GRINNELL VICTORY AND AMES DEFEAT GIVES IOWA HONORS

Cornell and Ames Eliminated From State Championship by Friday's Results.

AMES GIVES IOWA HARD BATTLE

Cotton, Brown and Olsen Star for Hawkeyes—Olsen Plays Best Game of Season.

Iowa's victory over Ames Friday night by a score of 22 to 20 and Cornell's decisive defeat at the hands of the Grinnell five by a score of 28 to 19 broke the triangular basketball deadlock and gives Iowa practically a clear title to the state championship.

Iowa may claim state honors by virtue of her two victories over Ames, who in turn has defeated every opponent in the state. Ames' laurels consist of Cornell, Coe, Simpson, State Teachers, Drake and two defeats to Grinnell. Cornell has lost two games and those to Ames and Grinnell. Grinnell has won several games but was taken into camp by State Teachers, Cornell and Ames.

Cornell has based her claim to state honors by her victory over Iowa in the early season. The Ames victory over Cornell and in turn the Iowa victory over Ames placed the three schools in a deadlock. The outcome of the games Friday night however should with the second Iowa victory over Ames coincident with the Cornell defeat abolish all further question as to the Hawkeye claims.

Ames gave Iowa one of the stiffest battles of the year Friday night. The decision of the game hung in the balance until the last minute of play. Time and again the score was knotted only to have Iowa forge ahead for a two or three point lead.

Ames had the advantage at the start, securing a five point margin but was unable to hold it, losing the first period by score of 11 to 14. The second half was Iowa's in floor work and Ames' in scoring, the Cyclones scoring more baskets in their fewer chances than the Iowa five.

An overtime period was nearly scheduled when the oval circled the ring three times threatening to fall through the net to tie the count when the whistle blew.

Cotton, Olsen and Brown deserve praise for the Hawkeye work. Olsen probably played the best game of his career, leading the field with in-

DEMOCRATIC PARTY WILL BE INITIATED SATURDAY

The new democratic University party will take place March 9. A general mixer, lively and interesting games, a short program, and light refreshments are being planned. Dancing for all who care to remain will follow. A small fee will be charged at the door to cover expenses.

A good time for everyone is the object, and the social committee is working hard to assure a genuine "good cheer" party.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Komenian society will meet at the residence of Miss Elsie Hayek at 804 N. Dodge St. tonight. Meeting called at 7:45.

TRACK TRYOUTS TO BE SATURDAY

Indoor Meet to Be at Ames March 16. Team to Make Good Showing.

Track men worked out with renewed vigor yesterday afternoon, after Coach Watson told them that the tryouts for the indoor track team will be held on next Saturday afternoon.

Much improvement has been shown by the squad in the past two weeks. The meet was held last Saturday and showed that the team this year will be well-balanced, and one of the best that Iowa has had in recent years. No remarkable time was made in any of the events, neither was the time especially slow in any. The soggy track and its fast turns made better time an impossibility.

When interviewed concerning the team's chances at the indoor meet to be held at Ames on March 16th, Coach Watson said, "I do not think that we will win the meet, because so many of our men are green, and so will not be at their best until later in the season, but we have enough experienced men of ability to make a good showing. Our team this year is handicapped by the fact that we did not have a team last year."

IOWAN STAFF WILL ATTEND PRESS MEET

Iowa College Press Association Holds Convention in Cedar Rapids This Week.

Twenty-five members of The Daily Iowan staff will attend the Iowa College Press association convention to be held at Hotel Montrose at Cedar Rapids Friday and Saturday March 8 and 9. This is practically a 75 per cent representation from the University.

The convention will be called to order Friday at 2:00, and at 2:30 President W. A. Jessup of the University will give an address on "College Newspaper Ideals." Cyrenus Cole, editor of the Cedar Rapids Republican, will also speak Friday afternoon and at 8 o'clock there will be another address by some prominent newspaper man in the state.

Saturday morning will be taken up with a general meeting at 9:00 in which reports of questionnaires will be given. Business managers of the various college papers will meet at 10:00 for conference. The editors will likewise discuss editorial problems and policies during the morning session.

The business meeting of the convention, the election of officers, and reports of committees will be held at 3:00 in the afternoon and will be preceded by an address.

A banquet at 6:30 to be followed by dancing will give the social touch to the conclave.

ROLAND AT NEW YORK

Homer Roland, who has been in training at Jacksonville, Fla., has been transferred to New York City, and he expects soon to be sent to France with a fire company. He was enrolled in the college of law when he left here in January.

COMMISSIONER OF U. S. TO RUSSIA SPEAKS TONIGHT

Charles Edward Russell Will Give Lecture in Behalf of Patriotic Propaganda

WAS WITH ROOT IN TRIP TO RUSSIA

Had Many Narrow Escapes From German Spies on Return—Reported on National Council.

Charles Edward Russell, the great labor leader, who has just returned from Russia as a member of the Russian commission headed by Elihu Root, will speak before the University in the natural science auditorium tonight. Mr. Russell is one of the best informed men in America in regard to actual conditions in Russia. As one of the government's "dollar a year men" he has offered his services in behalf of patriotic propaganda.

The chief duty assigned to Mr. Russell while with the Russian commission was to meet, understand, and report on the National Council of Russia, a body consisting of 830 delegates.

While on this trip, Mr. Russell's party suffered from German spies. When the commission left Vladivostok the spies chartered a train and followed them, getting off at depot stops and urging the Russian people to kill the members of the commission, stating that they were agents of the great capitalists of America coming to betray Russia.

This insidious talk of the German spies had its effect, too, for though the commission returned to the United States safely it was not until after the Russians had tried to burn their train on four different occasions and another time had set fire to a bridge just in front of the train.

One of the spies' most ingenious ways of starting a fire, according to Mr. Russell, was the use of a short, sharp dagger covered with a phosphorous substance which they stuck in the east side of a wooden building at night leaving the morning sun to do the rest, and the sun never failed. By the time the building was in flames the incendiaries had escaped.

While in Petrograd on this mission the commission occupied the former home of the deposed czar. Mr. Russell occupied a suite in the winter palace, the longest building in all Russia, and slept in a bed which never before had accommodated any other than one of royal blood.

SHORT COURSE THIS WEEK

The extension division will conduct a Red Cross short course at Fort Dodge this week. O. E. Klingaman will speak Wednesday evening. Miss Bessie McClenahan will be assisted in her work by Miss Ada N. Palmer of Waterloo, secretary of the social welfare league of Waterloo. Prof. P. S. Peirce and Prof. Ellsworth Faris will make addresses also.

ORATORIO MEETS TONIGHT

The Oratorio society will meet at 7:15 this evening at the school of music. It is important that all who expect to take part in the singing of the Messiah at the Easter vespers be present at this rehearsal.

CADETS TOLD OF U. S. WAR POLICY

Prof. Louis Pelzer Delivers Lecture Before Cadet Regiment.

"The Military Policy of the United States to the Close of the Mexican War" was the subject of the lecture given yesterday afternoon before the cadet regiment, by Prof. Louis Pelzer of the department of history.

In 1815 there was the Seminole war in Florida. The Black Hawk war in 1832 in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin resulted in the death of about 250 troops and in the cost of about $2,000,000. From 1835 to 1837 occurred the long wars in Florida against the Creeks.

"Great enthusiasm marked the outbreak of the Mexican war in 1846," said Professor Pelzer. "In New York great signs read 'Ho, for the halls of the Montezumas.'" In some states farmers' wives issued free rations and ladies made large quantities of flags and clothing. In a few months a motely crowd of 20,000 American troops were assembled on the Rio Grande river."

CANTONMENT MAY BE STATIONED HERE

University Will Cooperate With War Department to Bring Camp Here if Possible.

The war has developed a demand for a large number of technically trained men. The exigencies of the war have emphasized very strongly the value of the educational institutions of the nation in connection with our military effort. The schools and colleges of the country have with admirable spirit placed their resources at the disposal of the war department and other branches of the government.

The desirability of having a single agency in the war department to deal with the many problems of education and training which continually arise has been made evident. For the purpose of organizing and coordinating all the educational resources of the country with relation to the needs of the army, a committee on education and special training has been appointed.

The general orders from the war department state that to administer a special course of training men for technicians, colleges and schools may be employed. In order to make this possible, the universities in this country would be established as cantonments.

There is, then, a possibility of the construction of a line of new barracks on the banks of the Iowa river. Should this possibility develop, men from all over this part of the country, enlisted in any department of technical training, would be stationed here.

No definite action towards the establishment of a new army cantonment at the State University of Iowa has been taken. However, there is a provision before the war department for definite action to be taken should it be found to be the best advantage.

SENIORS ATTENTION.

All candidates for degrees at the June convocation are urged to fill out the application blanks at the registrar's office immediately. This list must be completed within the next few days.

HAWKEYE WRESTLERS WIN FROM HOOSIERS IN OPENING CONTEST

Indiana Falls Before Pat Wright's Grapplers in Hard-Fought Match by 11 to 10 Score.

WAGNER WINS ONLY FALL FOR IOWA

Wins in Heavyweight Class Almost Upset Dope Bucket—Big Crowd Out for Contest.

Iowa opened the wrestling season last night by defeating Indiana's wrestling team by the score of 11 to 10. With the score standing at 10 to 5 in the last bout of the evening the dope bucket was suddenly upset and Hunzelman, who had taken the aggressive throughout his match with Stormont, the Hoosier heavyweight, lost a fall and the Indiana score leaped to 10.

The evening's matches opened with Wagner, Iowa's 125-pound grappler, sparring with Young. The little Iowan got behind his man in less than a minute and had his shoulders pinned to the mat in 2 minutes and 30 seconds. Rothmer Scott, 135 pounds, next met Hook, captain of the visiting team, in the second bout of the evening. After 7 minutes of fast and scrappy work, time was called and Referee Clapp, director of athletics at Nebraska, declared the bout a draw.

Wagner and Young came out for their second bout and the plucky little visitor succumbed to the junior dentist's numerous attempts with the scissors and half nelson, which he is said to have learned from Earl Caddock last summer, only after a tough tussle. Wagner was declared winner in the class and Iowa was chalked up with her first 5 points. In the second bout in the 135-pound class, another tie resulted, although Scott shoved his opponent all over the mat in the seven minute sparring match.

"Skinny" Young met Dalzell, veteran welter weight, in three bouts and lost the first fall for Iowa in the last. Both he and his opponent put up a splendid fight and Young showed much promise in this, his first intercollegiate wrestling match. The fall came in the third period after 4 minutes and 10 seconds. Between the second and third bouts in this weight Scott met Dalzell in the third bout and was declared winner on a decision, shoving Iowa's total up to 8.

One of the prettiest exhibitions of the evening was the work of Biederman and Mumby in the 158-pound division. The first bout of this series consisted largely of neck-pulling, but in the second the Iowa grappler came back and maintained the offensive throughout the seven minutes, although he was not able to gain a fall. The referee declared the bout a draw. In the third of the bouts, Biederman whirled his opponent off his feet and the remainder of the match was a succession of tight places for the Indiana athlete. As the final whistle blew the visitor's shoulders were fast sinking to the

AGAIN

The defeat of Ames Friday night in the season's last game within the state and the fairly decisive victory of Grinnell over Cornell on the same evening have combined to give Iowa a claim to the State championship which will probably not be disputed. The Methodist team downed the Hawkeyes in the first game of the season, the only contest lost by the University to another Iowa school throughout the season. Cornell, on the other hand, lost to Ames, whom Iowa defeated by a big score.

This left the three institutions in a sort of triangular deadlock until the fateful March 1 contests. The victory for Iowa and the defeat for Cornell chased away the cloud of confusion which was hovering over the first place and revealed five little Hawkeyes perched on the top of the elevation and a little further down Ames and Cornell despairing of the incline's steepness. The Cyclones had approached a little closer to the crest held by Iowa than the Cornellians, a close examination showed.

Yes, we've won another state championship. But we refuse to become excited about it. We've come to regard this the natural state of affairs, a habit, if you please. When we slip as we did last fall in football, we call the year a bad one. Why this should be so is difficult to understand, in the light of the fact that there is one institution in the state which equals our own in enrollment and a dozen more which, through the law of averages, must be counted on to turn out their "team of the century" now and then. Witness the Grinnell football team of last fall.

If we should adopt the scientific attitude of the economist or the geologist, we would see at once that this sanguine assumption upon which we proceed is unsupported by "figgers" and that it is "basically unsound." But sound or unsound scientifically, it works and works beautifully in practice. We suspect that the element which the statistician would neglect in his cold examination of the theory in vogue here is included in the words, "Iowa Fights!" The genuineness of this slogan has stuck out in every game of basketball this year, as it did in football last fall.

In the early part of the basketball season just closing, the men fought but they fought individually; since Christmas they have fought as a unit. And the results of their co-ordinated fighting have been only too clear in contests with such teams as Minnesota and Chicago, teams vastly larger than our own men. When they played against teams with men of their own size, they have outfought the opponents and won. And when they have lost they have lost because superiority in fight would not counteract a superiority of height and weight.

And so at this time, we extend our hand to the Iowa team which has done only what we expected it to do. And this must not be taken as a meaningless congratulation, for the Iowa team which can do what Iowa students expect of them is worthy of the greatest commendation. We could wish for a higher standing in the conference but we should not minimize the honor of a state championship.

IT WAS VENEER

The searchlight of war has brought out many interesting facts, and one of these is that the vaunted German efficiency will not always stand the test of comparison with American efficiency.

The Germans boasted of being the greatest farmers on earth. Investigations show that in efficiency in agriculture, measured by the produce per acre, America being graded by 100, Belgium leads the world, at 205; Great Britain comes second, at 164; and Germany third, at 155. America has fourth place.

But the better test is the man test, and here America leads the world by over 2 to 1. Again grading America at 100 per farm worker, Great Britain produces 43 and Germany 41. The American farmer cultivates 27 acres, the German farmer but 7. With the aid of vast quantities of fertilizer the German produces more per acre, but he produces at a much greater cost per bushel and he produces much less than half as much per man.

People are not going to talk about German efficiency from now on. The claims before the war in little things like the above were too often sheer veneer, and, looking at the situation with a broader perspective, we shall be forced to admit that there is nothing of efficiency in the system of government which entails the hatred of the entire world, regardless of the number of hogs and bushels of barley and barrels of beer produced.

LETTERS FROM OUR SOLDIERS

Blank, France, Feb. 6, 1918.
My dear Louie:

I can't remember whether I have written to you since I arrived on land or not. So I may repeat something I have already written.

Of course, I got all the way here safely. The last part of the voyage to England, and again the crossing of the channel were a bit trying on the nerves, but they both were accomplished without harrowing incidents. My stay in England was of only a day and a night, the half of it in a train and the other in a shivery camp.

Arriving at a port of France I was held for another day and night in a military camp where the French were sleeping in tents on floors. Maybe you thought fun in January? I saw... 198 on while I was there... expected to see other Iowa fellows, but was ordered away before I could find time to look them up. Harold was not there, of course, because he is in another unit. Did I tell you that I met Dr. Beys just before I left America? He was expecting to sail soon.

Last Friday night I left with my companions for the interior. We were in a special train, without heat, and we nearly froze to death before morning. The train would run along for twenty miles at about five miles an hour and stop at a station for an hour. By morning we had gone about the distance an American train would cover in three hours.

Next day we didn't mind much. We managed to keep warm, and at every stop we piled off and talked to the people and took a loog around. We arrived at... late Saturday night and stayed there until yesterday. We were expected to sleep on straw ticks in an old barracks but matters turned out so most of us slept in hotels.

We are now billeted, like other American officers and troops, in a quaint little town of 4,000 inhabitants. It is a tangle of white stone houses and narrow, cobbled streets, about a great old castle on the hillside above a quiet little river. The castle and the church date back to the fifteenth century and I don't think much of the town was constructed after Napoleon's time. The people are the real French. One doesn't see many men, but the women hang always out of their windows or stand in the doorways staring at their unusual visitors and keeping up a rapid-fire conversation with everyone in earshot about the astounding developments that have stirred the town as it has not been stirred for generations. When the Americans came a few weeks ago, the people followed them, felt of their clothes, and generally marvelled at the strange creatures. Now they have become accustomed to them—not enough that they cease to gape, but enough that they understand. I see everywhere I turn scenes such as you find in the movies and the pictorial sheets—American "Sammies" playing with the children, making up to the women, chumming with the occasional poilu. It is marvelous how they manage to converse with the French people, neither knowing a word of the other's language.

Arthur Zimmerman and I are billeted in a three-room cottage with a nice old grandma. The three rooms are one on top of another and the house is merely part of the wall of buildings that faces a street about sixteen feet wide. Our room is the top one. It contains two fine old walnut beds and is otherwise comfortably furnished. The accommodations are indeed the best we have had in Europe. We eat at the chief hotel of the city. It is a bit expensive—costs about $1.80 a day but the meals are great. They are served with that exquisite perfection of service that only the French know. Loving French cooking and French ways of serving as I do, I quite revel in the opportunity to escape an army mess. There seems to be no shortage of food in France. At least it does not appear to have affected any of the hotels I have tried. I have never found anywhere better or more satisfying meals. The cost is a little more than the ordinary cost of a meal at home outside the very best hotels.

We are here only to wait for orders. The only thing we have to do is report at headquarters once a day. Other times we are writing letters and studying. If the weather clears up again we plan to take a bicycle ride over the excellent roads through the pretty country hereabouts. There are many historic spots in this vicinity.

One's French improves rapidly when he gets where he really has to use it. I find that I am able to understand nearly everything these people say to me even when they rattle at double time. I'm not so good at talking to them, but I always manage to make them know what I am trying to say. I am learning words and expressions rapidly, so that I have confidence it will not be many weeks before I can carry on a conversation easily enough. It is great fun to talk with them if for nothing else than to see their characteristic grimaces and gestures.

When I have seen more and had adventures that might interest your friends I may write you a little descriptive stuff. In the meantime I hope that I am going to find somewhere a letter from you. It is years since I heard from you.

Sincerely,
Conger Reynolds.

Prof. Ruth A. Wardall of the department of home economics is in New York on business and will be gone about two weeks. While in the East she will attend the vocational home economics convention at Atlantic City, N. J.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS HAVE LARGE Y ORGANIZATION

The high school Y. M. C. A. is growing by leaps and bounds. Attendance at devotional meetings has increased to forty-five in three weeks. The organization is now in charge of Glen Wilson, a University student.

The boys meet at Close hall every Monday night. Prof. A. D. Starbuck was the speaker last evening. At present the club is planning to organize a glee club and orchestra. They expect soon to give an entertainment to which all the high schools of the city will be invited.

The "High Y," according to its members, bids fair to become the most active factor in high school life this spring.

To the Editor:

As a member of a literary society, I feel that I must try to explain and justify the system of pledging which the women's literary societies used this year. The plan originated in the Women's Forensic council and was as follows: Each freshman girl who was interested in literary society work was to hand in her name with her first and second preferences as to societies to Miss Klingenhagen. Then each society handed in a list of girls they preferred to have and the girl received a bid only from the society which she preferred and which had her name on their lists. For a long time, the societies have felt dissatisfied with the old system of pledging for three main reasons. First, some girls who were really interested in literary society work were not invited to the parties because no member knew them. Secondly, some girls who were not interested accepted their bid just because they had some particular friend who was a member. These girls were usually the ones who became unwilling workers and disinterested members. And thirdly, some girls received two or even three bids while others just as talented received only one.

Now, because of these rather serious objections, the Forensic council were in search of a plan which would work out better. So they decided to try the new plan for this year partly because of the war, since the parties were a great expense, and partly because it would at least help to eliminate these objections. The societies would know just what girls were interested and no girl would receive more than one bid. Of course, the second objection never could be entirely eliminated.

The literary societies were unable to take in all of the freshmen girls who were interested because they are limited as to the number of members. But in general those who attended the open meetings of the society which they preferred, received bids from that society. And the girls who did not receive bids must remember that many sophomore girls are taken in each year.

The literary societies are not satisfied with this new plan, but we feel that it is much better than the old one, and therefore is a step toward perfection. No one could expect us to work out a perfect plan at the first trial and we hope it will be understood that we are attempting to find the best possible way of pledging. And we feel that the only way to find this plan is by trying all those we know.

LATIN EXHIBIT NOW ON DISPLAY

Head of Madison High School With Several Others Will Speak.

The Latin exhibit from the Newark, New Jersey public library is now on display in the corridor of the liberal arts building for the rest of the week. The department of education with the department of Latin has secured this exhibit while it was enroute from Salem, Oregon, where it was on exhibition. This exhibit is designed as an illustration of one of the best forms of equipment for Latin work in the country. At this time a conference of the Latin teachers of the state will be held on March 8 and 9. Miss Francis E. Sabin, who is head of the department of Latin in the Madison, Wis., high school will explain the work of this exhibit. Dean Russell of the college of education and Prof. Chas. N. Smiley of Grinnell college will lecture the same evening.

GERMANS BEATEN AGAIN

The Germans have been beaten again. If you don't believe it just take a look at the northwest wing of the University hospital where a few weeks ago there were dozens of cases of German measles. Recently the measles ward was the noisiest in the building. It is now quiet and the nurses are enjoying a rest.

Only three cases of the hated German disease are being treated at present and there have been no new cases for several days. Each day for the past week, students who have thrown off the "measles have been allowed to leave the hospital and according to the nurses and doctors in charge there is little chance of many new cases developing."

Mr. Cooper is the only college student in battery B of the 64th heavy artillery, except one member of the medical corps. He states in his letter to Captain Wright that his chances for an appointment to the next officers' training camp are good, as he has had previous training here. Harry Hunzelman, star football guard, represented Iowa in the heavy-weight class by reason of Harbison's ineligibility. The first two bouts ended in a draw, although Hunzelman maintained the offensive a larger part of the time. His fall in the last bout came unexpectedly a moment after he had held his opponent Stormont, in a most perilous position, and must be considered a chance fall, for at no other time was he required to extend himself. This brought the Indiana total to within 1 point of Iowa's.

A crowd of twelve hundred, mostly men, attended and the enthusiasm indicated that wrestling has established itself as an intercollegiate sport. The gym team entertained between bouts with a series of stunts on the horizontal bar.

Neither Iowa nor Indiana had a man to enter in the heavy weight class.

Summary:

125 pound—Fall won by Wagner of Iowa over Young of Indiana in first bout. Time 2:30. Hold, body scissors and half nelson.

135 pound—Decision to Scott of Iowa over Hook of Indiana after three seven and two three-minute periods.

145 pound—Fall to Dalzell of Indiana over Young of Iowa in third period. Time 4:10. Hold, body chancery.

158 pound—Decision to Biederman of Iowa over Mumby of Indiana after three seven-minute periods.

175 pound—Fall to Sormant of Indiana over Hunzelman of Iowa in third period. Time 2:20. Hold, chancery and body scissors.

Falls—Iowa one; Indiana, 2. Decisions, Iowa 2.

Referee—Dr. Clapp, Nebraska.

IOWA RIFLE TEAM HAS GOOD CHANCE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

According to Records Made By New Men Iowa Will Bid High For National Championship

TARGETS ARE QUARTER OF AN INCH

Men Are Realizing That To Be a Good Shot Is an Asset and Will Be of Later Use

The Iowa rifle team made high scores in its first two national matches at the high school gymnasium Saturday. "Taking into consideration the new targets, which are a little less than a quarter of an inch in diameter, and the fact that many of the men are new at the game the scores indicate that Iowa will bid high for a national championship this year," says Capt. Donald Price.

Rifle shooting at Iowa this year has kept pace with the newly aroused interest in other lines of sport. Many men of the University realizing that they may soon be called to the trenches and that a crack shot is an important personage on the firing line regard it as a patriotic duty to take up this fascinating branch of sport and about fifty have been reporting regularly for practice. The improvement of some of these men has been remarkable. One new man shot ten consecutive bullseyes in practice and officially tallied sixteen consecutive bullseyes followed by a couple of nines and six more bullseyes.

Captain Price states that the need of more new rifles is seriously felt and unless they are provided Iowa will be handicapped in the race for the national championship. He adds further that the following men have been chosen to shoot on the first team and that they should report daily: Kelly, Hammer, Ham, Harper, Lee (George), Lee (Hans), Tobin, Ady, and Fitzpatrick. The scores for the first two matches were as follows:

FINE ARTS EXHIBIT SHOWS LIE'S WORKS

Members of Faculty Will Lecture. Benefit of the Red Cross—Reception Is Tonight

The fifth annual exhibition of oil paintings will be opened tonight at the Commercial club rooms at a reception open only to the members of the Iowa City Fine Arts association. Prof. C. H. Weller will lecture.

The exhibition includes only the work of Jonas Lie. The pictures have arrived and were hung yesterday. There are thirty-eight pictures and they are valued at approximately $50,000. All pictures in the exhibition are for sale at studio prices and information regarding sales may be had from the attendant.

The lecture by Professor Weller tonight is on "Jonas Lie and His Time." Its purpose is to give the visitors a basis for judging the pictures. Other lectures will be by Prof. Ellsworth Faris and Prof. E. D. Starbuck. The lectures take the place of the more elaborate programs that have usually been printed. Inasmuch as the display is for the benefit of the Red Cross the programs will include only a list of the paintings and will contain no cuts.

"The Palms in the Wind" and "The Bathing Pool," two pictures which were hung early yesterday, caused favorable comment.
