MENOS HERE FOR GAME FRIDAY

Iowa Shoeed Class in Club With Booster Team—Enclosed in Every Department.

The Iowa baseball team went through its first practice last night in front of the Indiana fans for Friday. The men started the afternoon by getting through a batting practice in front of the fans and ended the practice with some snappy field work. The game next spring in the park will be used because of the dampness of the regular diamond.

The game at Indiana has given Iowa a new confidence in its own strength. The Missouri, who had been counted fairly strong, were broken up by an easy style. Rarely appearing in every department of the game, the players showed that Korea's pitching staff will be one of the Iowa's strongest.

The next game will be played here at Water afternoon in the Park. In preparation for this one, Kent will send his regular players to Short Park right and probably on one other day before Friday. Chicago is always strong in baseball and if Iowa is to win must play a good brand of ball.

The box score of the Indiana Iowa game as supplied to us by Dr. H. Dwight Potter, sporting editor of the Indianapolis Daily Student is as follows:

Keeper Speaker Warns Against Teutonic Militarism and Anarchists.

Co-Operation keynote he says

The Co-Operation keynote is the keynote to the success of the present and the future of the United States, for it is the keynote to prosperity and to power.

"Co-operation A Keynote of Social Reconstruction" was the subject of this address delivered by Dr. Elliott L. Atit in the English and Foreign Institute, Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Elliott has spent the past twenty years of his life working in the atom districts of New York and Chicago, and has thus gained qualification to speak on such a subject.

"What is the responsibility of a movement as big as this?" said Dr. Elliott. "What is the responsibility of the United States?" was the question asked, to which the speaker answered:

"The responsibility of the United States is to see how there would be the greatest security for the community, must be based on cooperation. The cooperationist outlined the many things that could be accomplished by co-operative effort.

"If they wish for our country, or are going to demand that it shall be maintained in war, as well as in political life," Dr. Elliott continued.

"The war was not started because we could not do things in the right way. The war was started because we could not do things in the right way. The war was started because we were not able to do things in the right way. The war was started because we were not able to do things in the right way. FOURTH OFFICERS TRAINING CAMP TO BE AFTER MAY 15

Selection of Men Will Be in Hands of University As- sociation in May

NEW SELECTED FROM THREE CLASSES

Captain Wright Says There is Only One Way to Win for Class E—Fifive A.

Captain Andrew C. Wright has re- ceived information in regard to a fourth officers training camp to be held after May 15. The non-officers will be selected from three classes.

Class A will include members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps who have completed one year's field and army work, plus 200 hours military instruction and training. These men must be recommended by an officer of the class, or three years in the Army, Navy, or on the faculty, or be recommended by the non-officer being qualified in every respect to re-ceive.

Class B will be made up of the non-officer being qualified in every respect to re-ceive.

Class C will be composed of gradu- ates other than those specified in A. and E. However, men who have had one year military training in an educational institution under the supervision of an officer of the army will be considered.

Requirements

The men of Class A who meet all requirements will be asked to take over in the "bunk" for the enlisted period of one year (this will probably be about 14 weeks), that they will accept, as the option of the government, the military transportation as provided by the government of mileage of three and a half cents per mile from the school or home to the camp that they will accept the conditions of enlistment, the pay and allowance of a private man in the army, and that they serve, if appointed, in the capacity of assistant training officer for the year of five years from the date of the institution.

To Reserve Pay

An enlisted man in the duration of the war will be required from the class of cadets A and B. Theirs will be the pay and allowance of a private man during the time of the period of service.

The selection of the men will be formed by approval of the university authorities. No appeal can be made to the federal government after the selection is made by the department.

In the cases of the men the non-officers will be considered military officer, able to instruct and to carry on the duties of the rank and general reputation.
NOT TOO LATE YET

Through some unwise legislation, the idea has become broadcast that because Iowa has received its quota in the third Liberty loan drive, further subscriptions are not wanted. This assumption is entirely erroneous; the state's required quota has been reached, but no maximum has been set. Nor will such a limit be set, for the government wants every cent that can be got in this drive. The greater the amount obtained, the greater will be the necessary, the fourth subscription campaign be called.

University students have not been canvassed in this drive as they were in the second last November, and rightfully so because many students are not in a position to buy bonds. At that time the Iowa Daily was estimated that nine out of ten were so situated that they could not and should not subscribe to the bond issue, but our position has changed somewhat and at this time our estimate would be found entirely altered. We believe also we are not excused when we hold that for most of our opportunity for service lies in other directions, food conservation, for example.

But there are some men and sons who have been delayed by not being a member of some organization, but immediately be called upon to purchase bonds. The person who has more than 100 men on hand to meet his immediate needs comes in this class which should buy bonds. The person whose earnings would meet the payments for a bond should eliminate them and place the money at the government's disposal. Practically all fraternity members can and should, and, in most cases, have, subscribed for bonds.

Those who can buy, and every individual knows whether he is in a position to buy, should. The drive is not ended.

WHERE COUNTRY IS JUSTIFIED

The Daily Iowan, usually a slicker for carrying out of the tax, favors a suspension of the statute against banking in just one case. The individual who started the rumor that the University is to be closed down on account, as a means of checking the wave, of publicity, which has been done in recent days and during the last two weeks would be benefited tremendously by a little scientific banking in the state. He is the leader of his admiring public, regardless of the action of provision against this mode of treatment.

“The rumor is entirely without foundation,” Sen. Jarvis, as reported yesterday. “I don’t know from what source it could have originated.”

The numerous similar hat air-heads which are to be broken here this year have convinced us that there is present on our campus an individual or a set of individuals who delight in treating times peacefully and sending them out among the student body in the way by our activities.

ACIEVEMENT

Twenty-five years ago the General Electric Company was founded. Since then electricity has been swiftly through the whole system of life. Equally to work in full of eager men to toil on, to reach the goal, to gather hails, to more through the work, more through their size, to give the world the tools for the work of assembly and guide to its goals.

Throughout the period the General Electric Company has been the most successful and has maintained the highest standards of leadership. To the men, as we say, its success, is due to the men of the company. To the men, as we say, its success, is due to the men of the company.
Mr. Doubtful: “I don’t see how I can afford any more Liberty Bonds. I bought all I could last fall. I’m not a rich man and I don’t think it’s fair or just to expect me to do more than I have done.”

Mr. Right: “Let’s see—your next-door neighbor’s boy enlisted, didn’t he?”

Mr. Doubtful: “Yes, he’s over in France now. Mighty fine, stalwart boy, that.”

Mr. Right: “Exactly, and some day that splendid boy, the pride of his parents’ hearts, may go over in the top of a gal­lantry charge, stop a German howitzer, find a nest of German spies in the mud and debris of No Man’s Land. Isn’t that asking too much of him, and of his family? Isn’t that fair? Isn’t that just?”

Mr. Doubtful: “Why, it’s awful, of course, but it can’t be helped. This is war, and men have to be killed in it.”

Mr. Right: “You’ve said it—a war! To win the war it might be necessary for the government to take your factory away from you, and ruin your business. It might be necessary to go to your house and turn you out in the street. What of that? Is that as great a sacrifice as your neighbor makes, or stands ready to make, when he gives his boy to his country? Yet you don’t think it’s your duty to pinch and save, and borrow if need be, in order to buy Liberty Bonds, and thus help shorten the war, make victory certain, and save the lives of thou­sands of American boys who will otherwise be useless sacrificed.”

Mr. Doubtful: “I guess that’s true, Mr. Right. I have been thinking. I’ll stop complaining and criticizing, and put up my last dollar if need be, to help win this war.”

I read over your last letter before I went to bed, but didn’t got any questions to be answered. I believe you are writing more letters than I am, but I hope you don’t mind.

Read my last sentence yesterday morning. Drives up behind a soldier on a horse, jumps off property to the left at the same time. But in sound of (noisy property) to the right as he should have done, he turned to the left and went squarely in front of me. That was entirely unexpected, and I couldn’t stop in time. For I was shot right on at him. I turned sharp to the left and ran up on a pile of rocks at the side of the road, held him with the case of my hand and knocked him down. He struck hard, and then went into a wild circle every. My front axis was stuck on the rock pile as tight as a poker wouldn’t get off under my own power, but a big truck came along just then and bluffed a now line to my box axis to pull me off. My car wasn’t damaged, and I had all the law on my side, so I didn’t care particular­ly since I hadn’t hurt the man. He turned out to be a second line mechanic. Everybody rides bikes like me.

I guess I have all but said that I am not going to write many letters; that I write one or two a week, and get along somehow, but it is not today and I’m not feeling.

We are all anxious for the American newspapers to get over here and give our German something to think about.

Have any relatives in France or Belgium whom I might visit when I get "permanently"? I will have one in May or June.

Harold.

Five Hundred Thousand American Soldiers in France

We dare not delay the VICTORY now. American lives are at stake, our own safety: the safety of the whole world. If we are not to prolong the slaughter and the suffering, if we are not to risk defeat or an inconclusive peace, we must act quickly, we must put forth our every effort now.

The army is doing its part. Five hundred thousand American soldiers are in France today. There will be more tomorrow. And more the day after. We are going to send an army large enough so that when we strike, with our Allies, we can drive the German hordes back across the Rhine—so that we can win the decisive VICTORY that will make American freedom safe, and establish a just and lasting peace.

But the whole nation must take part. Our armies in France are looking to us to furnish them in ever greater abundance, the ordnance, the munitions, the supplies that will make their VICTORY possible. We must not fail them.

The Third Liberty Loan is our share in the winning of this war. Upon it depends the safety and success of five hundred thousand American soldiers in France.
