MEMBERS OF IOWAN STAFF WILL ATTEND PRESS CONVENTION

Iowa College Press Association Meets at Cedar Rapids Today and Tomorrow

THREE UNIVERSITY MEN ON PROGRAM

President W. A. Jessup, Frank B. Thayer and W. Earl Hall Will Address Convention.

If you notice a little death of news in the columns of this paper Saturday, you will know at once that the staff, including the office cat and devil, have gone to Cedar Rapids for the second annual convention of the Iowa College Press association which is meeting there today and tomorrow.

The meeting convenes this afternoon but only four or five of the members of the Iowa force will attend. Tomorrow, however, the morning interurbans will be fairly filled with Iowan representatives who wish to drink of the experience of fellow journalists in other colleges of the state. Sunday's paper will be issued but it may require a bit of camouflage on the part of the person or two who will remain for the work to make a respectable showing of news.

The University will be represented in the two days' program by three persons. President W. A. Jessup will speak this afternoon on "College Newspaper Ideals." W. Earl Hall will talk on "Editorial Writing" at an editorial conference tomorrow morning and Frank B. Thayer, head of the University work in journalism, will make the main address tomorrow afternoon.

Sigma Xi, the honorary science fraternity, held its annual initiation ceremony Wednesday evening. The following became associate members; Andrew Bennett, Iowa City; George Hausman, Banson; Bruce Kenworthy, Earlham; Paul Lorens, Ogden; Paul McCann, West Liberty; and Robert Peterson, Palmer.

Those initiated as active members are: Eugene Berry, Barnstable, Mass.; Cordia Bunch, Iowa City; Robert Dodson, Denver, Col.; Robert Henderson, Plover; and George Wait, Penalosa, Kan. Two students, Clarence Hauser, Iowa City, and William Schriever, Dakota City, Neb., have joined the army and will be initiated in absentia.

The fraternity has 10,000 members and it is considered the highest honor in science for a graduate student, faculty member or senior to be elected to membership in it.

SOLDIERS ENJOY NEW CURTAINS FROM GIRLS

Y. M. C. A. at Camp Dodge Received Curtains Purchased and Made by University Women.

The curtains that the University girls purchased and made for the Y. M. C. A. building at Camp Dodge have been received and are heartily appreciated by the men. Practically all the girls on the campus had a part in the purchasing of the curtains, as they were divided into groups and each group was canvassed. There was enough money left to get the rods for the curtains and that has been forwarded to them. The letter of appreciation follows, written by Stewart D. Marquis of the secretarial staff of building 96.

"Words entirely fail me when I come to express the appreciation of us all for all that you have done to brighten our building in furnishing us those curtains. I have waited to write this note until they were hung and I could really see how attractive they are. The men come into the building, give one look around, then some such remark as this, 'Say, those curtains are swell. I'm sure some-sick now. Who made them for us?' In order to settle forever that last question, we intend to put on the wall a plate acknowledging the givers.

"We hope that all of you may pay us a visit soon and see for yourselves how cozy the room has become. We should like very much to be able to say 'thank you' in person but in the meantime will you accept this note as an expression of the heartiest appreciation of the secretarial staff of building 96 and of the men who use the building."

PEIRCE TO ADDRESS INSTITUTE

Prof. Paul S. Peirce of the department of economics left yesterday for Fort Dodge to deliver addresses before the Red Cross institute being held there today and tomorrow, under the auspices of the extension division.

"The Effect of the War on Women and Children in Industry" is the subject of his first address, and his second address will be on "The Re-education and Rehabilitation of Injured Soldiers."

IAN HAY ON RETURN VISIT WILL TALK OF PROGRESS OF WAR

Spent Past Summer in England and France—Will Tell of Work of Sailor Lads.

NOTES PROGRESS ON LAND AND SEA

Famous Author Is Rich in Actual Experience With Pershing's Men and With British.

Those who heard Major Ian Hay Beith lecture here last year will be interested to know that he is to return this year. He will speak on "The Progress of the War on Land and Sea" Monday evening, March 11, in the natural science auditorium.

During the past year, Major Beith was without doubt the most popular of any of the lecturers who came to America to tell of the great war. The geniality which made him popular in his writings shone out in his lectures, and everywhere he went the author of the "First Hundred Thousand" was more than welcome.

After a summer back at the front and in England, Major Beith now returns to America to tell of the progress of the war on both land and sea during the past year.

During his absence from America, he has been with the British Grand Fleet at sea and with the American ships now in the battle zone. His experiences with these two bodies of men enable him to tell how Jack Tar and the American sailor boy are getting on together and what luck they are having in making the U-boat no longer a terror of the deep.

Major Beith has been three times in France. Here again he did not confine himself to things British, but spent a good part of his time with Pershing's men to learn how they are faring in their new surroundings.

STARBUCK WILL GIVE CRITICAL DISCUSSION

Prof. E. D. Starbuck will give a critical discussion of the paintings of Jonas Lie at the art exhibit in the Commercial club rooms tonight at 7:30.

The aesthetic classes will be required to attend the lecture. It is also one of the two lectures, the choice of which is optional, that the freshmen women of the University are required to attend.

Prof. Ellsworth Faris will lecture at the exhibit on next Friday evening.

WILL TEACH GARDENING

Within a short time members of a class in practical botany will be putting some of their theories of gardening into practice. There are fifteen students taking this course, and they will get a chance to do their "bit" of production somewhere on the west side of the river.

CLUB WILL MEET TUESDAY

The Philosophical club will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the liberal arts drawing room. The Rev. Mr. Perry will give a talk on "Types of Immortality." Mr. and Mrs. H. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Wilcox, and Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Smith will entertain.

DEAN TEETERS IS BACONION SPEAKER

Will Read Paper on the Cultivation of Medicinal Plants.

The regular meeting of the Baconian club will be held Friday evening, at 7:30, in the physics lecture hall. Dean W. J. Teeters, of the college of pharmacy, will read a paper on the cultivation of medicinal plants.

His talk will be illustrated by lantern slides of drug gardens and typical medicinal plants.

Because of the difficulties of importation of medicinal plants and the consequent high prices, the growing of these plants is of special importance at this time.

The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting. The topic is one of general interest, and Dean Teeters is especially fitted to speak on it, having had charge of the University drug garden on the West Side.

LATIN CONFERENCE WILL BE TONIGHT

Miss Frances Sabin Will Be Here—Interesting Speeches to Be Made By Faculty Members.

The display of the Latin high school exhibit in the corridor of liberal arts has attracted much attention. It represents a system that is being worked out by the more progressive high schools. Miss Frances Sabin, who has done more than any other to perfect the plan, will be present at the Latin conference to be held in the auditorium tonight. The conference will be held conjointly by the departments of Latin and education. The following program will be presented:

"Wherein does Latin in the high school most need reinforcement?"—Miss Frances Eabin, University high school, Madison, Wisconsin.

"The attitude of the high school superintendent toward Latin"—Dean W. F. Russell, College of Education.

"The relation between 'vocational' and cultural Latin."—Professor Chas. N. Smiley.

The conference will be continued during Saturday morning. Miss Ellen Geyer will speak then as well as Professor Franklin H. Potter, Professor O. E. Klingaman and Miss Frances Sabin. All those who are interested in the subject are invited to come.

INTERFRATERNITY CONFERENCE WILL ASSIST

Methods for boosting the coming War Savings stamp campaign was the chief topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Interfraternity conference held Wednesday evening at the Hotel Jefferson. President Jessup talked to the delegates impressing upon them the necessity and importance of making the coming campaign a success.

It was decided that each delegate should call the attention of his chapter to the sale and urge the members to cut out luxuries and invest the money saved in stamps. Pledge cards have been made out for every student and are being distributed now. Dean Teeters of the college of pharmacy has been appointed chairman of the campaign committee.

SIGMA NU'S BEATEN BY PHI PSI'S FOR FRATERNITY TROPHY

East End Team Touted to Win Are Unable to Stop Fast Drive of North End Champions.

ROYER LEADS SCORING FOR VICTORS

Kaufman Off Color and Fails to Deliver in Usual Form—First Halves Ends 9 to 6.

Dope was spilled on the armory floor last night when the touted Sigma Nu basket ball five, champions of the east end division fell before the driving onslaught of the Phi Psi five, victors of the north end, by a score of 19 to 10. By virtue of the victory the Phi Psis will receive the silver loving cup which has been offered to the winning team by the Pan-hellenic council.

Sigma Nu, favorites before the fray, after the first few minutes of play, failed to be dangerous competitors in the final count, although their fighting tactics were evidenced until the final whistle. Royer was the individual star for the Phi Psis, aside from playing a slippery game on the floor, he was responsible for 12 points of his team-mates' 19, who played to him consistently at every turn.

Sigma Nu Scores First

Sigma Nu hung up the first basket, following three rapid passes following the tip off. Royer tied the score thirty seconds later by a spectacular basket from the midst of a sea of arms. Coehrt placed the Phi Psis in the lead with a goal from foul shortly after and the Phi Psis went into the lead, not to be overtaken by their opponents in the remainder of the contest.

Phi Psi led the scoring at the end of the first half by count of 6 to 9. Each team hooped three baskets during this period and Coehrt bested Kaufman in an equal number of chances at the free throw game and hooped three out of four attempts while Kaufman failed to tally.

Royer Stars for Phi Psis.

Sigma Nu came back strong at the beginning of the second half but the close guarding of the Phi Psi aggregation prevented the east end boys from scoring but one basket during the final half. Royer during this period came into his own and assisted by his teammates annexed four baskets. Two substitutions were made to stop his rushing floor work but were ineffective. The midget forward located the ring from all positions on the floor.

Sigma Nu showed sparks of teamwork at times but were never able to get into perfect harmony. Kaufman, captain of the freshman basketball squad, was apparently off color, which combined with Greenwood's close guarding, allowed him but two baskets. Block and Dethlefs made the other two Sigma Nu baskets. Newcomb played a consistent game for the east enders but was forced from the game near the close because of the allotted number of personal fouls.

Teamwork and consistent guarding was largely responsible for the Phi Psi victory. Time and again their opponents worked the ball to the center of the floor only to be overtaken by a coterie of guards.

FIGHTING FOR DEMOCRACY

Russia has become the storm-center of the war. The attitude to be taken by the western allies toward German support of the counter revolution in the new republic is vital with significance. Will they accept the inevitability and recognize the validity of the treaties which are being signed with supposedly representative Russian committees, and "wash their hands" of the Russian nation; or will they stand squarely behind the revolution, repudiate the special treaties, and insist upon the same treatment for Russia at the peace conference as if Russia were still an active ally?

England, France, Italy and the United States must be either for or against the Russian revolution. They have never repudiated the secret treaties made with the Romanoff government. They have never agreed to war aims which would assure the Russian revolutionist that he was not fighting for the cause of czarist diplomacy. If they are for the revolution they must trust in it and have faith in its power to rehabilitate itself. They must overlook its excesses and adjust their aims to its underlying principles.

If the allies are to turn against the revolution, they will directly or indirectly aid Germany in her destruction of it. The German government feared the revolutionary agitation in Russia and deliberately set about it to destroy it. The allies can not make their hands clean by washing them of Russia.

One way of aiding the German destruction of the Russian revolution would be to consent to Japan's desire to "preserve law and order" in eastern Russia. Japan can bring no effective force to the theater of war without full participation in the war. If that were her object, she should be given a free hand. But her object is only to advance her own interest in Siberia at the expense of Russia. The revolutionists in Russia are no menace to Japanese peace; no more are the counter revolutionists.

To consent to the Japanese penetration of Russia would be to consent to the same kind of imperialistic domination which we are fighting against. It would be allowing Japan to do in the east what we object to Germany's doing in the west. Intervention from that quarter could mean nothing but the attempt to secure commercial advantage under pretext of military necessity. The allied governments are fighting for thoroughgoing democracy. The collapse of the Russian revolution is the collapse of democracy. It must be defended even though its own power of resistance is temporarily shattered.

A WEEKLY WOMEN'S EDITION

Tomorrow's issue of The Daily Iowan will be a women's edition, and on every succeeding Saturday for the remainder of the year the paper will be in the hands of women, if results are amply satisfactory.

This does not mean that activities of women will fill the columns of the paper to the exclusion of the news of the campus. It means only that the women will have full charge of the paper from the collecting of the news to the proof-reading and makeup. The first aim of the paper on this day as on every other day will be to publish the news. Women play an important part in the getting out of the paper on other days but on Saturdays the handicap occasioned by the presence of masculine clumsiness will be entirely removed.

The women's edition will, however, play up with greater emphasis than the other issues the activities of women and work for an organization of University women. The enterprise is being begun out of a demand which has come with the recent steps in the direction of a unification in this body and the success of the women's edition will depend very largely upon the degree in which this organizing process goes forward. Girls who have asked for the edition have imposed upon themselves an obligation to cooperate with the women members of the Iowan staff in the enterprise.

IT'S HARD, BUT—

The editor wriggled beneath the clutch of a rosy, robust, romping student. Fear and dust were in the editor's eyes and blood must have been in the eyes of the assailant, for he was mighty angry. He made no pretense at concealing it.

"Now lookie here," growled the angry student dramatically and more or less sarcastically. "You gotta print these here names or I'll throw sawdust in your soup." A beam of light fell upon his auburn hair. He was twenty-two, unmarried, and had two gold teeth which could be seen when he cleaned his teeth on Sunday mornings.

"I won't," retorted the scared editor inaudibly, under his breath about twenty feet.

The angry student released his clutch, stepped on the reverse and backed toward the door. The scared editor watched him with satisfaction.

"But listen here, Ed (Ed is short for scared editor)," the angry student mumbled in a monotone as he crossed the threshold into the free and wide-open world, "both of these ginks what hold their classes over time is in the same department."

Another ray of light fell upon the mind of the editor.

"I don't care if they are both in the economics department," scared Ed thought thoughtfully. (It was thinkless Saturday too.) "We promised the faculty that we would serve notice on them before we printed their names, and by the Great Horn Spoon we'll do'er too." The building shook and the reporters awoke. The scared editor unruffled his hair, brushed the finger prints from his coat collar and clipped another editorial from an exchange paper.

The purpose of this mellowdrama is to picture again to some of our good faculty members possessed of no sense of time something of the struggles which this paper has in refraining from publishing their names.

What Others Think

The Daily Iowan will gladly print any communications from students or faculty members. The writer must sign the article to show his good faith in sending it, but no name will be printed if the sender so designates.

To the Editor.

My attention has been called to the article in the issue of March 7th entitled "Begin At Home." I wish to make this statement so that no one will be misled by the comparisons made in this article. After the appropriation of $150,000.00 was made by the last General Assembly for the building of a Children's Hospital, a Committee from the Board and the Hospital Staff visited many similar institutions about the country and then set about the task of designing the best building for this purpose which could be built within the appropriation. This work was let out under contract with the understanding that it be completed by September 1st, 1918. The contractor started work in the fall and made very good headway until the time of cold weather. It is the intention to have this building ready for occupancy in the fall and therefore little would have been gained by working through the winter on this kind of work, and the additional expense would have meant that the building could not have been built within the amount appropriated for the purpose. It certainly would have been a great mistake to have carried on this construction during the past winter especially when nothing particularly could be gained by completing the building a few months earlier.

Yours very truly,

J. M. Fisk.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

WORK

(Minnesota Daily)

"Oh, Woe!" sighed a freshman, "no end to the work. It's bad enough to listen to lectures all day but to have to go home at night to a pile of work, the mere thought of which overwhelms one—it's misery."

This is the attitude of too many college students. They consider college work hard and anticipate an easier life when they enter the arena of business activity. But let the hard working undergraduate cheer up. It has been asserted that even the fungus of a social parasite who has long enjoyed the reputation of an easy life, the insurance agent, has to labor for his living.

"Do they walk into our parlor?"

asked one in disgust. "I should say not! When one comes into the office and asks for a policy, you can bet ten dollars he has epilepsy or heart failure, and has been warned by the doctors he can not live a month. No, we have to get out and rustle for the live ones."

And so after all, let us take heart. There is work for everyone and only those who do their share achieve success. While it is said that the world owes one a living, we maintain that its generosity is only extended to those who go out and get things for themselves.

ENGLISH IN ADVERTISING

(Cincinnati University News)
The following examples of how to write English are gleaned from advertisements:

"For sale, $5 suits; they won't last long."

"Bathing suits reduced to almost nothing."

"For rent, a room; suitable for a gentleman, 12x15 feet."

"Wanted, a boy to deliver oysters that can ride a bicycle."

"Wanter, 10 girls to sew buttons on the sixth floor."

"Every article in this window reduced 120 per cent."

"Shoes half-soleo on the inside while you wait for 25 cents."

"Your baby, if you have one, can be enlarged, tinted and framed for $8.79."

ELIMINATION MEETS START TODAY IN HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Winners in Each District Will Compete for Honors at Armory Next Week.

SEVEN SECTIONAL MEETS HELD

Iowa City, West Waterloo, Davenport, Marshalltown and Ft. Dodge are Runners Up.

The annual state high school basketball tournaments start today in the various districts over the state in the preliminary elimination meets which will determine the eight teams which will battle for state honors at the armory march 15 and 16. The competitive tryouts will be held at seven cities in the state at which the major schools from each respective district will attend. Des Moines schools will not enter the meets.

Eight Teams to Compete.

The meets will be held at the following cities: Grinnell college, Grinnell; Simpson college, Indianola; Cornell College, Mount Vernon; Iowa college, Ames; Morningside college, Sioux City; State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, and Parsons college, Fairfield.

Although only seven sectional meets will be held there will be eight teams selected to play in the final tournament at Iowa City on March 16 and 17. The two teams working their way into the finals at Indianola will represent that section in the final meet. The winners of the other six sectional tournaments will compete against the Indianola winners in the final scramble for the state title at Iowa City.

Mount Pleasant Strong.

To select eight winners from a hundred and fifty contestants is a precarious proposition, for many of the teams which show class throughout the season are often eliminated from the finals by a dark horse.

Mount Pleasant, winner of the state championship last year, has another fast quintet this season and one that is expected to be a contender again. Iowa City, runnerup in the 1917 meet, is represented by a much faster team this year, and should be a strong contender for the championship.

Iowa City lost only two games this year and both were by close scores, Davenport beat the Little Hawkeyes by a one point margin last week, while Cedar Rapids downed Iowa City at Cedar Rapids by a four point margin.

Other Strong Teams

West Waterloo, Davenport, Sac City, Marshalltown, Fort Dodge, Boone, Reinbeck, are some of the other strong teams that should play important roles in the state championship scramble this year.

The teams entered in the seven district tournaments this year are as follows:

Ames

Ames, Algoha, Audubon, Churdan, Clariton, Colo, Dennison, Estherville, Exira, Boone, Lohrville, Laurens, Luverne, Milford, Nevada, Rinard, Shelby, Rockwell City, Spencer, Spirit Lake, Logan, Missouri Valley, West Bend.

Indianola

Avoca, Clearfield, Corning, Dallas Center, Elleston, Emerson, Essex, Fontanelle, Guthrie Center, Guthrie county, Indianola, Lenox, Massena, Oakland, Perry, Red Oak, Stuart, Tabor, Waukee, Blockton, Clarinda, Coon Rapids, Tingley.

LETTERS FROM OUR SOLDIERS

SOLDIERS LETTERS
 France, Feb. 16, 1918.

Dean Wm. G. Raymond,
 State University of Iowa,
 Iowa City, Iowa.

My dear friend:
 Thank you very much for the letter of greeting which came yesterday. I am glad to know that so many S. U. I. graduates and former students are in this war to crush German military power. Will you sent me a list of those who attended the College of Applied Science when I did and who are now in some branch of the service? I may get a chance to see some of them if I know to what organizations they belong.

I received my commission in the engineers' officers reserve corps a year ago next Wednesday and entered actual service last June. While in the U. S. Geological Survey earlier in the year I did considerable military mapping for the war department along the Mexican border from El Paso west to Arizona. Was stationed at Deming for a while. During the late summer I did some mapping around the Rockford cantonment and was later sent to Camp Devens, Mass., where the 29th Regiment of Engineers (Printing and Mapping) was recruited. I left the states the last of October with that regiment.

We have 250 men, approximately one third of whom are graduates or former students of technical schools and colleges, and are able to handle most any kind of work along Engineering lines. We have been called upon to do everything from pick and shovel work to installing electrical machinery. Building barracks, assembling autos, laying out switch yards, etc., are some of the other things we have done. But at the present time most of our work is along the line of mapping and printing. I just finished mapping an air depot site and flying field for the air service and will start tomorrow on a manoeuver field for "tank" practice. Hospital sites and water supply surveys also take up some of our time. However, this work is all incidental to the real work of this company—namely that of making battle maps and printing same in large quantities.

Trusting this will find you well, I close by saying that I'm mighty glad to be here and would not be contented elsewhere at this time. We do not fear for the final outcome of the war; the only doubtful point is the length of time it will take.

With best wishes I remain,
 Very truly yours,
 Lt. F. A. Danforth,
 Company A 29th Engineers,

 P. S. Give my regards to Profs. Kay, Woodward, and others of my faculty friends.

Cohrt featured for the north end five with five tallies out of eight attempts from the foul line and played a fast floor game with Reed, who counted one basket from field. Boyson and Greenwood played a strong defensive game.
