SHATTUCK DONATES LARGE INCOME TO RELIEF OF ARTISTS

Famous Pianist Who Appears in Recital Tonight Would Help Fellows in Europe.

PROGRAM IS VARIED AND ATTRACTIVE

Four Part Program Should Appeal—Pieces Offer Opportunity for Technique Display.

Arthur Shattuck, who will appear in the free University concert at 8 o'clock tonight in natural science auditorium, has placed in trust the whole of his private fortune, the income from which, amounting to $30,000, is for the duration of the war to be used to relieve cases of distress among artists of allied nations.

That Arthur Shattuck is one of America's greatest pianists is generally recognized. That he has international reputation, having toured with success European countries is a well established fact, but it is not so well known that Mr. Shattuck is doing his part in relieving distress. Iowa City is fortunate in the privilege of hearing him.

In his travels Mr. Shattuck has become acquainted with the leading artists in the different countries. When the war broke out most of these found their means of livelihood greatly reduced; many as the war went on were brought to want. Great relief has been obtained through Mr. Shattuck's kindness.

The following program will be given in his concert tonight:

- I. Suite in D Minor . . . D'Albert
Allemande
Gavotte
Musette
- II. Gavotte and Variations . . .
Rameau
Intermezzo Op. 117 . . . Brahms
Barcarolle Chopin
Etude in C Sharp Minor
Chopin
Waltz in A Flat Chopin
- III. Berceuse Helsen
Etude Characteristique
Moscheles
(Child's Fairy Tale)
Serenade from "Damnation of Faust" . . . Berlioz-Redon
Grande Fantasia on Serenade and Menuet from "Don Juan" . . . Mozart-Thalberg
- IV. First Concert Etude . . . Liszt

The University oratorical contest will be held Thursday night, February 14 in natural science auditorium unless fuel conditions make it necessary to go to the literary society halls. Written copies of the orations are due at the public speaking office February 1.

Any student in the University is eligible to this contest, which is to be under the auspices of the Men's Forensic league.

The winner of the first place receives the Jessup prize of $25 and the honor of representing the University in the Northwestern Oratorical league at Ann Arbor in May.

Members of the N. O. L. are Oberlin college, Northwestern, Michigan, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

SMILEAGE CAMPAIGN BEGINS JANUARY 28

Million Dollars To Be Raised To Buy Theatre Tickets for Soldiers at Camps.

Des Moines, Jan. 22, Special:—Plans for the organization of Iowa in the Million Dollar Smilage campaign are being rapidly completed. The campaign will be on all over the United States during the week beginning Jan. 28.

The Smilage campaign is directly in charge of the military entertainment council, appointed by the secretary of war and is a section of the welfare work being promoted by the commission on training camp activities.

The object of the campaign is to raise a $1,000,000 fund for the purchase of Smilage books, which are made in units of $1.00 and $5.00, each containing five cent coupons to that amount. These books are presented to soldiers who use the coupons to secure admission to the entertainments given at Liberty Theatres and similar camp activities.

The Smilage books are good at any camp in the United States. Individuals and firms are urged to buy as many books as they can afford and mail to their friends in the army. If not directly interested in a soldier, the Smilage books may be mailed to the commanding officer of any camp, who will see that they are distributed to soldiers in the proper manner.

BISHOP NICHOLSON AT VESPERS SUNDAY

Bishop Thomas Nicholson, resident bishop of the Chicago Area for the Methodist Episcopal church will speak at next Sunday's vesper service in the auditorium at 4 p. m. on "The Christian Man and Present World Conditions." Dr. Nicholson is one of the broadest, brainiest and most effective speakers in his church and his coming will give the university students an opportunity to hear another famous pulpit orator and champion of education. The university vesper committee has sought a date with him for some years and the committee is pleased to have him here. He is a former Iowan having been professor of philosophy and biblical literature at Cornell college from 1894-1903.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

SUPERIOR STRENGTH AND WEIGHT DEFEAT IOWA IN TWO GAMES

Badgers and Gophers Snatch Victory From Hawkeyes By Same Number of Points.

TEAM RETURNS IN SPLENDID SPIRITS

Practice Featured by Light Work Yesterday But To Be Stiffer Today.

The Hawkeye basketball squad returned to Iowa City yesterday morning after a four day jaunt through Minnesota and Wisconsin, visiting Minneapolis and Madison, where they contested the representative universities of each state in basketball, on Saturday and Monday nights, respectively. Although two defeats were administered to the Hawkeyes, they returned in the best spirits and set in with redoubled energy yesterday afternoon to prepare for the games on the remaining schedule.

Both coaches and players have no alibi to offer for the two defeats, other than that superior team work and superior size were responsible for their defeat. According to the Iowa mentor, the Iowa boys played a plucky game on both occasions but were nosed out of victory because of the prodigious strength of their opponents.

Gillen, Minnesota Star.

Minnesota won from Iowa by a margin of 15 points, the final score being 33 to 18. Gillen, the powerful Minnesota forward was responsible for the victory indulged in this afternoon.

VAN DER ZEE WRITES OF OLD FORT

Seventh Number of Iowa and War Series on Fort Madison.

The seventh number of the Iowa and War series "Old Fort Madison" written by Prof. Jacob Van der Zee of the political science department is being distributed today.

In this article which deals with the early wars on the eastern border of the Iowa country, Professor Van der Zee states that although Iowans do not associate the War for Independence and the War of 1812 with the history of the prairie lands, nevertheless the then Far West played its part in the two great struggles.

The European influence upon Indian life, the west in the Revolutionary war, the Anglo-American fur trade war, the building siege, and destruction of Fort Madison, are all treated in this pamphlet.

ENGINEERS TO GIVE "HAWKEYE FOLLIES"

This Musical Review Will Come on the Monday Preceding Annual Mecca Day.

A musical review in four acts, "The Hawkeye Follies," will be the annual show produced by the students of applied science this year. The show is under the direction of M. J. Mell, the author of the work, and if present plans are not interfered with, the show will be given the Monday before Mecca Day, the annual celebration of the engineering college.

"Although the material that we have to use in the production of the play this year is limited, we have a caste chosen that will be able to present the play in a real way, and it will be worthy of the part that it plays in the annual celebration by our college," said Mr. Mell.

It has been the custom in the past to put on the show the same night that the Mecca day celebration is held, but this year it will be impossible to get the Englert for that night. Because of this fact the plans are to hold the show on the preceding Monday night.

The show is not open to the public, but in accordance with the custom in the past, each student who is a member of the Students association of the Engineering college will receive tickets that he will be allowed to give to his friends. This assures limited attendance.

BOYS OVER THERE WANT NEWS FROM UNIVERSITY

Norvin E. Smith, law '17, who is now first lieutenant of the 26th infantry, American expeditionary forces, has written to the Alumni association asking that University publications be sent him.

All news is "fresh" to the boys in France, Mr. Smith says, and he asks particularly for copies of the Alumnus and The Daily Iowan since last fall. In the letter just received he stated that he had just received mail dated some time in August.

"There is nothing I would more gladly receive than University publications," Mr. Smith said in his letter, "news from the University never grows stale."

The above shows the premium placed upon home news of any kind by our soldier boys.

NOTHING NEW IS GIVEN OUT ON COAL SITUATION

Supply Still Sufficient to Cause No Worry—Coming in Slowly So Must Use Reserve.

WISCONSIN MAY CLOSE IN FEBRUARY

Columbia University Voluntarily Shuts Down on Mondays in Garfield Regulations.

The coal situation at the University shows little change. Small amounts of coal are being received from time to time, but the reserve supply is being drawn on continually to keep the school plant running. If the weather continues to be propitious there is little doubt but that the orders will be filled, for traffic will soon become normal. This is the information given out from the president's office, yesterday afternoon.

A few tons of the University's coal supply was turned over to Mercy Hospital last week, for they were unable to obtain any from local dealers. It is now possible to buy one ton of coal at a time in Iowa City. Unless another blizzard visits us, here is little danger of the University following the example of some of her sister institutions by closing down part time or entirely.

Wisconsin Will Close?

The students of the University of Wisconsin have asked for a three weeks suspension of the University beginning Feb. 1. This would mean a saving of 3,000 tons of coal, according to the estimate made. Little doubt of the failure of this resolution is entertained. Practically every student in the university is behind the movement.

Since the University of Wisconsin might have to close on Mondays by government order, authorities are of the opinion that such partial suspension would be negligible. The student plan is considered feasible by the faculty of the institution.

Columbia Closes on Mondays.

Columbia University will close on the ten Mondays specified in the regulations made by Fuel Administrator Garfield, although the university's attorneys declared that the institution was not included in the order. Coal shortage is not the cause of this step since at least two weeks' supply is on hand there, according to authorities.

Alfred Ribbink, expects to go to Muscatine this week-end.

NOTICE

The annual Forensic league meeting will be Friday night to elect officers.

ALL RETIRED OFFICERS MAY BE CALLED SOON

Captain A. C. Wright has a telegram from the war department stating that retired officers who are physically fit for field service will be restored to line in grades satisfactory to them.

In speaking of the possibility of his returning to service Captain Wright said, "Although I am very well satisfied here. I would like very much to get back into the real game."

JUDGE NOT BY PRICE-MARKS!

Students have the opportunity to hear without cost tonight one of the greatest of this country's musicians. There will be a few persons who will reason that because there is no admission attached, the entertainment must be of the inferior kind. The number will not be great, for there are not many who are unacquainted with the fame of this American pianist. Arthur Shattuck is not capable of giving a poor concert, persons who have heard him assure us.

This tendency on the part of students to discredit anything which costs little is unhappy for the welfare of many worthy enterprises. The recital tonight is sure to attract a crowded auditorium, for the residents of Iowa City and the surrounding towns are more cognizant of the privileges which the University extends. In fact, students will have to go early, we predict, if they are to get good seats. The University is paying a large sum for this entertainment, out of the belief that good music is healthful for students.

The same defective reasoning is present in the case of the University dances which are held every Saturday night in the women's gymnasium. The floor at this place is admittedly as good as any other in the city and the music is the same as has been furnished at two of our "war-time formals" this year. Because the University furnishes the building without cost and because there is no thought of personal profit, a low admission price is possible. And students conclude immediately that the quality of the entertainment is to be measured by the price.

We should guard against the practice of judging by price-mark alone; there are other considerations. The person who clings to such a policy with reference to enterprises supported by the University will find himself the loser every time.

THEY WANT LETTERS

"There is one thing everybody in the camps is glad to get that is a letter."

This is an excerpt from a letter received by the editor from a man in camp at Jacksonville, Florida. It isn't unusual at all. Nine out of ten letters received on this campus from men in service, we'll wager, contain statements similar to this one. There is no doubt that men who are drawn away from their old associates and surroundings value letters more highly than we can imagine.

To how many men in khaki have you written this year? Well, says one person, I know only one or two soldiers intimately enough—but this person is doing business on a false assumption. The man to whom you write need not be your brother or your cousin. The man who sat by you in that laboratory or that class last year is your brother now.

Girls, supplement your knitting with a cheery note now and then to a former classmate in uniform. Men, supplement your "—less" days and your intention of enlisting next spring with a letter to an Iowa man in some camp. If you would do your bit in making the lot of the soldier happier we commend this method to you.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

THE COLLEGES

(Des Moines Register)

Columbia university reports a deficit of $250,000 for the current school year, caused by the shrinkage of attendance due to the war.

No institutions in the country are hit harder by the war than the colleges and universities which depend upon tuitions for a large part of their annual income, and, as a rule, the smaller the school the harder it is hit. Columbia's $250,000 deficit is small in ratio to the losses sustained by some of the modest colleges of the country.

The larger schools can adjust themselves more easily than the small colleges. Their faculties are more subject to fluctuation, and in particular contain a larger proportion of young men, who, feeling the call to war as strongly as the students, leave vacancies in the faculty proportionate to the loss in students.

A different situation is faced by the small college whose faculty consists principally of the heads of departments, with few young men among them. A decrease of students cuts down the revenue of the college, and the only alternatives through which the situations may be met are the cutting of salaries or the release of men from the faculty. The first course is unattractive, but the second would be cruel.

Many of the smaller colleges have no endowment funds to apply to faculty support, and this makes the situation even more serious.

State schools are far more fortunate. Their income is assured, with only nominal tuition coming from students. Hence they are not worried by financial questions. In fact, they may accumulate a surplus from the very conditions which threaten the existence of the private college.

At the State University of Iowa, for example, income has remained stationary, while the decrease in students have been accompanied by so many faculty enlistments—the places being left vacant—that the school will have nearly $100,000 to turn back to the state at the end of the year.

The longer the war lasts, the more the colleges will suffer, for the schools will lose all of the students who now are remaining to complete courses which they started before the war commenced, while high school graduates will have a tendency not to start to college because of the expectation that their work will speedily be interrupted by the call to service.

The situation will have to be met in some way by a financial reorganization, but there is need for continued emphasis upon the value of even a couple of years of college training to the man who intends to go into the army when his country calls him.

It is not accident, and not favoritism, that has caused the officers' reserve corps to be filled with so large a proportion of college students and recent graduates. These men have acquired something while in college which makes them especially valuable in the army, and the boys who graduate this year from high school should recognize the value—not to themselves alone, but to the country—of entering college next fall.

OUR WAR AIMS

(From President Wilson's Address, January 8, 1918)

"An evident principle runs through the whole program I have outlined. It is the principle of justice to all peoples and nationalities, and their right to live on equal terms of liberty and safety with one another, whether they be strong or weak. Unless this principle be made its foundation no part of the structure of international justice can stand. The people of the United States could act upon no other principle; and to the vindication of this principle they are ready to devote their lives, their honor, and everything that they possess. The moral climax of this, the culminating and final war for human liberty, has come, and they are ready to put their own strength, their own highest purpose, their own integrity and devotion to the test."

WAR'S PRODUCT OF GENIUS

(New York World)

John Masefield, the poet and novelist, thinks that the devastating war in Europe by way of compensation will inspire great intellects such as flourished after the Napoleonic struggle:

We shall have new Darwins, Spencers and Carlyles with new messages that will reach the whole world. We shall have new Shelleys in poetry. People will feast upon new spiritual conceptions as remote as possible from the great tragedy. They will turn to the romantic and fantastic, the beautiful, just as the ydids after the Napoleonic wars.

That is a consummation devoutly to be wished. Certainly in the present dearth of genius it is gratifying to believe that the world has a new Shelley and a new Byron in the cradle, born at the outbreak of the war as they were born at the outbreak of the French Revolution. Perhaps there are other Darwins and Spencers and Carlyles to come. But considering that the "First Principles" was published in 1862, "Sociology" in 1872 and the "Descent of Man" in 1871, did the Crimean War and our own Civil War have any part in inspiration? Shall we infer that the war between the States stimulated mid-Victorian literature while doing little to inspire American letters?

It is customary to associate war with the development of intellect. But as respects the inspiration of the Napoleonic wars, they were preceded as well as followed by a burst of French literary activity. What were the special war influences that affected Shakespeare? If the theory is sound the present greatest of all wars should prepare us for super-Shakespeares and super-Darwins. But in fact the lifetime of most men of genius is long enough to comprehend at least one great war. And making allowances for the briefer span of a Keats or Shelley, is it not logical to conclude that the relation of genius to war is less one of cause than of coincidence?

What Others Think

The Daily Iowan will gladly print any communications from students or faculty members. The writer must sign the article to show his good faith in sending it, but no name will be printed if the sender so designates.

To the Editor:

There has been much censorship of the old method of "cramming" for exams. People have said that no good can be derived from such a system of study, and furthermore it ruins the eyes and undermines the nervous system.

"Cramming," despite the fact that it is supposed to wreck you physically, does one important thing; it teaches you how to study. When you realize you have but a short time to cover a certain amount of work, and you know that if you don't, the folks back home will know you failed, you concentrate every effort to the learning of that work, and somehow you do it. Cramming stimulates the memory as nothing else will, and hence serves the purpose better than any other method of concentrated study.

YOU CAN'T KEEP UP

You Ought

LITTLE HAWKS LOSE HARD GAME

Parlor City Quintet Defeats Locals by a Close Score; Kloos and Shimek Star.

In what was conceded by Cedar Rapids officials to be one of the most brilliant and exciting basketball contests ever witnessed on the Coe College floor, Iowa City high was beaten by their old rival, Cedar Rapids, by the narrow margin of four points, 22 to 18 last Saturday evening.

Both Teams Excellent.

It has been rumored in sporting circles that both the Little Hawks and the Tigers were the "class" of this section. It only remained for the two favorites to clash to prove this statement. The mere word "class" does not describe the ability of both teams. In the recent contest, Shimek, Kloos and Darner played a stellar game for the locals, while Barvinek and Taber starred for the Parlor City.

A Close Contest.

To say that either team deserved the victory would be impossible, so evenly matched were the quintets. Both teams practically alternated in the scoring. As quickly as Iowa City was credited with a basket, Cedar Rapids followed with another, and thus the see-sawing scoring progressed. A couple of more minutes of play before the termination of the game might have given the Hawks the much-desired victory. The first half ended 10 to 9 in favor of the Tigers.

Letters From Our Soldiers

The Daily Iowan will welcome all news about Iowa's war representatives that it can obtain. Of our readers who are in some branch of service, we ask you to write to us; of our readers on the campus, we ask you to turn over to us letters or parts of letters from soldiers to be printed.

Dec. 16, 1917.

Dear Hall:

Some time ago I wrote to Jack Stoner asking him if he would put me on the Daily Iowan subscription list and also send me a file of all the old Iowans for this year or as many as were obtainable. For fear that my letter may never reach Jack I am writing this letter to you to ask you if you will be so kind as to inquire of Stoner if he has received my letter and if he has not to do the above mentioned things for me. If you will send me the amount of whatever charges are attached to the same I will immediately forward the money.

I miss the Iowan with its school news very much over here and often wonder just how things are coming with the paper and also with the Old School. If you have time a line telling me just how things are coming would be greatly appreciated.

Thanking you for the favor I am

DOROTHY DONDORE TO TEACH IN EAST

Scarborough Experimental School Conducted by Professor Horn Employs Iowa Graduates

Miss Dorothy A. Dondore, instructor in English in the University, leaves the beginning of the second semester for Scarborough-on-Hudson, New York, where she will teach English in Dr. Ernest Horn's experimental school. Miss Dondore's special field will be English composition. She will also have charge of the library. In addition to this work, Miss Dondore will take work at Columbia university.

Miss Beryl Hart, formerly instructor in English in the University, who has been taking graduate work at Bryn Mawr, will return to take the place left vacant by Miss Dondore.

Florence McGovern, who took her M. A. degree at the University last year, is likewise teaching English at the Scarborough school. In addition she has charge of dramatics and hopes in time to build up a community drama.

Frank Sangster, another University graduate, is instructor in industrial arts at the same school.

The Scarborough school, of which Professor Horn, principal of the University elementary school, is the director, was founded in 1913 by Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip. The school is open to all children of the neighborhood, the heirs of multi-millionaires as well as poor children forming the student body. The chief outcomes sought by the school are health; an insight into industrial and social life, including the home; the proper use of the leisure period; ability to use science for practical purposes and as a method of arriving at truth; and certain skills and abilities such as writing, spelling, and reading which are used in all of these as fundamental tools.

"SUB" WARFARE ON THE CAMPUS!

Have You Done Your Bit in Sinking The Mammoth U Boat?

Yesterday afternoon the enemy ship URASLACKER made its appearance on the campus, to the consternation of the student body. Late last night it was still cruising on the surface, but it is rumored that several hundred torpedoes will be fired into the hull this afternoon, and start von Tirpitz' favorite on the path to Davy Jones' Locker.

All of which is to say that the Hawkeye subscription campaign is in full blast, and that orders are coming in by the score.

Work on the book is progressing rapidly, and the military section has just been enhanced by the addition of some real over-seas photographs. Just wait until the "Shrapnel" bursts, YOU are pretty sure to be hit by at least one splinter, and the feature staff has placed a rush for helmets to wear when the counter-attack begins.

The freshman medics have made a wonderful response to the subscription campaign, according to Harold Rigler, manager. Out of 55 in the class, 52 have already ordered books, and who knows what the other three will succumb to the gentle wiles of "Feather".

Are you wearing your "service tag"? It's the only sure way to evade the HAWKEYE outposts, because every building is going to be picketed this week. There's only one good countersign.—I HAVE BOUGHT A HAWKEYE.

SUPERIOR STRENGTH AND WEIGHT DEFEAT IOWA IN TWO GAMES

(Continued from page 1.) by his teammates. His accuracy at locating the ring and his speed on the floor contributed 23 points of Minnesota's total score. Cotton and Von Lackum played well for Iowa. Brown received a blow in the head in the last five minutes of play which necessitated his removal from the contest. He sufficiently recuperated to enter the fray at Madison on Monday, however.

The Badgers secured a big lead in the first few minutes of play at Madison, Monday, which they maintained throughout the game regardless of the comeback which the Hawkeyes launched in the last half. The final count was 34 to 19. The Badgers were only able to cage three baskets in the final lap while the Iowan's counted 9 points. The first half ended 28 to 10.

Many Fouls Recorded.

The contest was marred by loose playing on both sides and constant fouling, of which the Badgers were the greatest offenders. Two Wisconsin men were sent to the side lines for rough play.

Captain Chandler for the Wisconsin five was easily the star of the contest. He made 16 tallies from five goals and six free throws. Zulfar his partner was a close second. Capt. Von Lackum was the Iowa favorite, scoring 13 points for the Old Gold. His cognizance of the ring and his ability to block the opposing forwards represented the best work of an Iowan player on a strange floor this season.

The seven men who made the trip were, Cotton, Berrien, Brigham, Pyles, Olsen, Von Lackum and Brown.

After a brief workout yesterday afternoon on the armory floor, Coach Kent sent his proteges to the locker room, realizing that rest was more important than practice after spending three nights on a pullman. Regular scrimmage practice will be taken up again this afternoon.

TYPHOID SCARE IS OVER

The source of danger of the recent typhoid epidemic has been eliminated, authorities say, and it is not likely to reappear. The work of investigation has been under the charge of Dr. Henry Albert of the college of medicine.

It was found that the typhoid germs were present in the milk from a certain dairy, which has now been forbidden to deliver its product.
