Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY AND MISS HIER TO LEAVE FOR FRANCE

Miss Mary Andersen and French Instructor Will Do Welfare Work Over There.

WILL SAIL BY THE LAST OF MONTH

Miss Andersen and Miss Hier Have Been Here Three and Two Years Respectively.

Mary Andersen, secretary of the University Y. W. C. A., and Florence M. Hier, instructor in Romance languages, will leave the last of this month for France where they will engage in social welfare work under the auspices of the national board of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Andersen's and Miss Hier's work will be in connection with the hostess houses that have been established for Red Cross nurses near the base hospitals. Definite instructions have not been received by the mas yet.

Miss Hier has been intending to go to France in some kind of war work for the last two years, but Miss Andersen's decision was made only yesterday after she received a telegram from the national secretary of the Y. W. C. A. asking her to go with Miss Hier. To telegraph to her family which was scattered all over the country was no small matter, her mother being in North Carolina, one brother in Minnesota, and the other in one of the western training camps.

Both Miss Andersen and Miss Hier are especially fitted for this service. Miss Hier has lived for several years in Paris and speaks French with facility. Miss Andersen, on the other hand, knows the Association's organization thoroughly.

Miss Andersen has been secretary of the local Y. W. for three years. She is a graduate of Lake Forest college, and took her M. A. at Columbia university.

This is Miss Hier's second year as French teacher at the University. She is a graduate of Mount Holyoke college.

Fay Stahl, assistant Y. W. secretary, will take Miss Andersen's place for the rest of the school year.

GARMENTS FOR REFUGEES TO BE CURRIER'S TASK

Currier Hall girls are to fashion garments for the Belgian refugees little French orphans as soon as there is no longer any danger that Liberty measles, smallpox, scarlet fever, and the mumps will be communicated to the children. The contagion which has beset the hall has retarded the beginning of this branch of patriotic service.

A Red Cross room was to be fitted up at the hall according to previous plans, but the local chapter did not have the funds to equip such a branch at this time. Miss Klingenhagen, dean of women, then decided upon this later plan which seems to be meeting with satisfaction with the young women.

Easter vacation, the girls are expected to return with the best material that their attic and discarded wardrobe affords, and by combination of materials it is hoped that some presentable and acceptable garments can be made for our little orphans.

AN APPEAL TO UNIVERSITY WOMEN

(By Clara May Daley)

It is no easy road that extends before the young woman of the present. It is no light task or frivolous role that she is expected to assume. Her country is at war and the end is not in sight. Already she has seen her fellow student called from class-room to camp. She has heard the appeal for help that reached every citizen of the republic and it is to be hoped that she may not be unmindful of the call.

We are told that in order to win this war, America must marshal every force at her command. We are told, too, that second only to the duty of the men at the front is the duty of the women at home. Before this struggle began it was generally acknowledged that woman's "sphere" was wherever she could be of service, but the exigencies of war brought a fuller realization of the fact. The first duty of the young woman of today is, therefore, to fit herself to be an asset and not a liability, to see that she is trained to fill some important niche whether in home or school or office. Never were the opportunities for usefulness so many and varied, and never were the responsibilities and obligations so correspondingly great. From the girl with the advantages of a university education shall most be expected.

Our young women may never need to furnish the same measure of genuine courage as that of the soldier in battle, but she can do her duty, however humble and unseen, wherever she may be placed. She may not be able to match the self-sacrifice of the brother or lover who fights and dies in the first line trench, but she can be worthy of him. The world is in need of examples and of leaders in all fields. Where should it look for them if not to the university?

RUSSELL TALKS AT LATIN CONFERENCE

Out of State Speakers Address Meeting to Stimulate Interest in Latin.

To combat the growing opposition to the study of Latin, improved teaching methods must be introduced by constant attention in class to its applications and by limiting its study to those who are at liberty to carry it far enough to achieve its real values.

This was the statement of Dean W. F. Russell in his lecture before the Latin Conference in the liberal arts assembly last night. Throughout his speech he discussed the attitude of the high school superintendent toward the value of Latin.

"The arguments against Latin are mainly, that it is a dead language, that it is poorly taught, that the mental training value is decreasing in importance, and that the belief in formal discipline is increasing. This is the mental attitude that the average high school teacher comes in contact with."

"We must strive to improve the teaching of Latin, no matter whether we believe in formal discipline or not. An appeal must be made without reference to the increasing opposition of the average high school principal. The important question consists in making it as live as possible."

Prof. Charles N. Smiley spoke concerning the relation of culture to vocational Latin and its application to the present day need. Miss Florence E. Sabin discussed the problem "Wherein does high school Latin most need reinforcement."

DRUG GARDENS DISCUSSED BY DEAN

Dean Teeters of Pharmacy College Speaks Before Baconian.

"The growing of medicinal plants should be regarded as a specialized industry," declared Prof. W. J. Teeters, dean of the college of pharmacy in a lecture before Baconian last night.

The idea that medicinal plants can be grown as easily as ordinary crops is erroneous, he stated. To produce the supply of drugs certain definite information must be gained in regard to soil and climatic conditions, cultivation and harvesting, and the colleges of pharmacy furnish at least a part of this information. The medicinal garden, conducted as a laboratory in conjunction with class has wonderful possibilities for the botany, medical, and pharmacy student.

More than 100 antochromic slides were shown of drug gardens throughout the country, including complete series of belladonna and digitalis. These particular drugs have been more affected by rise in price due to the war and their demand by the army and navy.

UNIVERSITY PARTY TONIGHT

Nothing dangerous to life, limb, or apparel is expected to occur at the University party tonight, but—Are you sure you know how to spell your name? Do you think you would make a good soldier? Come and find out, but don't be surprised at anything! A dramatic and musical program will follow the rest of the fun, and light refreshments will be served. Dancing will close the evening for all who wish to remain for it. The admission fee of twenty cents includes the entire entertainment, which will begin tonight at 7:30 at the women's gymnasium.

GIRLS TO COMPETE IN EXTEMPORE CONTEST

All Women Students Eligible. Subjects Relate to Women—Announced Saturday.

The annual extemporaneous speaking contest will be held under the auspices of the Women's Forensic league at the natural science auditorium Tuesday, March 19 at 7:30. Members of the faculty will judge.

The Women's Forensic league offers two prizes, $10 and $5, to the winners of first and second place. Talks will be limited to ten minutes.

There will be six contestants, one representing each of the five literary societies and one to be chosen from the University at large by competitive tryout. Any woman student not a member of a literary society, who wishes to enter the contest is required to register at the office of the department of public speaking, phone 1691, before March 11. A preliminary tryout will be held March 12 for those who have registered and the winner will be eligible to enter the final contest.

The subjects will be posted on bulletin boards and announced in the Daily Iowan, March 16. Each contestant will decide on the subject she wishes before 6 p. m. the same date and register at the public speaking office. The subjects will be taken from the following fields, Women in Politics, Women in Industry, Women in War Reconstruction after the War, The Monroe Doctrine, Financing the War, Alsace and Lorraine, Science and the War, The Red Cross, Modern Invention, and Iowa Literature.

SECOND ANNUAL MEET OF COLLEGE PRESS IS IN SESSION AT C. R.

President W. A. Jessup one of the Main Speakers in First Meeting Yesterday.

IOWA REPRESENTATIVES GO TODAY

Cedar Rapids Editor Says Newspapers are Turning to the Colleges for Workers.

CEDAR RAPIDS, March 8.—Special to The Daily Iowan: The second annual convention of the Iowa College Press association convened here today in Hotel Montrose with about seventy delegates from eight Iowa colleges. The formal program opened at 2 o'clock when President John Battin of Coe college announced his appointment of committees and introduced President W. A. Jessup of the University for the first address.

In the University head's discussion of "College Newspaper Ideals," he began by contrasting the present with the past, before the war, in college journalism and showed how our entry into the war has increased enormously the possibilities for service. He pointed out the increased seriousness which obtains among college men this year and explained that it was for this reason that college papers are receiving a more careful hearing than in previous years.

Duty of College Paper

The latter part of the President's speech was given over to an explanation of how concretely the college publications of Iowa can be a factor in winning the war by preaching daily the need for conservation of food, the subscriptions to the Liberty loans, support of Thrift campaigns, and contributions to the Y. M. C. A. and Red Cross. The per capita amount of thrift stamps which must be sold is $20 for every individual in America, and it is the duty of the college journal to attain at least this average in the student body which it serves, he explained.

WOMAN JOURNALISTS ON INCREASE AT UNIVERSITY

The advancement of women in work formerly occupied by men is shown in newspaper work as well as along other lines of work. And especially does this apply to the journalistic work of the women at the University. Statistics of the Daily Iowan staff of the past six years show that the number of women on the staff has increased from 10 per cent in the year 1913-1914 to over 50 per cent this year. In the year 1915-1916 fourteen out of the thirty members of the staff were women; in 1916-1917 ten out of twenty-eight and in 1917-1918 fifteen out of twenty-seven.

Besides this increase in the number of women working in the publicity service, some of the women are even doing the make-up work and editing of the paper.

THE UNIVERSITY TEAS

The biggest step toward democracy that University women have taken for many years was the inauguration of the University tea. Every Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock sorority and club affiliations are forgotten, and every girl in the institution has the opportunity to meet every other girl on common ground. The Iowan believes that the University tea has come to stay because the ideals of democracy and good fellowship on which it is founded are not apt to perish from this University.

The Forensic league was caught in this wave of democracy, and it emerged tinted but not deep-dyed in its colors. To some, the literary society doors are still closed. But this newest movement toward social enjoyment and familiar intercourse is born of the very spirit of democracy. Not only does each University woman automatically become a part of this new social group at matriculation, but once in the year each girl has a definite share in the tea arrangements. Participation and responsibility are apportioned equally.

The teas will provide a place where University women may meet their sister students, the women members of the faculty, and the wives of faculty men, in an informal manner, where they may sing songs together, where they may chat congenially over their teacups. Men have long been the more democratic sex for the obvious reason that they have countless opportunities for rubbing shoulders with all sorts of individuals without custom's formal restrictions. University women are afforded this occasion of cultivating that wide companionship which they envy in men and which is the fundamental ingredient of democracy.

A campaign to enlist college women in the nursing profession is being made by the state committee among all Kansas academies and colleges.

BUSY WOMEN

Whispers of an uncomplimentary nature concerning our woman faculty members are floating about the campus. The statement made by a prominent woman at the Red Cross headquarters that the feminine representatives of the faculty were not regularly enlisted in this patriotic service has brought forth some hasty judgments.

Truly the conspicuousness of their absence at this place is an occasion for remark for this reason. Not a girl's debate, not a tea, luncheon or banquet, not an artistic reading contest, not a single girl's movement is complete without the presence and a few both sensible and clever remarks of a woman faculty member. These woman instructors are meeting the demands of the state often more conscientiously than their male colleagues, and they are answering the multiplicity of demands placed upon them by the students. That done, the opportunity is often times gone of fulfilling the necessities of their own physical well being.

When a girl student discovers a faculty woman attending a cheap movie, when she spies a feminine pedagogue skimming through a book of light fiction, when she detects one of them doing a solitary act for her own selfish pleasure then—let the slacker stories begin to circulate. Until that time, keep mum.

Compulsory attendance of women at food conservation lectures twice each week is the new rule at the University of Kansas. To offset this added requirement, women students are allowed one day each week free from physical education.

RECONSTRUCTION

Three years behind other countries in preparation for war, the United States will be as far behind them in social and economic reconstruction is the warning hurled at the public by speakers and editorial writers. Students of politics and economics have begun, at least, to consider reconstruction if not in any practical and administrative way.

The discussion, however, that reaches our mid-western academic ears is the problem of mustering out the men and putting them in gainful occupations. They have omitted one very important aspect of the situation, the question of the woman laborer.

What is to be done with the women who are now occupying the positions of men in the service? Many of the jobs will revert to the men, of that no doubt need be entertained. As a consequence of this, the country will have on its hands a great throng of business-greedy women, who will not be satisfied to return to the irksome duties of the home. Many of them will marry; others will not so desire, men will be at a premium if they do.

Here is a problem for the thinking college woman to face. The solver of this question will be rendering a great service to womankind and to her country.

Credit for war food courses will be given to junior and senior women in the University of Michigan. These courses come under the head of military training and consist of three lectures and two laboratory periods a week.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

KEEPING UP WITH LIZZIE
(Daily Kansan)

I know a girl from my home town who came to school this year; but like the wooden Indian, she don't know me down here. I used to go with her at home; she seemed to like me there; but here at old K. U. quite a different affair. Seems funny how some girls forget the pals they used to know; its policy to drop the guy who's not a "social" beau. Of course she'll take a date with me for a two-dollar show; you can't blame her so very much, she wants a way to go, but when it comes to Friday night, about nine times in ten, she'd like to go so well, you know, but she don't see how she can. And Saturday and Sunday too (or any other time) she really has to finish up that History outline. I didn't realize how studious she really is; she'll be a female Socrates, a regular Gee-whiz. I know how much I'm in her road because she's set her eye on making a sorority, the Eta Beta Pi; I'm not what's termed a "social guy" and won't do her much good in showing off what style she's got; I know I never could. I rather think she's keeping me to be the last resort, in case she fails to make the "Greek" and needs a man escort. Here's to her; and Jove grant she makes the Eta Beta Pies; it wouldn't do much good, I guess, to wish it otherwise; but if she thinks I'll stick around and wait a month or two, she's got her wires badly crossed, for its just what I won't do. She's nice and cute and pretty, but I'll get along without her; I'm not looking for left-overs at K. U.'s bargain counter.

What Others Think

The Daily Iowan will gladly print any communications from students or faculty members. The writer must sign the article to show his good faith in sending it, but no name will be printed if the sender so designates.

To the Editor:

Is it that the men's glee club have such superior voices, or are so much handsomer to appear on the stage than the girl's, or what is the reason that the woman's glee club is never given a place on programs or in print? I am not a member of the girl's glee club myself so am not seeking fame or publicity, but I am curious to know just who makes up this organization and hate to wait until the Hawkeye appears to find out.

If a concert by them would not pay, why not have them sing a selection or two at some convocation or patriotic meeting. We know the boys repertory and have learned the names of all the good looking ones. Give the women their chance.

Courses in agriculture are to be offered to Ames girls during the summer session to prepare them to teach the subject. The girls are looked to to fill the places of the men instructors in the high schools. "All we need," says one Ames senior, "is twelve credit hours of agriculture, together with some pep and ambition."

At the Kansas State Agricultural College, 150 women are studying to be electrical engineers.

URGES GRADUATES TO ENTER NURSE'S CAMP

Delegate to Council of Defense Meeting Points Out Chance For Patriotic Service.

University girls should seriously consider taking up nursing as a war profession," declares Dr. Zella White Stewart, who returned yesterday from the meeting of the Council of National Defense at Fort Dodge. Scarcity of nurses in our own country as well as opportunities for service abroad makes it imperative for college trained women who can complete such courses in the minimum period of time to enter this work as a patriotic service, in the opinion of the experts at the state meeting.

Training camps for nurses, of which the Vassar summer camp is the original copy are to be established in four or five places in this country. Intensive training during the summer months allows the college graduate to receive her R. N. degree in two years. The three months at camp will eliminate the "drudge period" of a nurse's training, doing away with much of the manual labor and elementary instruction.

Massaging is another art which should lure the patriotic young woman. Intensive courses for six months are to be begun soon which are open to undergraduate women. Graduates of such courses will be stationed in base construction hospitals in this country and will massage the muscles of returned wounded soldiers. This is a very necessary work.

"Use less wheat bread" was to be the slogan of the council of defense meeting, Dr. Seward said yesterday. The seriousness of the wheat situation was impressed upon the delegates in a forceful way.

Military drill for women will be given twice a week next quarter to University of Washington women. The course includes infantry footwork, bayonet drill, and rifle manual of arms. Full gymnasium credit will be given for the work. Uniforms will be worn.

CURRIER HALL HAS 11 STARS—SERVICE ONES

Currier hall has a service flag! As to its origin and mysterious appearance, little data seems available; whence it came is still a matter of dispute. Two questions next present themselves: "Who have left Currier for active service on the front?" or "Have the 'attached' at the hall decided to dedicate a service flag to their brave boys in khaki?" To the latter conjecture comes the ready response, "But there are only eleven stars in the flag."

The futility of further search along this line being apparent, still one more question remains: "Why does the flag hang upon the door of the waiters' room?" The effort of keeping up sustained attention has manifested itself; therefore, let us rest for a while from our strenuous efforts.

The Y. W. C. A. cozy will be given this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. R. Whiteis.

TRYOUTS TODAY FOR AMES MEET

Large Number Contesting for Place In Quadrangle Saturday.

Tryouts for the Iowa indoor track team which will represent Iowa in the quadrangle meet at Ames next Saturday, will be held this afternoon at three o'clock. About seventy-five are looking for a place on a twenty-man team. Winners of the first and second places in the various events will make up the team which Iowa will send to compete with Grinnell, Drake, and Ames.

The rules and regulations of next Saturday's meet will apply to the tryouts this afternoon. Iowa has heretofore not been represented by a full team but Coach Watson is hoping to get good results in spite of green material. Nugent, Taylor, Prudhon, and Marasco are counted on as point winners, and some new men have shown creditable running ability.

E. T. Housh of Carroll, a former graduate, is president of the High School Declamatory association of Iowa.

Get all-wool---it's economy

You know how important a factor in your affairs your clothes are, but you probably don't think much about it except when you're buying them; and then a man's quite apt to think more about what the clothes cost than about what they are.

This season "what they are" will be the vital question. You've heard a lot about the excessive cost of wool; the facts about it are are a good deal more real than the words about it.

But the result of high-priced wool shows in one of two ways; either your clothes will have less wool in them or you'll have to pay more for them. If you buy cheap clothes that means you don't care for all-wool; there's no way to get all-wool now at "cheap" prices.

We're here in this business to be of service to you; and service to you means, as we understand it, supplying clothes that are best for you.

That means Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; and we're ready to show you the Spring suits and overcoats we have for you.

The Indispensable Suit--- as Fifth Avenue wears it

WHATEVER else your wardrobe may deny itself, a smart suit is simply indispensable. Every week we receive a selection of VERITE modes—the newest favorites of the Fifth Avenue fashion world—shown to you at the instant of their success through our special style service.

The coat of this suit is one of the newest box or unfitted boleros, made with a long, flat collar, open in front to reveal the vest and over-collar of sand colored silk. This harmonizes beautifully with the navy serge of which the suit is made and the same color is used for the wide band of embroidery that trims the sleeves and lower edge of the jacket. The skirt is plain, a two-piece model laid in unstitched plaits about the waist and finished with a wide belt.

A particularly interesting model of Poiret twill with draped panels on each side of the moderately narrow skirt. The belted jacket with its rippled peplum back, crosses smartly in the front and has pointed front sections that are in perfect harmony with the draped skirt panels. Cunning little darts shape the fronts of the jacket and an overcollar of Roshanara crepe completes this most attractive suit.

The vogue for semi-sport suits of wool jersey makes this charming suit specially welcome. Wool embroidery contrasting pleasingly with the lovely color of the jersey. The easy fitting jacket features a convertible collar, uniquely shaped patch pockets and a tie belt. The two-piece skirt is in excellent style and provided with smart pockets and a belt.

Only in our store can you see the latest VERITE models from New York.

You will agree with us that they are reasonably priced from $29.50 to $49.50

Other Stylish New Spring Suits are moderately priced from $25.00 upward.

UKES AND KNITTING WILL FEATURE TEA

Art Department Head Will Direct Redecoration of Drawing Room for Teas.

If you enjoy singing, if you delight in thrumming the "uke," or if you get your pleasure in knitting, don't fail to come to the next University tea in the L. A. drawing room Tuesday, March 12, from 3 to 5 o'clock, and bring with you your voice, your ukelele, and your Red Cross knitting.

Tuesday's tea is the third of a series of get-together meetings of University girls which are fostered by the five women's organizations on the campus, Pan-hellenic council, I. W. A. A., Women's Forensic league, Women's League, and Y. W. C. A. Every girl in the University, all faculty women, and faculty wives are urged to come and help make the Iowa spirit a real vital thing.

The teas are in charge of a main committee which is composed of the presidents of the five organizations mentioned above, who elect a chairman for each tea. This chairman in turn must appoint a committee of thirty, six of whom act as hostesses, some pour, and some do "kitchen duty." The chairman, however, is not supposed to choose a girl who has served previously on one of the other chairman's committee.

Aesthetic surroundings will aid in making the teas more enjoyable. Work starts this week on the redecoration of the drawing room under the direction of Prof. C. A. Cumming of the art department. The present green expanse of the walls will give way to a warm coffee color, the bare windows will have harmonizing draperies, the woodwork will be darkened, and possibly the floor refinished.

SECOND ANNUAL MEET IN SESSION AT C. R.

 being the call for college trained newspaper workers. He gave a number of reminiscences of his own college journalistic career and pointed out the definite ways in which his college course has helped him in his journalism since he left college.

"I have often been asked what is the main difference between college journalism and practical journalism," he said. "And in every case I have replied that there is no great chasm between college newspapering and what is known as practical journalism."

Visit Newspaper Plants
 Mr. Cole lamented the common desire of college journalists to work in big cities. There are, he said, greater opportunities on the country weeklies and the life is far more pleasant as a rule. The morale of country editors in this state is very low and the entry of a few college trained men and women raise it amazingly, he pointed out.

The remainder of the afternoon was given over to meetings of the different committees and to visits by other delegates to the local newspaper and engraving plants. Ames and Grinnell, with fifteen each, lead in attendance, although it is expected that both the University and Cornell will send a deluge of delegates for tomorrow's meeting.
