecture hold this year.

The lack of a common sense of courtesy is an unpardonable sin in a university student. The only leavers who have no desire to be branded discourteous, but their actions cannot be interpreted otherwise. Not only do they overload the bounds of propriety in relation to the speaker but they annoy everyone who is so unfortunate as to be seated behind them. Many a point in a lecture has been lost by the uncharitable conduct of wanton persons sprawling out into the aisle.

Yawning is a discourtesy which all have learned to conceal behind a handkerchief. But to force one's way through the audience in the midst of an address is a breach too great to be gone unobserved. The University really, if ever, brings a speaker who is not worthy of an hour or two of attention, so remember that if you do not enjoy it, perhaps it is above your appreciation.

Stick it out, and none will know you are a very low-grade. Stick it out, and show the courtesy to others you have shown to yourself.

PREFREEM FOR BOHEMIA

Americans of Bohemian birth, and those are thousands of them by the middle-west—more than 194,000 in Chicago alone—know how closely the Czechs came to disrupting the Austrian empire in the two great wars, and how immediately preceding the outbreak of the great World War. The cabinet crisis brought about in 1917 by the "compulsory language bills," the plighting of the right side of the Vienna legislative rat in 1918, caused by the reintroduction of the "language measure," and the suspension of autonomy in 1918, following the dissolution of the government, the appointment of a concession of administration, shock the monarchy to its foundations.

DR. ALVAREZ SPEAKS HIGHLY OF IOWA
Distinguished Writer Praises Dr. Shambaugh's Speech in Historical Society.

"I am very much impressed with everything I have seen connected with the State University of Iowa," said Dr. Alvarez, who lectured here last week.

In an interview Saturday, "It is destined to occupy a place among the leading universities of North and South America in the future. I liked your professors and students, they are animated by a spirit of living democracy. They are full of progressive ideas."

Dr. Alvarez said that there was no disappointment in his speech.

"It is very interesting to see so many young women in your university. I admire them greatly. The large number of them Food Administration, the results of the study done by the Food Administration, which asks:
